Rep. Smith, Krum Win In Virginia Primaries

Veteran Democrat Beats Souther 9 to 1; Hughes Is Swamped In GOP Balloting

Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) yesterday was nominated for his eleventh consecutive term in Congress.

In a mild Eighth District Democratic primary, he swamped Arthur F. Souther, jr., of Arlington by a 9-to-1 margin on the basis of nearly complete returns.

Virtually assured of final victory in the predominantly Democratic Old Dominion, Smith still faces Republican Tyrrell Krum, of Vienna, Va., in the November election. Krum overwhelmed Hal Flood Hughes by a 4-to-1 plurality in yesterday's GOP primary.

The unofficial district-wide results showed:

Democratic primary (196 out of 241 precincts)—Smith, incumbent, 10,181 votes; Arthur F. Souther, 1726.

Republican primary (188 out of 241 precincts)—Hughes, 554; Tyrrell Krum, 1972.

Both Smith and Krum won easy victories in the heavily populated area near Washington. Their showing throughout the 15 counties and three cities of the district was consistent.

Complete unofficial returns in both Democratic and Republican primaries in nearby cities and counties showed:

ALEXANDRIA—All nine precincts reporting:
Democratic primary: Smith, 921; Souther, 345.
Republican primary: Hughes, 36; Tyrrell Krum, 166.

ARLINGTON—All 27 precincts reporting:
Democratic primary: Smith, 2250; Souther, 835.
Republican primary: Hughes, 315; Krum, 601.

FAIRFAX COUNTY — All 28 precincts reporting:
Democratic primary: Smith, 1286; Souther, 299.
Republican primary: Hughes, 125 Krum, 562.

FALLS CHURCH— All 3 wards reporting:
Democratic primary: Smith, 101; Souther, 49.
Republican primary: Hughes, 16; Krum, 47.

Arlington Pools Issue Adopted By Only 35 Votes

By a scant 35-vote margin, Arlington County voters yesterday approved a $500,000 bond issue for two swimming pools, according to complete unofficial returns.

In a special referendum, Arlingtonians voted 2110 for and 2075 against the proposal.

The $500,000 ceiling was designed to cover the cost of two swimming pools, one for whites and one for Negroes. County officials said it was the first time a matter requiring expenditure of public funds had been decided in a referendum.

Opponents of the proposal—which provided about the only contest in yesterday's balloting—contended there were other recreational needs with higher priority.

Cooler Today

Three Felled As Mercury Reaches 92

Increasing relief from the heat wave which felled three persons in the District yesterday was promised for today and Thursday.

There is a "slight chance" of a shower tonight and this should be followed by mostly fair weather. And Thursday (happy day) will be cooler and less humid.

The mercury climbed to 92 for the third straight day yesterday and the heat sent three persons to hospitals.

Treated at Casualty Hospital were Joseph Gleason, 31, of 117 Joliot st. sw., an employe of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., and Alex Wilson, 42, of 233 Dixon ct. sw., who fainted and fell from a truck in the 100 block of New York ave. nw.

Treated at Freedmen's Hospital was Mrs. Mildred Smith, 40, of 909 Euclid st. nw., a laundry employe.

Compromise Made on Milk Sterilization

Commission Leaves Final Decision in Dr. Seckinger's Hands

By Richard Lyons
Post Reporter

District Commissioners compromised yesterday on the controversial milk issue of chemical sterilization and left a final decision in the hands of Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger.

This was the commissioners' decision as announced by Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young:

"The commissioners have approved chemical sterilization. But since the commissioners are not yet assured of proper enforcement because of lack of adequate inspectional staff they believe that a higher rating should be given farms using steam."

Stofberg said the commissioners had asked Dr. Seckinger to decide the score card preference that should be given farms using steam.

Seckinger, who proposed a regulation that would have put the two processes on an equal footing, said last night he would make no decision until he had been officially notified of the commissioners' action.

There apparently will be no means for the public to tell whether its milk is coming from farms using steam or those using chemicals. Seckinger said the matter of distinguishing between the two had not been discussed.

Stofberg said the order will take effect September 1 when the ban on imported milk is scheduled to start. The commissioners' temporary order of June 22 giving steam and chemicals equal standing will remain in effect until then, he said.

The commissioners' action yesterday was in the nature of an experiment, Stofberg said, and may be changed later if chemical sterilization seems satisfactory and the Health Department inspection staff is increased. Number of farms shipping milk here, and the work required of inspectors, has greatly increased, since the June 22 order was issued.

Seckinger said the commissioners have agreed to seek funds in a supplementary appropriation bill for six additional inspectors. This would almost double the staff available to inspect dairy farms, he said.

The commissioners' action yesterday changes present regulations only in degree—and to a degree not yet known. Sterilization by chemicals is not now

Sangju Lost When Allies Shorten Line

More Troops Pour Into Korea, Speed To Front; Menace To Taegu Grows

Tokyo, Wednesday, Aug. 2 (AP)—Tank-led Americans today counterattacked North Korean Communist troops on the southern front west of the threatened port of Pusan. But on the northern front United Nations forces fell back, apparently to ease Red pressure until reinforcements can get into the lines.

Army troops fresh from the United States rushed to the front west of Pusan where the Communists had driven to within 40 air miles of the vital supply port. It was in this area that field dispatches said an American counterattack had begun.

Armor Takes Part

There was no indication as to what units participated in the counterattack, or their strength. The dispatch said only that Americans with armor had begun an attempt to recapture high ground northeast of Chinju, 55 miles west of Pusan. The high ground overlooking the plain extending to Pusan was lost Tuesday.

(The Defense Department in Washington disclosed that elements of the First Marine division have arrived in Korea along with elements of the Army's Second Infantry division and the Fifth Regimental Combat team. "Elements" means none of the units is at full strength, a spokesman said. A Navy spokesman said designation of the Marines' strength as a brigade—normally about 6000 men—would not be "too far off.")

Associated Press Correspondent Leif Erickson at United States Eighth Army headquarters pinpointed the general withdrawal on the North which was mentioned in an Eighth Army communique Tuesday and by General MacArthur's headquarters early today.

Main Line Moved Back

The main South Korean force, he said, appeared to have fallen back behind the Naktong River south of the Hamchang-Yechon-Andong highway. Hamchang has been the anchor of the North-South American line on the west and the South Korean east-west line on the north.

Ex-War Prisoner Guilty of Killing D. C. Stone Mason

Luray, Va., Aug. 1 (Spl.)—Merle Rothgeb, former Army war prisoner was convicted of first degree murder on his forty-second birthday yesterday in the carnival slaying June 17 of his girl friend's former husband.

A Page County jury deliberated only 55 minutes, and recommended a 25-year prison sentence. Judge Hamilton Haas deferred sentencing until August 8.

Rothgeb was convicted of murdering Olan Dinges, 42, a Washington stone mason, at a Stanley, Va., fair. Mrs. Beulah Dinges testified during the two-day trial that she had been keeping company with Rothgeb since she divorced Dinges three years ago. Rothgeb shot Dinges in the neck. He pleaded temporary insanity due to a war wound.

Goal of Million Set by Army; To Draft More

Four Guard Divisions Called Up Identified; One Goes to Pickett

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Mobilization of four National Guard divisions and other units will bring a boost in Army strength to approximately a million men and require additional draft calls, Defense officials said yesterday.

The four Guard divisions being called in were officially identified by the Department of the Army as the Twenty-eighth of Pennsylvania, the Fortieth of California, the Forty-fifth of Oklahoma and the Forty-third of Vermont, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

At the same time, the Army announced that the two regimental combat teams being Federalized are the Hundred-Ninety-sixth of South Dakota and the Two Hundred Seventy-eighth of Tennessee.

A ranking Army spokesman said these Guard forces and "the certain supporting units" also being called—which were not identified—will be brought to full war strength by recruits, draftees and transferred men.

He said the decision to increase Army strength by mobilizing the National Guard divisions and to build the Marine Corps' two divisions to full war strength was reached by the Joint Chiefs of

Republicans Yield on Full Controls Now

Way Appears Cleared On 'Hill' for Passage Of Permissive Measure

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Republicans backed down yesterday on earlier plans to force the Administration to invoke immediately all-out price, wage and rationing controls.

The way thus appeared cleared in both Houses of Congress for speedy enactment of those controls on a permissive, or standby basis, plus the other economic control authority requested last month by President Truman.

Sentiment in favor of permissive authority to the Administration crystallized rapidly yesterday after Senator Maybank (D., S. Car.), chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, received a letter from President Truman indicating his willingness to accept discretionary power to set prices and wages, and to institute rationing.

But, Mr. Truman stated in powerful language, he would not have that authority jammed down his throat. He insisted that, if the power is granted, it be left to him to determine when to invoke it, to what extent, where, and how.

The question of how the authority was to be administered, the President wrote, must be left open

Senate Votes Spain Loan of $100 Million

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Overriding Administration opposition, the Senate yesterday voted, 65 to 15, to lend up to 100 million dollars to Franco's Spain.

The vote, opening the omnibus appropriation bill to the possibility of veto, directed the Export-Import Bank to make loans from funds raised by Treasury financing.

The effect was to provide additional assistance for Spain, over and above funds provided for other countries participating in the Economic Cooperation Administration program.

But it still cut Spain into the Marshall Plan program, a step strenuously resisted by the State Department since ECA's birth.

The amendment, in the nature of a compromise, was offered by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) for himself and three other Democratic Senators after the Senate Democratic Policy Committee gave the move its informal blessing.

Despite active State Department opposition, Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) and Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted for it.

O'Mahoney offered it as an

Full GOP Support Of War Action Urged by Hoover

Salt Lake City, Aug. 1 (U.P.)—Former President Herbert Hoover today charged the Republican Party with the responsibility for winning both on the battlefield and at the peace table.

"When America draws its sword, there's only one way out—to win in battle and to win a lasting peace," he said.

The Republican Party's elder statesman said the GOP should give its wholehearted support to the prosecution of the war and the support of the Government.

"The GOP is needed more than ever now to keep the country on the track of Americanism," he said.

"If a man from another planet were to visit America now, he would say after an inspection that the GOP's position is on the right. There's no room for it on the left."

Hoover spoke extemporaneously at a conference of GOP leaders from 11 Western states here.

Truman Gets Model Defense Law for D. C.

$290,000 for Salaries Of Director and Staff Still to Be Provided

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Congress yesterday sent to the White House a model civil defense law for the District, designed to bring some order out of the chaos which would result from an A-bomb or other major enemy action.

Still to come from the Hill is a $290,000 appropriation to pay salaries and expenses of a full time director and a staff of about 9, plus another 10 housekeeping employes. The money, the bulk of it at least, is expected to be forthcoming in a deficiency bill this month.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young yesterday would not indicate whom he has in mind for the top job but it is expected a retired Army officer, probably an engineer, will be chosen from a list he has drawn up.

The defense set-up will be housed in the former nurses home at Upshur Hospital, 14th and Upshur sts. nw. It will take about three months to get the building in shape for the new headquarters, to be used until a permanent bomb-proof HQ is erected, if it ever is. The Disrtict Building will be used until the tuberculosis hospital site is ready.

This is how civilian defense is designed to work:

The defense director would become the directing officer of all District facilities—police, health, fire, and so on—once the Commissioners pronounced an emergency. That, in turn, would be based on a presidential declaration.

This setup presumes no martial law would be declared in case of an A-bomb or other attack, but if it were declared the director would then be responsible to the military alone.

Before any real emergency here could be coped with, however, much must be done. As soon as the money is available and the staff chosen, perhaps around Labor Day, a training program will be set up, to begin in the fall. It will cover such jobs—on a volunteer basis—as radiological monitors, air-raid wardens, doctors, nurses and auxiliary firemen and policemen. Some training probably won't get under way until late winter or next spring, or even later.

The civilian defense office would

Russia Loses In Attempt To Bar China Nationalists

Soviet Defeated 8 to 3 on Vote But Remains to Attack America on Korea

Lake Success, Aug. 1 (AP)—Russia's Jacob A. Malik walked back into the Security Council today, failed again to oust Nationalist China, and then accused the United States of aggression in Korea.

He demanded that the United States stop "flagrant and unjustified aggression" against the people of Korea. He said the Soviet Union is following a policy of peace. It was his first speech here since he began his boycott last January 13.

Malik charged that the United States is trying "every way to broaden the warfare, not only against the people of Korea but also against the people of Vietnam, China and Indo-China.

"The United States aims at seizing Korea," Malik argued. "The ruling circles are not at all concerned with ending hostilities."

Chiang Ouster Move Fails

After hearing Malik on Korea, the Council adjourned at 6:15 p. m. until 3 p. m. Wednesday. It did not settle the order of the agenda and that will be the first business Wednesday.

The Council voted 8 to 3 against Malik's ruling as August president that T. F. Tsiang of Nationalist China is an "usurper" and "represents nobody."

The United States, Britain, France, Nationalist China, Cuba, Ecuador, Egypt and Norway voted against Malik's expected ruling that Tsiang was not a member of the Council. Britain and Norway have recognized Red China but spokesmen for those countries have said they would not use parliamentary "tricks" to settle the question.

The Soviet Union, Yugoslavia and India voted in favor of Malik's ruling.

The decision was taken before the largest crowd in Council history, including Miss Margaret Truman, daughter of the President. High delegates found only standing room as bitter words flashed back and forth across the table, mainly between Malik and Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate.

Malik protested that the Coun-

Enemy Artillery Termed Better Than Germans'

The Korean Communists have better artillery than the Germans had in World War II, Lieut. Col. John Michaelis of Lancaster, Pa., said in a broadcast last night.

Col. Michaelis commands a regiment of the Twenty-fifth division in Korea.

"One of the field artillery batteries supporting me received 205 rounds of direct counter battery fire in a period of four hours," he said.

"I believe these people have more artillery and better artillery than the Germans had during the European campaign.

"I would compare the North Korean ability to fight with that of the Germans."

Talented Illinois Cow Gives Milk at Command

Findlay, Ill., Aug. 1 (U.P.)—Eleven-year-old Herbert Bricker today reported that his cow milks herself.

He said all he has to do is set the milk pail under her, and "she does the rest."

The cow, "Blondie," was a present from his father. The boy said she began her unique performance shortly after she had calved. A veterinarian told Herbert the cow is "perfectly healthy — just talented."

500 Miles From North Pole

Col. Hubbard Dies in Crash; No. 1 U. S. Arctic Weatherman

Col. Charles Joseph Hubbard, 48, chief of the Arctic section of the United States Weather Bureau, was one of nine men killed in an Arctic air crash Monday.

The plane, a Royal Canadian Air Force four-engined Lancaster, crashed and exploded on Ellesmere Island about 500 miles south of the North Pole while parachuting supplies to what is believed to be the northernmost weather station in the world.

Seven of the victims were RCAF men and one was a civilian employe of the Canadian Department of Transport, the Associated Press reported.

Colonel Hubbard, an internationallyknown Arctic explorer and weather authority, had helped establish the Ellesmere Island station last spring.

Officials were told one of the chutes carrying supplies became fouled in the tail structure, forcing the plane into the disastrous dive.

The accident occurred near the site where, in 1948, Hubbard found the flask containing original documents left by Admiral Peary on his dash to the North Pole in 1905.

In the last four years, Hubbard had established six observation stations in the far northern Arctic, in conjunction with the Canadian Weather Service. He pioneered methods of supplying Arctic stations by air for year-round operations under extremely severe climatic conditions.

These stations were manned around the calendar by joint teams from the Canadian and United States Weather Bureaus. With them, Hubbard experimented with new types of Arctic clothing, food, fuel and shelter.

In 1941, Hubbard entered the Navy as a lieutenant commander but soon was "borrowed" by the Army to help develop aviation facilities in the Arctic. Commissioned an Army lieutenant colonel in 1943, he worked on facilities in the Hudson Bay region and central Canada.

At Harvard, Hubbard was an All-America guard in football in 1922 and 1923, also a member of the crew. He received the Francis H. Burr Award given annually to the Harvard senior who best combines "qualities of leadership, scholarship and athletic ability."

He lived with his family at 1217 Potomac st. nw.

Survivors include his wife, Harriet Bissell Hubbard; four children, Charles, jr., 22, Stamford, Conn.; Harriet Aries, 7; John Hamel, 4, and Dana 2; a brother, Wynant Hubbard; and two sisters, Mrs. Alexander Frey of Radnor, Pa., and Mrs. David Wood, New Canaan, Conn.

Brings Them Back Tamed

Two White Rhinos Lassoed, Can Be Ridden, Explorer Says

New York, Aug. 1 (NYHT).—Three months ago James T. Monesmith of Dayton, Ohio, captured two rare white rhinoceroses in the Egyptian Sudan by lassoing them from a racing truck. Today, these savage and unpredictable animals are tame enough to be ridden bareback.

Monesmith returned from Africa by plane today with 13 of the 34 animals he captured on a five-month safari.

"I am not a hunter," he explained when interviewed at Idlewild Airport. "Instead of just bringing them back alive, I bring them back tamed."

He has weaned two aardvarks—anteaters to the layman — from their diet of ants to a secret formula he refused to reveal.

"They are getting along fine," he said. "It's all a question of environment."

Two of the four leopards which arrived with him are tame enough to be taken out on a leash. In the first shipment were also two cheetahs, two crested rats with poisonous quills, a vervet monkey, two anteaters and two galagos.

En route by ship are three lions, four black and two white rhinoceroses, zebras, giraffes, hyenas, and jackals.

The galago, commonly known as "bushbaby," is a rare find, he explained. It has a face like a fox, two short front legs and two long rear legs, weighs a half-pound and is distantly related to the monkey. The pair was captured in Abyssinia.

'Liberate' Formosa, Reds Cry

Joint Island Defense Mapped With MacArthur, Chiang Says

Taipei, Formosa, Wednesday, Aug. 2 (AP).—Chiang Kai-shek today declared he and General MacArthur had laid the basis for United States-Chinese "military cooperation" and "the joint defense of Taiwan" (Formosa).

MacArthur himself declared yesterday at the end of momentous talks here that it was "my responsibility and firm purpose" to defend Formosa from the Communist invasion forces gathering on the mainland.

(MacArthur had no further comment upon his arrival in Tokyo Tuesday. But the Chinese Communist radio in Peiping was defiant.

(It broadcast a speech by Gen. Chu Teh, Communist commander in chief, calling for the "liberation" of Formosa despite "American aggression."

(A second broadcast said Communist veterans were "training intensively for the battle to defeat United States aggression.")

Chiang in a brief statement said the two days of conference with MacArthur had produced agreement "on all problems discussed."

"A foundation for the joint defense of Taiwan and for Sino-American military cooperation has thus been laid," he continued.

"It is our conviction that our struggle against Communist aggression will certainly result in final victory."

October Draft Quota Set at 248 for D. C.

The District's October draft quota has been set at 248, 4 less than the September quota.

The second call will raise the D. C. total for the draft to an even 500. It probably will force Selective Service officials to dig into the 23-year-old group to meet the quota, they said yesterday. Up to now only 24- and 25-year-olds have been hit.

Notices for physical examinations for the October group will begin going out late this month, Deputy Director Frank P. Norton said.

Maryland's quota has been pegged at 739, four more than the September total. The two calls will induct 1474 Free Staters within the next few months. Virginia's quota is 1090, three more than the September total.

Meanwhile, the draft machinery continued on the first call. Norton said induction notices will be dispatched starting at the end of the month. The District's new "get-tough" policy on delinquents who fail to show up for physicals will receive its first test today when another group is scheduled for processing at Arlington Farms.

Yesterday 33 of the 35 men called by the Fairfax County board showed up at Arlington and 18 of the 20 sent by the Hyattsville board. This was a better record than the usual turnout. Last week and Monday, 51 of the 235 Washington men called were missing.

Voluntary enlistments in the Marine Corps received a spur yesterday as the new policy permitting former Leathernecks with dependents to reenlist went into effect. Two veterans were accepted, but most other callers at the recruiting station were "more interested in being second looeys than in signing up in the corps," Recruiting Sergeant Nick Gledich noted.

The Army enlisted 12 in the area and the Air Force accepted six. The Navy reported 14 sworn in, three rejections on the intelligence test and nine to take physicals.

In Korean War

D. C. Woman Learns Son Is Wounded

The soldier son of a Washington woman was reported last night to have been wounded in the Korean fighting.

Corpl. Penland

He is Corpl. John O. Penland, 20, son of Mrs. Josephine M. Penland, 1266 Meigs pl. ne.

Penland was one of 32 American soldiers reported wounded in the Department of Defense's latest casualty list. Four men were reported injured, but not in combat, 24 were reported missing in action, and one man previously reported missing was reported found.

The list included no one killed in action.

Penland lived in Newport News, Ga., before enlisting in 1948. He was sent to Tokyo in September, 1948, where he joined the Thirty-fourth Infantry Division.

Three Virginia soldiers were among those listed as missing in action, Pvt. Tyson R. Long, son of Eugene R. Long, of Marshall; Sergt. Ralph L. Kilpatrick, of Phoebus, and Pvt. J. W. Bright, son of Mrs. Zina O. Bright, of Hilton.

4 More Hit By Polio in Wythe County

Wytheville, Va., Aug. 1 (AP).—Polio struck down four more. Victims in Wythe County today as the virulent outbreak showed no signs of letting up in this southwest Virginia community of 23,000 persons.

The latest figures reported to the State Health Department hiked the stricken county's totals to 108 cases and 12 deaths—all since July 1 in the Nation's worst siege of polio this year.

Neighboring Pulaski and Bland Counties reported one new case each today, and their respective totals climbed to five and three. Two new cases were listed from Buchanan County—farther southwest—as that area counted a total of 12 victims for 1950.

The ninth case reported today to the State Health Department in Richmond—increasing Virginia's 1950 toll to 235 cases and 17 deaths—was that of a Danville resident.

Polio Brings Ban On Colony Visitors

Lynchburg, Aug. 1 (AP).—Lynchburg State Colony today extended its ban on new patients and visitors to the entire State of Virginia until the polio epidemic is over.

Last week the colony stopped admitting patients and visitors from southwest Virginia because of the numerous polio cases in the Wytheville area.

Dr. D. L. Harrell, superintendent, announced today's all-out ban on patients and visitors.

Area Reports Show 5 More Polio Cases

Five new cases of poliomyelitis were reported yesterday in the Washington area, bringing the total number this year to 83.

Three of the cases were reported in the District. The District has had 43 cases reported this year as against 13 at this time last year. The District Health Department said all new cases reported yesterday had been admitted to Children's Hospital Monday. It said they included:

A 2-year-old boy of the 1700 block of Q st., nw.; a 9-year-old girl of the 3800 block of Massachusetts ave., nw.; and a 7-year-old boy of the 1600 block of W. Virginia ave., ne.

The Montgomery County Health Department reported its eighth case of the year, a 6-year-old boy of the 9200 block of Glenville rd., Silver Spring, Md., admitted to Children's Hospital Sunday.

The other case was reported in Fairfax County. It was a 2-year-old girl of New Alexandria, just south of Alexandria. The county health department also announced it had picked up on its rolls the case of a 2-year-old girl originally reported Monday as an Alexandria case. Place of treatment was not given in either case. This boosted the number of Fairfax cases to 13 and reduced Alexandria's to three.

Barbour Pets Bring About Her Arrest

Montgomery County and Mrs. Marion Helen Barbour, her six dogs and nine cats, are at it again.

Mrs. Barbour keeps her animals in a trailer in Clifton Park, on the property of Dr. Ernest Q. King at Patton dr. and Miles rd.

Some residents of the community have protested saying they don't like the noise and the smell.

Mrs. Barbour previously paid a $3000 fine for occupying the trailer. It is unlawful for a human to dwell in a trailer in a residential A zone.

On July 11, Judge Stedman Prescott signed an injunction ordering Mrs. Barbour to get out. But it didn't work.

Police report that Mrs. Barbour doesn't sleep there any more. The dogs and cats still do. Every day Mrs. Barbour comes to feed her pets, police say.

On Monday, Montgomery County tried once more. Mrs. Barbour was arrested on the charge of maintaining a public nuisance, a common law offense. She posted $500 bond. A hearing will be held in Silver Spring Police Court Tuesday.

4 Towns Grow In Census of Prince Georges

Four Prince Georges County, Md., towns increased in size from 17 to 49 percent between 1940 and 1950, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

The biggest advance was made by Fairmont Heights, whose population zoomed nearly 50 percent, from 1391 to 2073.

The others were Capitol Heights, 2036 to 2716, 33 percent increase; Cottage City, 1044 to 1252, 19 percent, and Colmar Manor, 1480 to 1733, 17 percent.

The 1950 figures are preliminary, subject to some revision upon final tabulation, the Bureau said. The announcement completes tabulations in the nearby Maryland area except for Silver Spring, which will be computed shortly.

More B-36 Bombers Ordered by Air Force

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 1 (U.P.)—Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp. today announced it has received an additional order for B-36 superbombers from the Air Force. The size of the additional order was not disclosed.

The aircraft firm said a "letter of intent," a go-ahead issued prior to formal contract, had been received.

Orders for 170 B-36s had previously been announced by the Air Force, plus an undisclosed number ordered from fiscal year 1950 funds.

Weekly work schedules for all Consolidated Vultee employes were increased from 40 to 50 hours on July 17.

13 of 14 Graduating Nurses Will Continue at Gallinger

The Capital City School of Nursing at Gallinger Hospital last night graduated 14 students. Thirteen of them will remain as Gallinger nurses.

As the top graduate in scholarship and nursing proficiency, Dora Maxine Broadwater of Barton, Md., received a $100 scholarship toward university study. Nancy Ann Llewellyn of 321 18th st. se. won second place.

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, District health officer, told the girls their jobs at Gallinger would become as important as any in the profession in the event of an atomic war.

Social Security Bill Approved In Conference Split by Row

The Social Security expansion bill nearly doubling old-age benefits and insuring 10 million more workers was voted final approval yesterday by House-Senate conferees despite a developing row over one provision.

The Administration failed in an eleventh-hour effort to eliminate the so-called Knowland amendment. The amendment restricts the Secretary of Labor's power to hold up unemployment insurance funds to a State that fails to meet Federal standards.

Talk of a House move to recommit the entire bill to eliminate this amendment, and even veiled hints of a veto, followed refusal of the House conferees to remove the provision.

One House conferee, Representative Walter A. Lynch (D., N. Y.), refused to sign the conference report, and may ask the House to instruct the conferees to take out the controversial language.

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) told reporters any recommittal action by the House risked "killing" the entire bill. He said the bill would be definitely "dead for this session" if the President vetoes it.

Added to the bill in the Senate by Senator William F. Knowland (D., Calif.), the amendment sharply curbs the Secretary's power to block funds to a State not complying with Federal jobless standards. He would have to wait until the State appealed to its highest court and got a decision.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) told reporters the President was "very disappointed" with the provision. He said he did not know whether the President would veto the bill because of it, however.

The bill raises benefits to 3,000,000 persons already retired an average of 77½ percent and nearly doubles payments to persons yet to retire.

It brings into the Social Security system for the first time some 5,000,00 nonprofessional self-employed persons, about 1,000,000 domestic servants, 1,000,000 full-time farm workers, 1,400,000 State and local employes not under retirement systems, 600,000 employes of nonprofit organizations, a few Government employes not covered by retirement plans, and several smaller groups.

The present 1½ percent tax on employers and workers would be frozen until January, 1954. But a larger amount of wages would be subject to the tax, $3600 instead of the present $3000 taxable wage.

Hacker Has Woe Aplenty

William M. Drummond, 30, was given his choice of paying fines totaling $225 or spending 390 days in jail by Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Ready yesterday.

But that was only a starter. He was also held in $3000 bond for the grand jury on a robbery charge.

Drummond, who lives at 920 46th st. ne., has admitted taking $55 from Jeff Trayman, 30, an attendant at the Holland & Wagstaff Shell Service Station, 4131 Minnesota ave. ne., Sunday night, but denies he did so at gunpoint, according to police.

In court yesterday, Drummond was ordered to pay $200 fine or serve 360 days on a charge of obtaining a permit by misrepresentation, and to pay a $25 fine or serve 30 days for being an unlicensed hacker.

Profits Tax Backing Grows In Congress

Mounting sentiment for an excess profits tax developed at the Capitol yesterday as the Senate Finance Committee prepared to launch the President's more limited tax program.

Mr. Truman's proposal to hike income taxes on individuals and corporations, but postponing any over-all tax on profits, will be spelled out in detail by Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder at a closed meeting of the Finance Committee this morning.

Indications of Pressure

Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.), said he still thought January was time enough to consider taxing profits, but there were these indications of growing pressure:

1. Senate Administration Leader Scott W. Lucus (Ill.) hinted he may back an excess profits tax amendment to the Administration bill. Lucas said he wants to "take all of the profit out of this war" and will support a profits levy if it is the best way to do it.

2. Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said he will personally appeal to the Finance Committee to approve his amendment to tax 75 percent of profits made above a big corporation's 1947-49 average. Said O'Mahoney: "Next year will be too late. Prices are rising now."

3. Representative Wilbur Mills (D., Ark.) said he will try to tie an excess profits tax amendment to a bill reviving the Government's wartime power to renegotiate contracts with industry. House Ways and Means Committee hearings on the contracts renegotiation bill open today.

Hope to Finish This Week

Mr. Truman asked Congress to raise five billion dollars by virtually wiping out postwar cuts in individual income taxes and lifting corporation rates from a maximum of 38 percent to a 45 percent top. At a recent press conference he indicated he wasn't yet ready to recommend an excess profits tax.

Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) said he supports the five-billion-dollar tax increase in principle, but thinks it should be accompanied by an equivalent reduction in nondefense spending. Like George he opposed immediate imposition of an excess profits tax but said "we'll probably have to come to it" later on.

George told reporters he hopes to conclude Senate Finance Committee action on the President's tax program by this weekend by holding daily sessions of his group through Saturday.

The bill is tentatively slated to be called up in the Senate next week. George said the bill, which later must go back to the House for approval, "conceivably" could reach the White House in two weeks.

Crack Shots Due Here for Pistol Match

Crack pistol shots from over the Nation will meet at Fort Totten Park this weekend in the sixth annual Park Police pistol tournament.

Beginning Friday, the three-day tourney is open to civilian, service and police teams. The competition will be divided into three divisions: 45-caliber on Friday, .38-or .32-caliber on Saturday, and .22-caliber on Sunday.

Awards will consist of medals, trophies and merchandise. A new Secretary of the Interior Trophy will be provided, since the Metropolitan Police team retired the old last year.

Conviction of 11 Top Communists Upheld

New York, Aug. 1 (NYHT).—The United States Court of Appeals unanimously upheld today the conspiracy conviction of the 11 leaders of the Communist Party and the constitutionality of the Smith Act under which they were tried.

"We know of no country where they would have been allowed any approach to the license here accorded them," Chief Judge Learned Hand wrote near the end of a 66-page opinion. "And none, except Great Britain, where they would have had so fair a hearing.

"Their only plausible complaint is that freedom of speech which they would be the first to destroy, has been denied them. We acknowledge that freedom is not always easy to protect; and that there is no sharp line which marks its scope. We have tried to show that what these men taught and advocated is outside the zone . . ."

The eleven, convicted last October 14, after a 9-month jury trial before Judge Harold R. Medina, have one last resort—the United States Supreme Court. Judge Hand's decision was concurred in by Judge Thomas W. Swan, while Judge Harrie B. Chase wrote a separate concurring opinion of seven pages.

Specifically, the 11 were found guilty of violating Section 3 of the Smith Act of 1940 in that between April 1, 1945, and July 20, 1948, when they were indicted, they wilfully and knowingly conspired to organize the Communist Party of the United States as a group to teach and advocate the overthrow of the Government by force and violence.

Judge Hand praised Judge Medina for having the "imperturbability of a Rhadamanthus" during the long trial in United States District Court, where the trial judge was continually harried and set upon by six defense counsel, all of whom were held in contempt, a finding also confirmed by the Appeals Court.

[According to Webster's International Dictionary, Second Edition, Rhadamanthus is mentioned in Greek mythology as the son of Zeus and Europa and as a brother of Minos. "For his exemplary justice on earth," according to the dictionary, "he was made after death one of the judges of the souls in the lower world."]

Grand Jury Calls Professor Heard By Red Probers

By The Associated Press

The Justice Department yesterday said Joseph W. Weinberg, University of Minnesota professor, has been subpenaed to appear before a Federal grand jury here Thursday.

The department said Weinberg is to be examined in connection with his testimony before the House Un-American Activities Committee in 1948 and 1949.

Weinberg, formerly of California, is a physics professor. Before the House committee, he denied acquaintance with a number of alleged Communists. He also denied he was a Communist himself.

Although officials declined any comment, it was learned the same grand jury is currently going over some of the testimony that William W. Remington, former Commerce Department economist, gave before various congressional committees during the last several years.

2d Mass B-29 Raid Smashes Arms Hub

An American Bomber Base In Japan, Aug. 1 (U.P.).—United States B-29 Superfortresses made their second mass attack in three days on the North Korean war production center of Hungnam today and preliminary reports indicated they almost blotted it out of existence.

Targets were the chemical and nonferrous metal plants of the Chosen (Korea) Nitrogen Fertilizer Company.

Fifty Superforts dropped more than 400 tons of bombs, added to 500 dropped Sunday.

The weather was perfect. The first bombs started a series of explosions. Flames spurted 500 feet in the air. Smoke rose to 8000 feet. The rest of the planes had to bomb by radar because of it. By the time the last plane left, the smoke column was 15,000 feet high. Explosions were still rocking planes flying at that altitude, approximately three miles above the target area.

Jubilant bomber crews said they believed it was the most successful aerial attack since the Korean war began.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur had announced that aerial observation showed the Hungnam war production area 85 percent damaged in the first raid—30 percent wiped out, 40 percent heavily damaged and 15 percent less seriously damaged.

The area contains the most important chemical works in the Far East.

There were three specific targets today—plants that produce nitric acid and nitroglycerine for explosives, magnesium, aluminum and copper.

"It was as near a perfect mission as I ever saw," said Col. Claude E. Putnam, commanding the 92d Bomb Group. "Explosions from the ground bounced us around plenty. It was like driving a car down an old corduroy road in Texas."

Putnam is from Jacksboro, Texas. His wife and three children are living in Spokane, Wash.

Fighters Fly 180 Sorties

Fifth Air Force fighters flew 180 sorties during the day in support of ground troops, and B-26 light bombers flew 23 bombing and night intruder missions.

The fighters, F-80 jets and F-51 Mustangs, hit bridges, railroad installations and vehicles with rockets and machine guns. The B-26s destroyed bridges and railroad freight assembly yards at Hadong on the southern front.

Navy patrol bombers destroyed a locomotive and eight railroad cars and bombed an important bridge near Chongjin on the far northeastern coast of Korea.

General MacArthur announced the B-29 strike in his release No. 184 tonight.

Today's target area was two miles east of that bombed Sunday. The first crews over said that the area hit in the first strike "looked pretty desolate and burned out."

The planes took off in a driving rainstorm that reduced visibility to less than one mile, MacArthur said, but nevertheless they took off exactly on schedule.

At the pre-attack briefing, when crewmen were asked to give their views, Lieut. A. Lefernik of Spokane and Cleveland, Ohio, navigator, and Sergt. Francis J. Brozowitz, Delmar, Del., radio operator, joined in shouting:

"Cut off the rain."

Menzies' Promise

Troop Aid To Be Rushed By Australia

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia said yesterday that he believed Australian ground forces would be brigaded with New Zealand troops to make up a "first-class combat group" for Korea.

Ultimately, he said, he would like to see these troops, together with others from England and other commonwealth countries, formed into a "British Commonwealth Division" to fight alongside the Americans.

Prime Minister Menzies spoke, first, before the House of Representatives, and later the Senate. He was the first Australian to address Congress, and was vigorously applauded.

In Sydney, meantime, it was reported that Australia would send about 2500 ground troops to Korea. It was said that they would be ready to join American troops on the firing line "within two months."

Menzies explained to the House that Australia did not have a substantial standing army, and that troops for service abroad had to be specially enlisted, trained and equipped. United States officials, he said, agreed that it was better to dispatch a comparatively small Australian force as soon as possible than to wait for many months to send a large one. Therefore, he said, the Australian force—made up in part of Australians in the British Commonwealth Occupation Force in Japan—will be organized and dispatched "within a few weeks."

Talking about the world crisis in general, Menzies said:

"We all have laid on us today the duty to be prepared, to be strong, not with the strength of a bully, but with the strength of a deliverer."

Red Cross Puts Stamp on U. S. Prisoner Care

Eighth Army Headquarters in Korea, Aug. 1 (U.P.).—Frederick Bieri, a representative of the International Red Cross, today reported that American and South Korean treatment of their 279 North Korean war prisoners has been "excellent."

He expressed hope that North Korea will comply with the Geneva convention and permit inspection of its POW camps by Jacques Dereynier of the International Red Cross. Dereynier is waiting in Geneva for a visa to permit him to travel through Russia to North Korea.

"Our hope is," Bieri said, "that if the Americans and South Koreans set a good example, the North Koreans will follow suit. The North Koreans will get copies of my reports to Geneva on how their men are being treated in POW camps in the South. If my colleague is admitted to North Korea, the Americans and South Koreans will get copies of his reports on treatment of prisoners in the North."

Bieri, who is accredited to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters and to the South Korean government, arrived in Korea on July 25 and has inspected South Korean POW Camp 100 and American POW Camp No. 1.

"In both camps the treatment is excellent," he said. "The Americans are complying 100 percent with the Geneva convention and the South Koreans are getting ready to comply."

He explained that the South Koreans are preparing to issue Red Cross "capture cards," which their prisoners will fill out and the army will mail to Geneva for forwarding to the North Korean government.

Bieri said the South Koreans are feeding their prisoners even more than the Americans give them. In both camps the prisoners get standard South Korean army rations. But South Korean prison authorities give their prisoners a field ration of five and one-half hops (double handfuls) of rice and other staples daily, while Americans give them the garrison ration of three hops.

"In the South Korean camp the guards and prisoners eat food cooked in the same pot," Bieri said. "The prisoners also are given money to buy vegetables and other supplemental necessities."

Expression 'Fire Fight' Explained by Army

Tokyo, Aug. 1 (AP).—The term "fire fight" appears frequently in official announcements from General MacArthur's headquarters on the Korean war.

Asked to define the term, the Army public information officer, Col. M. P. Echols, said it means:

Close range combat between units of any size meeting head-on and when neither side can withdraw without loss.

Correction

Due to a typographical error, it was stated erroniously in Tuesday's Washington Post that three of the Air Force's Convair B-36 heavy bomber groups were in or en route to England along with a Boeing B-29 medium bomber group. The article should have read that Air Force strategic bomber forces consist of three B-36 groups, three Boeing B-50 groups and nine B-29 groups and that of these one B-29 and two B-50 groups were in or en route to England. All B-36 groups are in the United States, as far as is known.

Truman Urges More Arms Aid To Avoid Future Outbreaks

By The Associated Press

President Truman said yesterday that the best way to prevent future outbreaks against the peace of the world is to see that our allies are properly armed. That's why, he said, he's asking for 4 billion dollars to arm anti-Communist countries.

"It is now clear," Mr. Truman said in a letter to Capitol Hill, "that the free nations must accelerate the efforts they are making to strengthen their common security."

Mr. Truman said he isn't sure how much each nation will need. But he gave this breakdown on the areas to be helped:

North Atlantic, $3,504,000,000; Greece, Turkey, Iran, $193,000,000; Philippines, Asia, $303,000,000.

Mr. Truman scarcely had finished making his request before Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said $4,000,000,000 isn't enough.

He said he wishes the President would ask for more.

"One dollar spent now is worth 50 after war breaks out," Tydings told the Senate.

Tydings did not say how much he thinks Mr. Truman should ask for.

The four billion dollars would be in addition to a $1,222,500,000 arms aid program which already has been authorized.

Mr. Truman's letter to House Speaker Rayburn (D., Tex.) gave some of his reasons for making the request.

He said the invasion of South Korea leaves the free nations of the world in this situation:

"They now have no alternative but to increase rapidly their preparedness to defend the principles of international law and justice for which the United Nations stands."

But he held out a promise if this path is followed.

"This course," said Mr. Truman, "provides the best hope of deterring future calculated outbreaks against the peace of the world."

Some Congressmen have been critical of the results of the foreign aid programs. They have said we have spent billions, and yet, with the chips down in Korea, we have got very little help.

The President said:

"The increased military aid program I am recommending is as vital to our national security as the increased military appropriations I have previously recommended for our own armed forces. The security of the United States is inseparably bound up with the survival of the free nations associated with us in the common defense."

As in so many of his letters and documents these days, the President once again urged speed.

Military equipment can't be built in a day, he warned. It takes 12, 18 or 24 months.

He said he hopes the appropriations committees will consider his request immediately and that Congress will act quickly.

Mr. Truman's warning:

"Speed in getting this production under way is imperative."

Military Asks 330 Millions For Building, Some in Area

By The Associated Press

The military forces are asking for about 330 million dollars cash for a quick start on building projects they consider of "top priority."

These projects range from "radar fence" units to highly secret construction at home and overseas.

Most are in the 596-million-dollar military works program authorized by Congress in June. Also included, however, are installments on projects approved by Congress in separate bills, such as the 100-million-dollar Arnold Engineering development center in Tennessee, an 85-million-dollar aircraft control and warning system, the 75-million-dollar guided missile proving ground in Florida.

The House Military Appropriations Subcommittee yesterday released its report on hearings during which the armed forces asked for the money to carry out work already authorized.

This would be in addition to 298 million dollars available for military public works contained in the 1951 Federal budget still pending in the Senate.

Of the 330 million dollars requested of the Military Appropriations subcommittee, the Navy is seeking $62,928,000. Of this, $32,490,000 would go for projects in this country, including $3,405,000 to start the $18,693,000 Fleet Air Defense Center at Dam Neck, Va.

The Navy is asking $26,437,350 to build up bases in Newfoundland, Guam, Hawaii, Kwajalein, Samoa, Puerto Rico, and at a "classified" location.

The Army wants $95,478,000, more than half of it to be spent in Alaska. Slightly more than 12 million dollars is to provide housing and build up bases on Okinawa.

The balance of about 35 million dollars is mostly for construction in the United States, for research and development such as an installment on the Chemical Warfare Proving Ground at Dugway, Utah, and the Armed Forces Special Weapons project.

A total of $58,892,349 is for projects within the United States. A large portion would go to improving fields in strategic locations and those at which planes are based for protection of vital atomic sites.

Each of the services wants an "emergency" fund too.

The projects include, in addition to numerous barracks and utility projects at home and overseas:

NAVY—Naval Research Laboratory, Anacostia—New buildings, approved by Atomic Energy Commission, to house radiation generator—$1,390,000.

Naval Engineering Experimental Station, Annapolis, Md.—Submarine propulsion test facilities—$2,000,000.

Fleet Air Defense Training Center, Dam Neck, Va.—Proposed new type $18,693,000 "ship ashore" training center; first installment—$3,405,000.

Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md.—Testing facilities, catapults—$1,110,000.

Extension of runways for jet operations naval auxiliary air station at Oceana, Va., and naval air station, Norfolk, Va., a total $8,190,000 project of which is requested—$3,820,000.

ARMY — Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.—Research facilities for air to ground rockets and missiles — $200,000. Army Chemical Center, Md.—Radiological "cold" and "hot" laboratories, defense schools, storage building—$1,310,000. Camp Detrick, Md.—Assorted science buildings—$4,278,000.

Army transmitting station, new station to be located within radius of 30 miles of Washington in Virginia—$926,000.

Relocate Army Communication Center, "classified," a proposed $7,873,000 project for which is being asked for survey and design—$250,000.

Aircraft control and warning system, for which Congress authorized $85,500,000 and has appropriated $54,348,000—$31,152,000.

Pyongyang Frantically Digs Air Raid Shelters

London, Aug. 1 (AP).—A Russian correspondent in North Korea reported today that residents of the North Korean capital, Pyongyang, are frantically digging air raid shelters to protect themselves from American bombers.

Pravda's correspondent Kornilov wrote that "the people are digging them right outside their houses. Holes are being blasted and tunnels dug."

Since July 2, he said, Pyongyang has been bombed every day.

Correspondent Moore Missing Near Masan

United States Eighth Army Headquarters in Korea, Wednesday, Aug. 2 (AP).—Associated Press correspondent William R. Moore disappeared Sunday between Masan and Chinju en route to the Chinju battlefront, Twenty-fourth Division headquarters announced today.

Moore departed by jeep Sunday from the division's forward command post for Chinju in southern Korea but a check showed he never reached the division elements fighting in the Chinju area.

Masan is about 27 air miles from Chinju from which the Americans withdrew Monday morning.

Yanks Kill 20 South Koreans In Line Mixup

With U. S. Troops Outside Kochang, Aug. 1 (AP).—The Americans took a number of prisoners today from Red patrols trying to feel out their positions. Instead of firing on sight at the invaders from 1000 yards or more, they let them get to within 50 yards. Then they either took them prisoner or shot down those who tried to run.

"So they got damn little information out of their feeler trips this morning," said one officer.

"Last night three customers came down the road on a motorcycle. We killed two and took the third man alive. When we asked him what he thought we should do with him he replied 'shoot me.' He appeared quite surprised when we didn't."

Just before dawn a battlefront mixup caused American machine-gunners to open fire on six or seven trucks full of South Korean police pulling northeast out of Hyopchon. Twenty were killed and between 20 and 30 wounded.

"We had a task force protecting a roadblock on the highway," explained a staff officer. "We sent a scout down to check on the truck convoy to see if they were enemy vehicles. Two of our machine-gun posts then opened up on the trucks. We weren't sure until they got down that they weren't North Koreans."

Fresh Yanks Attack For Chinju Heights

drawal, Erickson said, the United States 25th Division pulled back from Sangju to the east. This was necessary to straighten the link between the South Koreans and the United States First Cavalry Division on the Kumchon front.

South of Kumchon, the eastward-driving Reds had pressed to within 25 miles of Taegu, key rail and highway center close behind the front 55 miles northwest of Pusan.

In the area of Hyopchon, 32 miles southwest of Taegu, the Reds flanked First Cavalry troops holding the Hyopchon-Taegu road near the junction of the Kochang-Taegu highway. This, however, did not appear to have taken the Reds any closer to Taegu.

The general withdrawal on the north and northwestern corner of the front was the result of the fall of Yechon two days ago. The eastern anchor of the northern front apparently still held, however, with South Koreans reported retaking Yongdok.

General MacArthur's war summary early Wednesday acknowledged that the Korean Communists were "massed for the offensive" toward Pusan. The pressure "continued heavy," headquarters said.

A field dispatch from Correspondent Don Whitehead placed the tip of the Red spearhead force 15 miles west of Masan, the South Korean port, rail and highway hub which is only 25 miles by air west of Pusan.

At a South Korean port (presumed to be Pusan) additional units of the new United States Second Infantry division and the fifth regimental combat team streamed ashore by day and night under dockside flares.

(A message received in San Francisco from Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported that as of 4:15 p. m. (EDT) no Marines had yet landed in Korea. He added that none was sighted.)

As fast as they could be readied infantrymen formed at advance assembly areas. Correspondent Tom Lambert reported that advance echelons of infantrymen "headed toward the battlefront along which the Reds are scoring continuing gains."

That was an obvious reference to the Chinju front where veteran Twenty-fourth Division units were split in half Monday by a torrid North Korean tank-infantry assault.

The Reds rampaged 10 miles beyond Chinju after seizing that gateway city, 55 miles west of Pusan Monday.

An advance administrative group of the First Marine Division, flown to Korea several days ago, made prepartions for deploying the division once it is landed. The Devildogs were expected ashore soon.

The Marines reportedly are equipped with heavier armament than thus far used by the Army. Their weapons also were said to include flame throwers, effective in close contact actions.

General MacArthur's summary noted that pressure remained strong against First Cavalry positions where the Korean Communists are driving for a breakthrough to Taegu.

At Yongdok on the east coast "friendly forces"—which usually means South Koreans troops—may have again taken the port city, only 25 miles north of the United States beachhead at Pohang.

An American observation pilot cruising over the Yongdok front Tuesday reported that North Koreans had fallen back to positions 1500 yards north of the ruined port. Troop concentrations within range of shore fire took a heavy toll of North Korean troops.

Yongdok has been pounded repeatedly by allied naval forces cruising close offshore for deadly high velocity bombardment runs.

Street fighting was reported in Andong at sunset Monday.

General MacArthur located the battle lines Tuesday as one mile south of Yongdok, seven miles northwest of Andong, five miles southeast of Yechon, thence to a point 10 miles southwest of Sangju where American troops of the Twentieth Tropic Lightning Division have dug in 20 miles north of the First Cavalry front around Kumchon.

Significantly, the new location of the line by headquarters omitted reference to Hamchang which had been a main anchor in thwarting the Communist southern push down the rail and road network to Kumchon. Hamchang is 30 air miles north of Kumchon.

This apparently confirmed earlier field dispatches that Hamchang had been infiltrated by the Reds.

Headquarters said the line from Sangju continued 1 mile southeast of Kwanni, which is 7 miles northwest of Kumchon. It then curves 4 miles northeast of Chirye and 6 miles southeast of Chinju in the extreme south.

Next to the critical push at Pusan, the most serious Red threat was to Taegu, provisional South Korean capital and important in the over-all defense picture as hub of supply and communication lines.

The North Koreans built up strength at captured Kochang, 75 miles northwest of Pusan, for their double-barreled punch at Taegu.

One spearhead moved from Hypochon through mountainous country and joined a second Red force at a highway junction about 25 miles southwest of Taegu.

A thin line of U. S. Twenty-fourth Division defenders struggling to hold back the Red movement toward Taegu, called for air strikes to disrupt the advance.

Jet Shooting Stars and Mustang fighters of the Fifth Airforce responded with heavy strikes along the front.

While a relative quiet hung over the central front after incessant attacks a third Communist envelopment moved through Chirye, eight miles south of Kumchon, threatened First Cavalry positions to the northeast.

REINFORCEMENTS RUSHED—United States troops, tanks and guns (open arrows) were rushed yesterday from Pusan to meet Communist drive (A) that had reached a point only 40 miles away along the southern coast of the Korean Peninsula. Twin drives (B) were aimed at Taegu, rail and road hub on the supply line from Pusan. Other Red thrusts on the northern part of the defense perimeter (C) were in the vicinity of Hamchang and at Andong. The Allies lost Sangju, south of Hamchang, when the defense line was shortened. The defenders also pulled out of Andong. United Nations forces (D) had driven to Yongdok, coast city on the northeastern end of the defense line

Probe of Tank Building Cost And Other Spending Ordered

Military leaders responsible for this country's development and purchase of tanks will be called before a special House Armed Services subcommittee this week.

Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) announced this yesterday, saying the full committee is "by no means satisfied" with the planning and spending being done by the armed forces.

He said the committee is considerably disturbed about the tank program. He also said "tactical aviation is not what it should be."

Behind closed doors the committee last week heard top civilian and military leaders in the Navy, Marines, Air Force and Army.

The aim was to learn the military's plans, not only to stem the North Korean Communist invasion but to meet any similar outbreak elsewhere.

Also the committee wanted to know how the military departments used the 48 billion dollars given them by Congress in the last four years for national defense.

Vinson and Representative Short of Missouri, ranking Republican member, have set up nine four-man "expediting subcommittees." Their job is to see that no bottlenecks develop in the expanding armament program.

Vinson said all the subcommittees, including one on tanks, will get to work at once.

"The chips are down now," he added.

Vinson indicated the committee's findings led to President Truman's requests for more money for stockpiling and 950 million dollars for naval aviation—amounts not included in the big demand for $10,500,000,000 for expanding the armed forces.

The chairman said he and Short are agreed on the need for a check on tactical aviation, for which a subcommittee was named.

"We want to find out who gets the contracts and how fast planes are being delivered," he said.

He also said the committee wants to see the radar fence built around North America. Some money for it has been appropriated and more has been authorized.

Yanks' 5-Hour Battle in Night Bags Few Dogs

With the First Cavalry Division, Aug. 1 (U.P.).—An engineer command post behind United States lines fought a five-hour battle Monday night, but the cold light of dawn revealed the only casualties were several dogs.

"Never was so much fired at so little," said a sheepish major, his eyes red from lack of sleep.

"If we had hit a North Korean with every shot fired last night, the war would be over today," said Pfc. Charles H. Guthrie of Bensonville, Ill.

The command post had reason to be jittery. Early Monday morning a squad of guerillas sneaked through United States lines and raided the post, killing three Americans and wounding seven.

By Monday night the post's defense platoon was ready for anything. Cooks and clerks—every man available—took their positions in a big circle around the command post buildings. They were ordered to shoot at anything that moved after 9 p. m.

At 10 p. m., one man cut loose with his automatic rifle. Within seconds the entire platoon opened up.

Inside the command post high-ranking officers doused their lights and hit the floor at the first two volleys. But after that they resumed their work.

About 3 a. m. things quieted down. When dawn broke the platoon went out to inspect the results of the battle. They found several dead dogs and four disabled American vehicles. Just how the vehicles were disabled no one would say.

"I suppose it's funny when you look back on it, but it wasn't funny last night," said Pvt. Harry G. Harris, 19, of Broadford, Va.

Army of Million Men Means More Drafts

Staff on Monday—the day the move was announced.

The Army spokesman also confirmed that bringing the additional Guardsmen into active service will require a further expansion of Army manpower beyond the 834,000 officers and men announced a week ago as the goal for this fiscal year.

While the new strength was not announced, Defense officials said the new combat forces, plus the service units required to operate the new training camps being opened and otherwise needed for a 14-division rather than a 10-division Army will bring the Army manpower total to at least a million men.

That increase inevitably will require additional draft calls this fall beyond the 100,000 men to be inducted in September and October.

The Army also announced that two additional Replacement Training Centers—Camp Chaffee, Ark., and Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.—will be reopened. This brings the number of such basic training camps to eight—double the number the Army had before the Korean war.

43d to Train at Pickett

Some camps which have been used only for National Guard summer training also will be put on a full-time status in light of the Guard division call-up. One is Camp Pickett, near Blackstone, Va., where the forty-third division will train. An Army spokesman said Pickett and the other such camps will be given separate station command to handle housekeeping duties and let the Guard units devote full time to training. The size of the station complement will approximate that during wartime, it was said.

Several of the Guard units being called now are having their annual summer training. They will finish their two weeks in camp and then be given 30 days at home before reporting for Federal service.

The Guardsmen will have three paid drills weekly during their month at home. Units have been authorized to recruit up to full strength during this period. What they are short when they report will be made up by draftees and recruits from basic training or Regular Army troops.

The six Army commanders, said the spokesman, have been authorized to defer Guardsmen in critical civilian jobs up to six months under an interim deferment policy issued by the Department of the Army. A permanent deferment policy—uniform for all services—now is under preparation in the Department of Defense.

There is no definite period of service for the Guard forces, but they will be in service "at least one year", the Army spokesman said.

The spokesman said the Guard outfits were selected by the Army General Staff on the basis of their training status and geographical location. He noted that they were "spread throughout the country" and that each of the six Army areas furnished either a division or a regimental combat team.

While it required a full year to ready a new divison for combat during the war, these Guard forces have a backbone of war-tried officers and noncoms and should reach a "high state of training in a very short time," the spokesman said.

Cramer Commands Forty-third

The Forty-third Division, to be trained at Camp Pickett, is commanded by Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, of 1212 S. 25th st., Arlington. Cramer, a Connecticut lawyer and veteran Guardsman, is serving a four-year appointment as chief of the Army's National Guard Bureau.

Published hearings of the House Appropriations Committee listed the strength of the Guard units being mobilized, as of last February, as follows: Twenty-eighth, 11,056 officers and men; Fortieth, 10,621; Forty-third, 8871; Forty-fifth, 8732; 196th RCT, 1648; 278th RCT, 2944. All will be built to full war strength — nearly 19,000 each for the divisions and about 5000 each for the combat teams.

The 28th division, which will train at Camp Atterbury, Ind., is commanded by Maj. Gen. Daniel B. Strickler, now Pennsylvania's lieutenant governor. He saw action as a company commander in World War I and as a battalion commander of the 28th fighting in France.

California's 40th division, which will train at Camp Cooke, Calif., is led by Maj. Gen. Daniel H. Hudelson of Los Angeles. While commanding a tank combat command in Southern France, his unit was credited with taking 47,000 German prisoners and knocking out 117 enemy tanks. The 40th division saw action in World War II in the Philippines.

Cramer's 43d division fought through the Pacific war from Guadalcanal through the Philippines. He likewise saw action in the Pacific but with another division.

Styron Leads the 45th

Oklahoma's Forty-fifth division, which will train at Camp Polk, La., took part in four amphibious landings and eight campaigns in Europe, including Anzio and Salerno. Its commander is Maj. Gen. James C. Styron, a West Point graduate, who was a regimental commander and chief of staff of the division in World War II.

The 196th RCT, which will train at Camp Carson, Colo., is commanded by Col. Kenneth R. Scurr, a veteran of the Southwest Pacific. The 278th RCT, commanded by Lieut. Col. Warren C. Giles, a European war veteran, will train at Ft. Devens, Mass.

Widow Straps on Gun Joins Hunt for Slayer

Pikeville, Ky., Aug. 1 (U.P.)—A gun-toting widow joined the hunt today for the man who ambushed and killed her husband, crusading Sheriff Roy Conway, last Friday.

Mrs. Esta Craft Conway pinned on her husband's badge and strapped on his holster after being sworn in as Pike County sheriff to serve her husband's unexpired term. She was expected to continue an anti-gambling campaign believed to have led to the murder of her husband.

Scot's Big Plan

Clan Chief Would Band All Macleans

SIR CHARLES
. . . Wants Maclean Clan United

The World Chieftain of Clan Maclean came to Washington yesterday from Scotland's bleak west coast and issued a call for the Macleans of the world to unite.

He is Sir Charles Hector Fitzroy, red-haired and age 34, twenty-seventh hereditary chief of Clan Maclean and lord of Duart Castle on the Isle of Mull.

At the British Embassy Sir Charles revealed he wants to set up Maclean associations all over the world.

Sir Charles is the lineal heir of "Gillan the Battleax," founder of Clan Maclean about 1100 A.D. It is estimated there are about three million descendants of Gillan today.

All MacLeans are eligible for membership in Clan Maclean, regardless of how they spell their names, said Sir Charles. Also eligible are septs (or offshoots) of the clan such as the Beaths, Beatons, Blacks, Leans, MacBeaths, Bachheaths, Macbeths, MacIlduys, MacLergains, Macrankins, MacVeaghs, MacVeys, Rankins, MacCormicks, MacFadyens, MacFadzeans, MacGilvras and the Clanachans.

To join, write William Maclean, 21 West Nile st., Glasgow, or Sir Charles himself at Duart Castle.

Sir Charles is on his way to Nova Scotia to take part in the Highland Games. He is staying with Col. Windsor Lewis, military attache of the British Embassy and his old c.o. in the Scots Guards.

Where does Colonel Lewis live? Why, in McLean, Va., of course.

Senate Group Kills Bill To Outlaw Liquor Ads

The Senate Commerce Committee voted 7 to 6 yesterday to defeat a motion to reconsider a bill to outlaw liquor ads from newspapers, magazines and radio and television stations.

The bill would have applied to all alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine. It would have prohibited newspapers and radio stations that reach across state lines from carrying such ads.

The committee action, in effect, killed the bill for this session by preventing it from reaching the Senate floor.

cil action on China was illegal but the vote was against him. Several times it appeared he was nearing a second boycott but he sat through the avalanche of votes against him and went on to attack the United States policy in Korea.

The Council had before it a three-point work-sheet or agenda. The first point was adoption of that agenda. The second was the Chinese question and the third was one submitted by Malik—"peaceful settlement of the Korean question."

Austin demanded that Malik rearrange the agenda to put at the top an American proposal condemning North Korean authorities for continued defiance of the U. N. and calling on all countries tc refrain from assisting or encouraging the North Korean authorities.

Austin said the United States felt it is highly inappropriate for the Council to deal with the Chinese question now and that the Council should establish the firm principle that the Chinese issue is not linked with the Korean crisis.

"To consider at this time the seating of a declared opponent to United Nations efforts to repulse aggression would weaken the support to which the United Nations forces at the front are entitled and would undermine our entire peacemaking endeavor," Austin said.

Hits United States Formosa Move

Malik contended President Truman himself had linked the Chinese and Korean questions by deciding to "put Formosa into his pocket." He said that was what Mr. Truman meant by ordering the Seventh United States Fleet to protect Formosa.

Turning to Austin, he said those who attempt to prevent discussion of these questions demonstrate that they are "foes of a peaceful settlement" and proclaim a desire to continue agression against Korean people and to extend the theater of warfare.

"We appeal to the Security Council that it should adopt prompt measures to end the Korean aggression which hangs over the heads of the people like a Damoclean sword brandished by the United States," Malik said.

Although a U. N. Commission has reported that the North Koreans launched an unprovoked invasion of the U. N.-sponsored Republic of Korea in the south, Malik argued that the United States had "stooges" provoke frontier incidents as an excuse for military action.

Immediately after the council convened at 3:12 p. m. (EDT), Malik announced that as president he ruled that the representative of the "Kuomintang group" was not a member of the Council and could not take part in the deliberations of the Council.

Austin challenged the ruling as an "arbitrary fiat."

India Backs Red China

Malik answered the three with a speech saying the United States is following a course of world domination while the Soviet Union stands for peace. He said the legitimate representative of the Chinese Republic is being prohibited from taking part in the Council.

Sir Benegal N. Rau, of India and Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia announced they would approve the ruling. Both countries have recognized Red China.

Arne Sunde, of Norway, called for a quick vote. Antonito Quevada of Ecuador, Alberto I. Alvarez of Cuba and Mahmoud Fawzi Bey of Egypt announced they would vote against Malik.

Eight hands went up when the vote was taken against the ruling. Malik announced the vote as seven against his ruling.

Austin Challenges Tally

Austin shouted an immediate challenge and said it was obviously eight against.

Malik replied Austin was too quick, that he was going to say seven voted in favor plus the representative of the Kuomintang.

Austin said the president of the Council is not a dictator and insisted that Malik record the vote "truthfully" and not "falsely."

Malid said he objected to such words from Austin and called him to order. He said he had pointed out there were eight votes, including the representative of "the Kuomintang." Austin replied that since Malik had corrected his statement to eight votes he did not require a vote on his challenge. The exchange ended with that reply.

Soviet Spy Sent Lattimore Letter, McCarthy Charges

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), told the Senate yesterday he had evidence that a Russian spy operating in Japan sent a letter to Far Eastern expert Owen Lattimore in 1938.

McCarthy has charged that Lattimore is the "top Russian espionage agent" in this country, but a Senate investigating committee cleared him of the charge.

The Wisconsin Senator presented an affidavit signed by Willy Rudolf Foerster, a German who lived in Japan from 1932 to 1947.

Foerster said he "remembers distinctly" that his former wife smuggled a letter out of Japan in 1938 at the request of Max Clausen, later convicted as a Soviet spy. The letter, he said, was addressed to Owen Lattimore.

McCarthy told the Senate that "Lattimore was head of the Office of War Information in California" in 1938.

Later, under questioning by newsmen, he conceded that Lattimore could not have held any such post in 1938 because the Office of War Information did not come into existence until three years later.

Belgian Socialists Order Strikers to Jobs After Accepting King's Conditional Offer

Brussels, Aug. 1 (AP).—Militant Socialist leaders, flushed with a conditional victory over King Leopold, called off anti-Leopoldist strikes tonight and started the near-prostrate nation back toward normal.

Thousands of Socialist workers gathered at party headquarters to cheer the news that the King was prepared to hand his recently reassumed regal powers to his 19-year-old son, Crown Prince Baudouin, with the implication that Baudouin would become King in fact when he reaches the age of 21 September 7, 1951.

Presumably satisfied with the terms of a compromise reached after a confusing 36 hours of on-again, off-again bargaining, the Socialist-led Trade Union Federation directed strikers to return to work Wednesday and end their demonstrations. Socialist leaders have reported 500,000 workers—about one-fourth of Belgium's labor force—were on strike against the monarch, who returned 10 days ago after six years in exile.

Leopold's abdication was implied only in the King's promissory note conditionally due-dated September 7, 1951.

The Socialists jubilantly claimed three concessions from the pro-Leopold Social Christian (Catholic) government. These were:

1. The release of all persons arrested in the disorders of the past few days.

2. No punitive action to be taken against public officials and civil servants who refused to carry out orders detrimental to the strikers.

3. A call for a national labor conference in Brussels August 7-8, during which representatives of labor, employers and the government will discuss wage and hour demands.

During the past 48 hours, it appeared at times that Belgium was perilously close to civil war over her King—a target of criticism since he surrendered Belgium's army to the Germans after only 18 days of fighting in 1940.

Faced with the prospect of additional violence and intensified demands for his abdication, Leopold finally notified an extraordinary council of ministers in the night that he was prepared to yield.

First, he said, he would ask the government and the Parliament to pass the necessary measures delegating his authority to the Crown Prince. This, he suggested, would clear the way for his own abdication and the Prince's accession on becoming of age—providing the government remained united behind the youth. With all the major parties apparently agreed on the preliminaries, parliamentary passage of the necessary legislation seemed assured. It was possible, however, that legislative action might drag for two weeks.

Spain Voted $100 Million

amendment to a more rigid proposal by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) earmarking 100 million dollars of ECA funds for assistance to Spain.

The effect of the McCarran move would have been to subtract that amount from funds provided other ECA countries while the O'Mahoney compromise leaves other Marshall Plan allocations unchanged.

McCarran Amendment

The O'Mahoney amendment was first approved by a vote of 52 to 27. Immediately afterward the Senate voted 65 to 15 to accept the McCarran amendment as revised by O'Mahoney.

Thirty-four Democrats, including key leaders voted with 31 Republicans for the amendment in its final form.

Only 3 Republicans and 11 Democrats voted "No."

The first friendly gesture to Spain since the United States and other members of the United Nations withdrew recognitions was influenced mainly by Spain's strategic military position in Europe and its anti-Red policies.

The Democratic policy committee decided to help work out the compromise plan after a Senate check indicated that the McCarran amendment, diverting ECA funds to Spain, would be approved anyway, one member said.

O'Mahoney said he regarded the Export-Import Bank loans provided in his compromise as "mandatory aid to Spain."

Time for Realism

The Wyoming Democrat said his position is this: "The Russians are playing tough. Malik has returned to the Security Council and is determined to make trouble for us. Now is the time to be realistic. The Iberian Peninsula is invaluable to us."

Earlier, Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told the Senate Spain is "necessary to the defense of the United States."

"In sheer realism, in sheer defense, we should bring Spain into the orbit of Western European countries combined with us."

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Ore.) made one of the few opposition speeches. Morse said it looked to him like a "bribe" to Franco for air bases. He said he had grave doubts about how other members of the United Nations would feel about it.

The Oregon Republican said thousands of American soldiers died in the last war because Franco supported Hitler and Mussolini.

"We should support freedom around the world, but fight fascism and communism wherever it rears its head," Morse told the Senate.

Senator Herbert H. Lehman (D., N. Y.) like Morse described it as "unilateral action" and questioned how ECA participating countries would receive the news. He said it was "over-ruling" the State Department.

The State Department is said to feel France and some other Marshall Plan countries might not cooperate as wholeheartedly in the European recovery effort if Spain became a participating member. In addition, the Department is understood to have doubts about how it would affect defense progress under the Atlantic pact. "Some Europeans might feel we were moving our defense lines to the Pyrenees," one official said.

Supporters of the amendment argued, however, that the European defense plan would be strengthened immeasurably by Spain's participation and "now is the time to match realism with realism."

Stalin Urges More Strength For Soviet

Moscow, Aug. 1 (U.P.).—Premier Josef Stalin today reaffirmed his prewar view that as long as the Soviet Union is encircled by capitalist countries the Soviet state cannot weaken, but must become more powerful.

Stalin declared that all the organs of the state, the army and the intelligence, must increase in strength or be destroyed.

His pronouncement appeared in the magazine Bolshevik, most authoritative organ in the Communist world.

Stalin assailed doctrinaire, dogmatic Marxists for holding that Marxist formulas worked out in one particular period are valid forever and must never change.

Stalin referred to the classic Engels belief that after the victory of a Socialist revolution the state must wither away and disappear.

"On that basis the Exegetes and the Talmudists in our party and in our country have begun to demand that the party take measures for the speedy withering away of our state, that organs be dissolved, that the permanent army be eliminated," Stalin said. Then he gave his own view.

"On the basis of a study of the world situation in our time, when the Soviet Marxist revolution occurs in only one country, and capitalism reigns in all other countries, then the country where the revolution triumphed must not weaken, but must do its utmost to strengthen its state, its state organs, its intelligence organs and the army, if this country doesn't want to be crushed by capitalist encirclement."

Stalin also predicted all languages will be fused into one language—when socialism has won its world-wide victory and imperialism and national animosities have disappeared.

Pact Nations' High Command Setup Studied

London, Aug. 1 (AP).—Top civilian and military planners of the 12 North Atlantic Pact nations met today to discuss what informed sources said was creation of a full time, London-based high command.

The job of this command would be to knit together the several different activities of the alliance's many military agencies.

In the past these agencies have reported directly to the American-British-French standing group of the Pact's Washington-based military committee.

As a result, the informants said, there has been little direct contact or coordination between the various regional blocs. Formation of a permanent 12-nation military board is designed to correct this. The body would be responsible to the Council of Deputies, who are beginning their second week's work here on the West's program of rearmament.

West Europe Nations To Hike Defense Effort

The Hague, The Netherlands, Aug. 1 (AP).—Foreign Ministers of the Western European Union nations have decided to increase substantially the defense effort of the five members within the framework of the North Atlantic Treaty, a communique said tonight.

The members are Britain, Belgium, France, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. The communique, issued after a six-hour meeting under the chairmanship of Dutch Foreign Minister Dirk U. Stikker, said:

"The Council proceeded to an exchange of views on the international situation, with particular regard to the recent events in the Far East.

"In the light of the new situation resulting from these events, the Council examined the work done by the defense organization and in particular the conclusions reached by the defense ministers at their meeting at Fontainebleau on July 20."

Stikker said detailed plans for increasing Western European military strength were secret. He refused to commit himself on questions whether any pooling of resources had been decided upon finally. He said he personally believed in rearmament of West Germany, but refused to say whether a unanimous opinion prevailed among the ministers on that point.

Green Urges T-H Repeal as Defense Spur

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—AFL President William Green today said that American labor is "resolved to give whatever it takes to save the world from being overrun by Communist aggression."

Prompt repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act should stand as "the No. 1 item on our national defense program," he said, arguing that this would inspire the workers to "pitch in and do the tremendous job that lies ahead of them."

Green's remarks were in a speech prepared for delivery at the convention of the New York State Federation of Labor.

He began with a forceful expression of labor's support of United States action in Korea.

He said labor is convinced that if there is any hope for world peace it lies in the prompt attainment of overwhelming military superiority by America and her allies, because force is the only language Russia understands.

"Much as we would prefer to utilize our natural resources and industrial production for peaceful pursuits and the improvement of economic standards, we realize that first things come first, that peace must be safeguarded at any cost and that the defense program must take priority," Green declared.

Next he assailed the "toryism" that he said has opposed "the social and economic gains won by American labor."

"I say with full confidence that half the production battle would be won in advance with action by Congress now to repeal the Taft-Hartley act and replace it with a fair and just law," he said.

Green closed with an optimistic statement concerning the current AFL-CIO unity talks. He said the combined impetus of the national defense emergency and the effects of the Taft-Hartley act have brought about "the most encouraging progress toward labor unity in American since the split occurred in 1935."

Welsh Offers Site to Church

An offer of ground upon which to complete construction of the Hyattsville Presbyterian Church annex was made yesterday by Prince Georges County Commissioner T. Hammond Welsh.

Welsh's offer was made in a letter to T. Howard Duckett, attorney for the church, which is involved in a zoning dispute over its efforts to erect a building.

The offer would give the church a strip of land 34 feet or more in depth running from the 25-foot building setback line on 42d ave. to accommodate a structure the same size as that on which work has been stopped.

A proviso in Welsh's offer is that the proposal must be accepted in lieu of an appeal to the Prince Georges County Board of Zoning Appeals for an exception to setback regulations. It would be withdrawn "upon commencement of a hearing before the board."

Work was stopped on the annex at 42d ave. and Farragut st. after the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission revoked a building permit it contended was issued "in error."

Fairfax Group Asks 'Manager' Government

A group of tax-conscious rural residents called for county manager government in Fairfax before the county's special Government Study Commission last night.

Four speakers representing the Fairfax Taxpayers' Advisory Association told the commission that the county manager plan is "the only complete answer to both the urban and rural areas" in the county.

The 21-member commission, whose executive committee conducted last night's hearing in Fairfax Circuit Courtroom, was set up by the County Board of Supervisors to consider changes in the government form.

Last night's hearing was the third at which different county groups had appeared. A referendum on the county manager issue probably will be held in November.

George W. Kirkley, vice president of the taxpayers' group said his organization of 150 members is proof that not all the sentiment for the county manager form of government comes from the urban part of Fairfax.

He quoted county figures released Saturday showing that the three rural districts have only 16,809 population against the 81,385 of the three urban districts.

Kirkley said the present representation on the Board of Supervisors favors the rural area and that the county manager plan is "the only complete answer" to both the urban and rural areas.

L. B. Fields, association treasurer, described the county manager system as "an efficient solution" to administrative problems now facing Fairfax.

were cast for H. Keaney Kopp, jr., who withdrew from the race too late for his name to be withdrawn from the ballot. A former Navy officer, he decided not to run in anticipation of returning to active duty.

The Eighth District covers the cities of Alexandria, Charlottesville and Falls Church, and the counties of Albemarle, Arlington, Culpeper, Fairfax, Fauquier, Fluvanna, Goochland, Greene, King George, Loudoun, Louisa, Madison, Orange, Prince William and Stafford.

Yesterday's light balloting, marked by scattered showers and general apathy among voters, was the climax of a listless campaign. There were no major issues and no spirited oratory, except for occasional intraparty sniping between the two GOP candidates.

Krum

Rep. Smith

When the organized opposition to the so-called "Byrd machine" in Virginia failed to enter a candidate—after scouring the district from Alexandria to Charlottesville—it became apparent that the primary would run true to form.

The 67-year-old "Judge" Smith, as he is known in the Old Dominion, was in a position to repeat his performance of 1948. In that primary, he rolled up a 2-1 margin over Souther, a 32-year-old Arlington lawyer.

In the 1948 general election, Smith beat Krum, the 50-year-old chairman of the Fairfax County Republican Committee, by a 4-3 margin.

Yesterday he faced a newcomer in GOP politics in the district. Hughes, a 50-year-old Arlington real estate man, was seeking public office for the first time.

On the ballot in Arlington County was the name of Fred W. Bach, unopposed Democratic candidate for the County Board. He seeks the seat held by Chairman Daniel W. Dugan, an Independent.

Souther, Smith's opponent for the second time in two years, is also a native of Virginia and a graduate of the George Washington University law school. Vice chairman of the Eighth District Young Democratic Clubs, he has fought for the "antiorganization" cause in both his campaigns for Smith's seat.

Krum is a native of Pontiac, Ill. He entered Virginia politics in 1948 after duty following World War I with the Marine Corps and in World War II the Navy as a lieutenant commander. He was a newspaperman in Chicago and with International News Service here in the interim, and more recently was veterans' editor of the Times-Herald.

Arguing that a Republican primary would strengthen the two-party system in Virginia, he was instrumental in having it adopted in the Eighth District in the 1948 race.

His opponent, Hughes, is a former vice president of the Council of Social Workers for West Virginia. A native of Buchanan County, Va., he announced his candidacy in April by saying Democrats and Republicans had urged him to run.

Democrats Renominated in 3 Virginia District Primaries

Richmond, Va., Aug. 1 (AP).— Three Democratic Virginia Congressmen were renominated in today's primary.

Representative J. Vaughan Gary of the Third District pushed well ahead after close early returns to easily defeat Minetree Folkes, jr., fellow Richmond attorney, who also unsuccessfully opposed Gary in 1946.

Representatives Howard W. Smith of the Eighth District, dean of the Virginia delegation, and E. J. Robeson of the First District, the State's freshman congressman, coasted to victories over their opponents. Smith downed Arthur F. Souther of Arlington, and Robeson had scant opposition from Mrs. Katherine C. Blow of Yorktown.

Unofficial returns from 108 of 127 precincts in the Third gave Gary 11,878 votes to Folkes 8166. Robeson was leading Mrs. Blow 4746 to 633 in returns from 40 of 164 precincts in the First, while Smith overwhelmed Souther.

Five other Virginia Democratic incumbents had no primary opposition and a sixth was renominated in convention.

The vote in all three districts was light. Even in the Third, the only district with a spirited race, the voting was far behind that of the Gary-Folkes race of four years ago.

Declared nominated by virtue of having no opposition were Representatives Porter Hardy in the second district; Watkins M. Abbit in the fourth; Thomas B. Stanley in the fifth; Clarence G. Burton in the sixth; and Burr P. Harrison in the seventh.

7 Battles Looming In Prince Georges

As the deadline for filing of candidacies neared last night, seven primary battles appeared certain in Prince Georges County.

Mrs. Benjamin

Forty Democrats and 28 Republicans had filed candidacies when the office of Board of Election supervisors in Marlboro closed for the day. Aspirants had until midnight to file.

Among the latest to file were Mrs. Georgia Benjamin, civic leader and former teacher, of College Heights Estates, and Roland L. Nichols, Laurel builder, for Democratic nomination to the House of Delegates; Maxwell H. Black, of Morningside, a retired General Accounting Office auditor, for the Democratic sheriff nomination, and Mrs. Virginia F. Bryant, of Berwyn, for Republican State convention delegate.

Also, the entire Republican State Central Committee filed for reelection to the party policy-forming group. They are John R. Fletcher of Cheverly, Thomas E. Latimer of Glenn Dale, William J. Griffith of Croome Station, Philip J. Wilkes of Clinton, Mrs. Eva C. Chase of Riverdale, Carlton G Beall of Seat Pleasant, and W. Everett Marton of Laurel.

By 11 p. m., seven more Republicans had filed for delegate to the Republican state convention. They were William R. Rice, Oxon Hill; John N. Tordestad, Colmar Manor; Mrs. Caroline Pike, Riverdale; Mrs. Lydia A. Wood, Chillum; and Willie N. Constantine, Gordon Louk and Mrs. Vera A. Willard, all of Bladensburg.

Two Democrats appeared to have no opposition in either the primary or general elections. They are W. Waverly Webb of Hyattsville, incumbent clerk of the Circuit Court, and Ben Dyer of Cheverly, candidate for county surveyor.

Five primary contests loom for places on the Democratic ticket.

In the primary for 6 House of Delegates seats are Mrs. Benjamin and Nichols and six organization-indorsed candidates. Those receiving party approval are incumbents Leroy Pumphrey, Perry O. Wilkinson, George McLeish and T. Raymond Burch, and Nicholas Orem, jr., of College Park, and Ernest N. Cory, jr., of Laurel, both attorneys.

Seven candidates have filed for five county commissioner posts. They are Incumbents D. Leonard Dyer, Harry W. McNamee and John H. Beall, and James B. Bland, present county treasurer, and Alfred H. Smith, Marlboro sand and gravel business owner, all with party indorsement, and Hyattsville City Councilman Frederick M. Coxen and William A. Neuman, Suitland real estate operator and builder.

Charles F. Leubner, University Park civic leader, is opposing three incumbents for the nomination for three seats on the Orphan's Court bench. Running for re-election are Judges Lansdale W. Clagett, Vincent A. Osterman and William T. McPherson.

State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie is opposed in his bid for re-election by Robert W. McCullough, Beaver Heights attorney. Black is running against incumbent Sheriff T. Ward Martin.

On the Republican side, a lone independent candidate opposes the five party-backed candidates for county commissioner. He is Edward J. (Ned) Waters of Berwyn. Others filing for the posts are Thomas E. Latimer, Glenn Dale engineer; Hyattsville City Councilman H. Wilson Spicknall, James B. Carrico, Riverdale insurance broker; Daniel A. Abbott, Camp Springs real estate man, and W. Everett Marton, Laurel town clerk.

Montgovery Group Files 9-Man Slate for Council

In a surprise move last night the Charter Committee's special committee on council candidates filed a slate of nine candidates for posts on the Montgomery County council.

The slate included five Democrats who were filed for the Democratic primary and four Republicans filed in the primaries for that party.

The nine were:

Democrats: Malcolm H. White, Sunshine, Brookeville District, first councilman district; John C. Pugh, Poolesville, third district; George Lynn Woodruff, Silver Spring, fifth district; William Brent Young, Chevy Chase, and former Mayor John C. Post of Takoma Park, for councilmen-at-large.

Republicans: George F. Nesbitt, Sandy Spring, first councilman district; Lathrop E. Smith, Travilah, Gaithersburg third district; Harold F. Hammond, Silver Spring, only present member of the county council to run for reelection, fifth district, and J. Louis Monarch, Silver Spring, at large.

Allen C. Gardner, charter leader, said the remaining vacancies on a slate of seven for each party would be recommended from the list of those already filed in both primaries.

Meanwhile other candidates filed yesterday with the Board of Election supervisors in Rockville were:

Anders R. Lofstrand, Rockville, incumbent, and Louise L. Dixon, 6803 Fairfax rd., Bethesda, for the Republican nomination for member of the House of Delegates; R. Duncan Clark, now a member of the House of Delegates, of 7903 Chelton rd., Bethesda, and Adolph E. Gude, sr., Rockville, for members of the Republican State central committee; Willard F. Kruhm, Briggs-Chaney rd., Silver Spring, and Gilbert Gude, Rockville, for delegates to the Republican State convention.

Carey E. Quinn, 114 Del Ray ave., Bethesda, filed for the Democratic State central committee.

Frank R. Long of Kensington, perennial Republican candidate, flew in from Maine yesterday to file his candidacy for the Republican nomination for House of Delegates and for member of the Republican State Central Committee.

State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson, who has filed for the Republican nomination to succeed himself, also filed last night for a place on the Republican State Central Committee, of which he now is chairman.

Two other Republican candidacies received late last night were Gordon L. Hawk, 6503 Fairfax rd., Bethesda, and George W. Johnson, Rockville, for delegates to the State convention.

Surprise Entrant

Attorney, 31, Files Against Tydings

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 1 (AP).—Senator Millard E. Tydings, veteran of four terms, suddenly found opposition from an unexpected quarter tonight—in a 31-year-old Baltimore lawyer.

The attorney, Hugh J. Monaghan 2d, filed his candidacy for the Democratic nomination a few hours before the midnight deadline for entering the contest. Monaghan is relatively unknown politically.

A short time later, former Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, who had indicated he might file against Tydings for the Democratic nomination, announced he would not make the race in the September 18 primary.

Philip H. Dorsey, jr., people's counsel to the Public Service Commission, who had intended to file, also changed his mind.

Monaghan previously had filed for the House of Delegates from Baltimore's fifth legislative district. He withdrew from that race shortly before he appeared at the office of the Secretary of State with his formal declaration of candidacy for the United States Senate.

Speculation as to whether Jackson would enter the race reached high pitch during the afternoon when Governor Lane and Mayor D'Alesandro got together with several of their top political advisors.

Word leaked out that Jackson would make the race if he could do it as a partner on the Lane ticket.

But the apparent outcome of the conference was a decision that Lane and his backers would hold to their previous policies.

Mount Rainier Police To Get 2-Way Radio

Mount Rainier Town Council last night voted to spend $475 for a two-way radio for one of its police cars. The other already has a radio.

Truman's Man Trails in Missouri Primary

St. Louis, Aug. 1 (AP).—Former Congressman Thomas C. Hennings, jr., of St. Louis jumped into the lead for Missouri's Democratic Senatorial nomination tonight, passing President Truman's man, Emery W. Allison.

In 3037 of the State's 4676 precincts—650 in Henning's territory in St. Louis and 400 in Allison territorly of Jackson County (Kansas City) the count was:

Allison 121,935 Hennings' 125,935

Other candidates trailed far behind with only a token showing.

The Hennings lead was built on a big St. Louis vote while outstate areas credited to Allison had only light voting for the most part.

In most of outstate Missouri the voting was light.

No disturbances were reported. But Pemiscot County Judge M. R. Rowland asked the FBI to check reports that "truckloads of Negroes" were being imported from Tennessee to vote illegally.

Carlson Leads Colmery In Kansas Primary

Topeka, Kans., Aug. 1 (U.P.).—Gov. Frank Carlson of Kansas, who has never lost a political race, took an early lead tonight in his bid for the Republican nomination for United States Senator.

First partial returns in the Kansas primary gave the 56-year-old past chairman of the National Governors Conference a margin over Harry W. Colmery, former national commander of the American Legion.

The unofficial count in 523 precincts of the State's 2792 was Carlson 26,226, Colmery 15,807.

Edward F. Arn made a flying start in the four-way field seeking the Republican nomination for Governor. The 44-year-old attorney who stepped down from the State Supreme Court bench to make the campaign with the Carlson administration blessing picked up a commanding initial lead over Willard Mayberry, the rugged Westerner who had the support of Alf M. Landon, long a key figure in Kansas GOP politics.

The early tabulations showed Arn 24,151, Mayberry 14,092, Lieut. Gov. Frank L. Hagaman 1253, and Mrs. Kathryn Hitchins, liquor-hating retired school teacher, 95.

The top Demcoratic contest was for the Senatorial nomination. Carl V. Rice, Kansas' Democratic national committeeman who espoused the Brannan Plan and pay-as-you-go Federal spending, was hard-pressed by young Paul Aiken, former Assistant Postmaster General who quit the Washington job to oppose Rice.

In 223 precincts Aikens has 9891, Rice 8117.

State Republican Kenneth Anderson, Emporia stockman and oil operator, moved slightly out in front of State Senator John A. Potucek, Wellington attorney, in the Democratic governorship race.

Rush Holt Takes Lead In GOP Congress Bid

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 1 (AP).—Rush Dew Holt, one-time Democratic Senator turned Republican, started off tonight with an early lead in his bid for a nomination for Congress.

Holt ran in a four-man contest for the Republican nomination in the Third West Virginia District.

In the first 58 precincts of the 505 in the Third District, Holt polled 2772 votes. Clifford Francis of Buckhannon had 146; M. A. Holliday of Garten, 39, and Rufus C. Hurt, Oak Hill bus operator, 704.

Cleveland M. Bailey, the Democratic incumbent in the Third, was well ahead of his only opponent, Samuel X. S. Curia, 3831 to 479, in 52 precincts.

Robert L. Ramsay of the First District, opposed by J. Patrick Beacom, a former State Senator, had a good lead. The first 40 of 418 precincts gave Ramsay 1597 votes and Beacom 843.

The other four Democratic Congressmen were nominated without opposition. They are Harley O. Staggers, Second District; M. G. Burnside, fourth; John M. Kee, fifth, and E. H. Hedrick, sixth.

Three former Republican Congressmen held leads for their party nominations.

Francis J. Love of Wheeling had a slight edge on D. Paul Camilleti of Wheeling and M. Earle Morgan of Fairmont in the First District.

Melvin G. Snyder of Kingwood was ahead of Kermit Mason, Morgantown attorney, in the Second District.

Former Representative Hubert Ellis was behind J. Allen Overton, a House of Delegates member, in first returns but soon moved out to a 2-to-1 lead.

Arnold Porterfield, a former Bluefield police chief, had a strong lead over James Davis of Williamson, former State VFW commander, for the Republican nomination in the Sixth District.

New Airport Now

Far from diminishing the need for a second major Washington airport, the expansion in defense activity actually increases it. Undoubtedly this factor was taken into account by the House Interstate Commerce Committee Tuesday in approving the bill authorizing a new 14-million-dollar civil airport here—a bill already passed by the Senate. Experience during World War II was that the number of passengers handled at the existing National Airport constantly increased. That airport is now operating very close to capacity, and the probable increased military use of Bolling and Anacostia fields means that there will be more complications rather than relief in the congested traffic pattern.

Apart from defense considerations, which call for adequate and convenient air access to the Capital, the move for a new airport is sound planning for the future. Washington National Airport is now the third ranking airport in the country in traffic movement. It handles up to 60 planes an hour in good weather; in bad weather, despite electronic aids, its capacity is cut to about 25 planes an hour. With the advent of jet transports this bad weather capacity, and the impossibility of increasing it, will cause new problems, because jets are not suited for "stacking" for landings. Civil Aeronautics Administrator Renzel estimates that by 1955 the number of aircraft movements here will be 60 percent greater than in 1948, when National Airport was close to saturation.

It is unrealistic to talk of using the new Friendship Airport near Baltimore. That field was built to handle Baltimore traffic. It is many miles from the District, and the distance and time factor is complicated by the lack of express highways. Washington needs another airport of its own. It will not be possible to equal the convenience of the National Airport, but sites are available in nearby Virginia that would meet specifications and at the same time provide quick and convenient access via the Shirley Highway.

Exit Leopold

The Belgian crisis appears at this writing to have been ended by King Leopold's offer to abdicate when his son, the Crown Prince Baudouin, reaches his majority about 13 months hence. Meanwhile, it is indicated that some sort of regency under Prince Baudouin will be set up and that Leopold will resume his life as an exile. Constitutionally, however, the abdication and succession must be approved by the Parliament, where Leopold's supporters, the Social Christian (Catholic) Party, hold a slight but decisive majority. But there is not much doubt that the Parliament will ratify the agreement, which apparently was reached after a series of consultations among the three leading parties. The Social Christians, who had voted to recall Leopold from exile, had proved themselves incapable of governing the country in the face of increasing strikes, riots and other disorders, culminating in yesterday's march on Brussels, which the army made only half-hearted efforts to prevent.

Thus it is a victory for the Socialists, who decreed the strikes, and who were the principal organizers of the anti-Leopoldist demonstrations, although they were pretty generally supported in the French-speaking provinces by persons of almost all political persuasions. The victory having been gained, the strikers have been ordered back to work; the angry bands from southern cities, such as Liege and Charleroi, which yesterday brushed aside the road-blocks hastily thrown up by the military, and invaded the capital in force, have now been urged to return to their homes. The future of Belgium, and perhaps of Western Europe, may depend upon whether they obey.

There is no blinking the fact that the events leading up to Leopold's abdication constituted an insurrection. The history of insurrections has been that they are somewhat easier to organize than to control. Since the beginning of the disorders the Belgian Communists have been working energetically to convert them into a situation of revolutionary violence, and it is not at all impossible that professionals have been dispatched from Moscow to take charge. The Communists of course will now do everything possible to promote dissatisfaction with the terms of the abdication and to provoke further disorder.

In a country so bitterly divided as Belgium appears to be, this may not be impossible. The results of the successive plebiscites and of the general elections last June showed very clearly that a majority of the Belgians were satisfied to have Leopold resume his throne and that the sentiment in his favor was enormously strong in all the Flemish-speaking provinces of the north. Throughout the disturbances, however, the Leopoldists remained quiescent. Nothing, at any rate, has been reported of counterdemonstrations in the King's favor, although doubtless some of his friends were involved in numerous street fights that broke out in Brussels.

One thing, however, is quite clear: that notwithstanding the plebiscites the recall of Leopold at this time was a serious mistake. The lesson of the Belgian crisis is that majority rule is possible only where it is accepted in principle by the defeated minority, unless that minority is so small as to be politically negligible. In other words, there must be some body of principles which are accepted by the great mass of the citizens. In constitutional monarchies the symbol of these principles is the King. The events in Belgium have proved that Leopold was not in this sense King of the Belgians but rather, like Louis XVIII, Charles X, and Louis-Philippe, the king of a party.

Mr. Malik's Antics

Mr. Malik only made himself look foolish in the effort he essayed yesterday to introduce to Lake Success the Soviet brand of authoritarianism in getting rid of the Chinese Nationalist delegate. There is nothing in the Charter of the United Nations which authorizes the president to unseat a delegate to the United Nations. This must be done by vote, and, according to the Little Assembly's interpretation of the veto rule, no veto applies in this matter. The legal majority is 7 out of the 11 members of the Security Council. The Security Council, refusing to be bludgeoned, voted 8 to 3 to deny President Malik's right to refuse a seat to the Chinese delegate. This was not the only irregularity in President Malik's conduct. Under the Security Council's rules of procedure the president shall work out the agenda with the secretary general. This was not done. Mr. Malik simply communicated his agenda to the secretary general, and, moreover, failed to adhere to it. Heading the Malik agenda was "Adoption of the Agenda," but the Russian delegate, instead of opening the meeting with that item, wanted the Chinese delegate thrown out as a preliminary. It was, to say the least, extraordinary conduct—the conduct of a bull in a china shop.

In the circumstances the vote of India in favor of the Russian's highhanded conduct is inexplicable. The Chinese representation issue was not confronted at all. There was no question of credentials. The vote was on whether Mr. Malik was a president or a bouncer. Sir Benegal Rau is an eminent constitutional lawyer, a great draftsman of constitutions, and a purist in their interpretation. Yet he backed Mr. Malik in an outrageous act of arbitrariness which in the highest degree was offensive to the ordered functioning of the Security Council. His dignity, and the dignity of India, surely required that at least he should have abstained from voting. On the merits of the China question, when disentangled from any deal over Korea, we have every sympathy with India's position, but what happened yesterday, in our opinion, prejudiced that position very severely.

Guerilla Tactics

From several correspondents come reports that some of our troops in Korea are trying to fight a European-type war in very different surroundings. Some of the dispatches, indeed, are reminiscent of the experience of the British Redcoats when they first encountered the embattled American farmers firing from behind stone walls during the Revolution. One story tells how North Korean units have learned to sight their guns on schoolhouses on the correct assumption that they would be in use as American command posts. The South Koreans, on the contrary, dig into the hillsides.

The experience in Korea indicates that it is not merely superior weapons that are required, but superior tactics geared closely to the terrain and to the individual soldier. The Communists, apparently, are fighting effectively because they are fighting simply. Guerilla tactics can best be met with guerilla tactics, though, as the British have found out in Malaya, they are not easy to learn. Inexperienced troops diverted from occupation duties, of course, are poorly prepared for this sort of war. Perhaps guerilla tactics cannot be learned thoroughly until men are face to face with them. But Americans once knew the value of concealment, of individual forays, of subrosa war—from the Revolution on to the Pacific war. As the country seeks to augment its strategic striking force with augmented ground forces capable of handling other "police actions," certainly intensive training in guerilla tactics ought to be a must.

Food Aplenty

The report recently put out by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics proves the truth of the President's assurance that the only food shortages this country need fear are those we artificially create. Supplies of food are expected to continue at about the same high level as in the past two years. Wheat and corn will be plentiful; stocks of most storable foods are "fairly substantial"; and the meat supply will be at least as good as last year. Furthermore, exports of food products are smaller than in previous years, and military purchases of food are not expected to have much effect on over-all demand.

With current production at high levels, and abundant stocks of many commodities on hand, 1950 per capita food consumption will, it is estimated, be 11 percent higher than the 1935-39 average. Of course if hoarding persists, prices will continue to advance, and available supplies of some commodities will be concentrated in the hands of the selfish few at the expense of the many. The result will be sporadic shortages in the midst of abundance—a sure road to price control and rationing.

However, the recent advance in food prices is not entirely due to scare buying. For the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported a pronounced rise in family food costs in the month preceding the outbreak of fighting in Korea, while its over-all cost-of-living index on June 15 was higher than at any time since January, 1949. The BLS wholesale price index covering some 900 items has also been rising since the beginning of this year. Increased employment and the high level of consumer income are the reasons assigned for this creeping inflation. People can afford to buy more food and other goods. Consequently, even if the hoarders are routed, the pressure of larger demands on available supplies will lead to further price increases.

To curb an upward price movement stemming from excess purchasing power, taxes should be increased, tighter restrictions should be imposed on credit, particularly consumer credit, and a vigorous savings bond campaign inaugurated. These are anti-inflation measures that strike at the root causes of those price increases not attributable to speculation or hoarding. If undertaken promptly they may make it unnecessary to resort to direct price controls. In any case, such indirect controls would reduce the pressure of buying demand, and make it easier to administer any system of direct price controls that might become necessary, if less drastic methods proved ineffective.

Blow To Loose Spending

It would be difficult to overestimate the significance of the resurvey of nonessential appropriations ordered by the House Appropriations Committee. In a time like this everyone is for economy in nondefense items, but few are willing to stand the gaff of actually slashing funds that seem to be within the grasp of favored agencies. Congress usually wants the Administration to do the economizing, and the Administration is always reluctant to pare. Accordingly the House action is extraordinary.

This newspaper has resisted and will continue to resist blind slashing of appropriations that makes no distinction between essential and nonessential expenditures. Such indiscriminate economies might easily do more harm than good. But it must be apparent to every intelligent citizen that when the country is forced to spend additional billions for defense, every luxury item in the budget ought to be eliminated, and every project that can be postponed without damage to the defense effort and maintenance of a sound economy should likewise be lopped off. As Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee says: "Our national debt is too large, our commitments too heavy and the danger of inflation too great to permit deficit financing of the Korean campaign." That put the case in a nutshell.

Nor is the avoidance of new debt and the diversion of funds into defense channels the only reason for sharp economies in nonessential spending. With American soldiers dying in Korea, with others being called into military service, with taxes about to be increased and civilian restrictions multiplying, the Government ought to be setting an example in economy. How absurd it would be to say that everyone must tighten his belt and prepare for new sacrifices, except governmental agencies!

So the public will welcome this new effort to trim nonessential spending to the bone. "Spenders as usual," indeed, will find in November that high credit will be given to the men, such as Representatives Cannon and Taber and Senators Douglas and Byrd, who have led the fight for elimination of "pork" from the gigantic appropriations for fiscal 1951. In the present climate of world affairs the readjustments they are seeking are an imperative part of the task of readying the United States to meet its inescapable obligations.

Diligent Court

Many Washingtonians must have been impressed, as we have been, by the fact that the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia is continuing in these dog days of summer to hand down opinions. That is not the usual practice. Courts are customarily in a state of suspended animation from June to October. To be sure, the District Court continues to hear criminal cases and any emergency matters, and many individual judges continue working through much of this period. It is well to remember, also, that judges need time for reflection and background reading. Otherwise they could not well sustain all year round the intensity of operations during the fall, winter and spring months. There are many who believe, however, that the traditional vacation period is unnecessarily long, and it is especially notable that the Court of Appeals is whittling down its backlog of undecided cases ready for hearing by following a different practice.

The Court of Appeals does not hold regular hearings after July 1, although it stands ready to take emergency cases at any time. But the judges continue to write and hand down important decisions in cases that have been previously argued. Thirty-four decisions were handed down in July. All criminal appeals are cleared up by this method and all civil cases involving important public issues. Thanks to this diligence on the part of the judges, and the addition of three judges to the court last year, its backlog of cases ready for hearing is sharply dwindling. Last year 64 cases ready for argument were carried over compared to 23 such cases this year. By encroaching upon the judicial tradition in order to shorten the law's delays, the court is further enhancing its high standing in the public confidence.

Excess Profits Tax

In drafting a new excess profits tax law would it not be well to provide for a difference in the tax treatment of increased profits arising from expanded production as distinguished from higher profits due to increased profit ratios? It is clearly desirable to encourage expansion of output. On the other hand, high profit ratios contribute strongly to inflation and are generally to be discouraged. Flexible exemptions and rates in an excess profits tax law could do much to achieve these desired goals.

Take for example a taxpayer which under normal conditions had sales of one million dollars on which it earned 10 percent or $100,000 before taxes. Under previous excess profits tax laws in such a case all income over an exemption of $100,000, after minor adjustments, would be classed as excessive and be subject to punitive taxes regardless of the manner in which it was earned. But surely an increase in profits to $400,000 arising from an expansion in sales to four million dollars is far less excessive in character than the same amount of profits resulting from a doubling of the profits ratio to 20 percent on sales of only two million dollars.

A differential in treatment of these two types of income might be accomplished by providing for an increase in the amount of the exemption in some proportion to the increase in sales reported by the taxpayer. Having increased the exemption the excess profits tax rate could then be increased drastically as the profit ratio rose above the percentage normally earned by the taxpayer. By a judicious selection of increases in rates and in exemptions it could be made more profitable to produce large quantities of goods at normal profit ratios than to turn out smaller quantities at higher profit ratios.

Baruch Control Plan

Every loyal American should support Elder Statesman Baruch in urging economic mobilization as to rationing and as to the freezing of prices and wages.

Our embarrassing food surplus clearly shows that rationing is not because of shortages, but is needed as a curb on profiteering; is needed to permit the functioning of the law of supply and demand. Profiteers are notoriously noisy or silent about that law according to the greed-needs of the moment.

Too little and too late as to economic mobilization was what ran up the most of World War II into totally needless figures. The very ones who complain the loudest about that cost, are again fighting controls. Once again, our front-line youth and the average John Q. Public are being called upon to make all the sacrifice.

Thus far, the course of our President lies between the demands of money-greed and the counsels of wisdom. He well knows the weight of the clubs available to those of his opponents who follow the line of "politics first-and-always."

Backed by widespread voter approval, economic mobilization can become a patriotic reality—not a mockery camouflaged by loud cries for "patriotism" on the part of others.

I am fanatically opposed to Government controls ordinarily, but in emergencies like the present, I am just as fanatically in favor of them, and as to prices, I think they should be retroactive, at least to July 1.

I have found no one who is opposed to wartime controls. We would be safer if we listened to the Baruch plan.

Propaganda Ammunition

Democracy is engaged in a life-and-death struggle with international communism. One of the potent weapons in this struggle is propaganda. Soviet Russia is making effective use of this weapon to tell other peoples about the defects of democracy in the United States. They assert that Washington, D. C., the self-styled capital of the world's greatest democracy, is actually antidemocratic in two respects: first, because it clings to segregation in its schools, restaurants, theaters, churches, etc., and, second, because its inhabitants are denied the elementary right of local self-government.

These charges are only too true. One wonders if the business class who control this city realize how much harm they are doing their country's cause by their opposition to democracy in Washington.

JOSEPH BAILEY.

"Tito's Dilemma"

Taking note of your July 28 editorial, "Tito's Dilemma," Yugoslavia aligns herself with the democratic powers against the Soviet Union, we should proceed to examine our own dilemma in the face of it, as well as how we can profit by the situation. It is not wise to insist that Yugoslavia's cooperation with the United Nations' measures against the North Korean aggression "would amount to a repudiation of the theoretical basis of communism."

Marxist-Leninist theory, with all its dogmatism, still has room within it for enough twisting and turning to leave open the question, on theoretical grounds, of who "represents a purer application of the Marxist-Leninist gospel." You settle the matter much too simply by pointing to Trotsky's insistence that the Soviet Union must be supported in spite of its unworthy leader.

You overlook the Utopian promises of Marxism which are important in the hold it has on the minds of its devotees. The earthly leaders must inevitably be false to them so that one side of the "true doctrine" requires rebellion against those leaders. We should take advantage of this in our propaganda. If the Titoists find the authority in the writings of Marx and Lenin to take a stand against Russia, let us not weaken their resolution.

Household Hints For Hoarders

Get in there and shove, Mama.
Push the others out of the way, Sis.
Strip the shelves to the bare boards
Where lie the tiny droppings of midnight mice.
Buy anything and everything.
Clean out the store.

Then run to the wrapping counter
Pursued by the barehanded
As barnyard hens pursue the lucky one that has a choice piece of offal in its mouth.
This still being a free country
Every citizen has certain inalienable rights.
Among them the right—especially dear when the Nation's life is at stake—
To be a hog; or, if that sounds offensive, a buzzard.

Buy tea, coffee, spices, canned goods—anything.
Store it, hide it, bury it. If you should ever be questioned about it, lie in your teeth.
There's no sweeter fat than sticks to your own bones.

Ignore the President. Give him the razzmatazz.
You're no godless Communist trying to destroy this country; a blind but destructive termite.
On the contrary, you're a church-going, tax-paying, God-fearing patriot, with a passionate interest in yourself; your illimitable, eternal, inexhaustibly fascinating, immitigably precious self.

So think now, as men die for you,
Of your Gut.
Of your dear, precious, well-beloved Gut,
Of the whole 228 feet of it
Coiled in your abdomen.
In time of peril men instinctively think of what is most precious to them.
Soldiers die for an inch of ground.
But don't revere them for it. That's easy.
For, as simple arithmetic reveals,
You must stand guard over 2736 inches of Gut.

Well-larded, coiled, greedy, peristaltic Gut.

The ancients believed that the soul resided in the bladder.
But you and I know better, don't we?
It lies in the Gut.
In the well-larded, greedy, peristaltic Gut.

Be sure to store plenty of sugar.
If your neighbor can't get any, that's his fault.
For, as the Good Book says,
Where there's no vision the people perish.

—And soap. Remember how the song goes?
"Soap and water will surely wash you clean."

Sugar's good to have in time of war.
Its sweetness cuts the gall-bitter taste of defeat which, to the palate, is as the stinkingness to the nose of the pus-running wounds of soldiers.
Be forehanded with sugar, you can have your cake and eat it too,
One layer blood-red in your memory of the war dead,
In tender token of your patriotism,
And example to your children.

Grab all the nylons you can.
Legs, too, win wars.
Grab 'em before they become parachutes.
Lucifer, you know, thrown from Heaven's battlements,
Fell from dawn until dewy eve.
Well, by God, there's nothing he did that a GI—your own son perhaps—can't do.

In short—this is my final advice—
Buy everything that isn't nailed down.
Go the whole hog, as we say.
And if the worst comes to the worst,
If the Bomb gets you,
You will die with a full Gut,
The larder overflowing,
History recording that you were caught napping
But not—as a good American—caught short.

Time Off From Work

By Malvina Lindsay

How Much Needed?

THIS MONTH the tide of vacationists reaches its flux. For these relaxing millions, Capital controversy over how much annual and sick leave a Government employe should get has significance. For Government standards are likely to influence the rising vacation demands of the privately employed.

Time off—for vacation, sickness, personal business—is becoming an ever bigger question as industrialism increases. Defense needs may lessen its pressure. But more and more it demands the attention of management, labor, medical authorities.

Legislators sponsoring the Senate rider to curtail Government annual and sick leave insist that Uncle Sam is much more liberal about time off than is private industry. Most Federal employes now get 26 days annual and up to 15 days sick leave. If combined with weekends, this amounts to about five weeks annual, and three weeks sick leave. The Senate rider would cut this to 20 days annual and 12 days sick leave and deny leave to a worker until he had been in continuous Government service a year.

This raises the questions: What is the general vacation policy trend in industry? How much time does the modern worker need? How good an investment—for employer as well as employe—are vacations?

NO COMPLETE statistics on vacation practices are available. But studies of representative companies show that on routine jobs with a five-day week, a two-week vacation, with an additional week for length of service, is widely prevalent. The trend is to give older employes, executives, and department heads longer vacations.

As to sick leave, the American Management Association found in a limited survey little uniformity of policy. Generally sick leave increased with length of service, special consideration being given to individual cases.

Dr. William A. Sawyer, medical director of the Eastman Kodak Company, together with Dr. Edwin C. Holmblad, managing director of the American Association of Industrial Physicians and Surgeons, conducted one survey of vacation policies. Dr. Sawyer gives his ideas on vacations in an article, "Vacation Policy Trends" in the June issue of Industrial Medicine.

This brings out the steady growth of importance of the paid vacation in American life since 1900. Yet the European idea of the vacation as a health builder (through visits to health resorts and spas) has not yet found much acceptance here. Americans on their time off want to go places, see things, have fun.

However, the medically directed vacation appears to be on the way. Physicians are urging it in an effort to slow down the alarming rate of physical breakdown among executives in their fifties.

A STRONG exponent of the health and efficiency value of vacations, Dr. Sawyer advocates frequent and more extended rest periods for employes working under pressure, those who carry executive or other responsibilities, and those who "take their work home with them." For all workers he would have the kind of vacation that produces less "rigidity of attitude . . . gives freedom from mounting fatigue and ennui."

The split vacation (when it is more than two weeks) was favored by many of the companies in Dr. Sawyer's survey. This gives a period of six months between rests. A majority of companies required vacation time to be completed in a year, not held over, as an aid to workers' efficiency. Some permitted employes of long service to accumulate vacation time to take extended trips.

Dr. Sawyer thinks the country is moving in "the right direction" toward vacations for more workers, longer vacations, granting of vacations as a reward for past service and to conserve health. He points out that 25 years ago two-week vacations were limited chiefly to office workers and executives. Now factory workers are included, four out of five being eligible if service records meet requirements.

Government employes feel their time off problems are different from those of the privately employed. Being "public servants" they must account for all absences. Since it is not permissible, as in private industry, to grant time off for personal business, they feel they need extra annual leave.

The national emergency, which has helped precipitate congressional action on Government leave, may affect private vacations as well if manpower gets short. But the general trend is definitely toward giving the worker sufficient time to renew himself so that he may be an asset to his employer.

"Freedom Isn't Free"

During the present crisis we need a national campaign to make every American conscious of his or her individual responsibilities to this Nation and the world.

As a slogan or rallying cry I suggest:

"Freedom Isn't Free," and after this a challenge or reminder such as: "How Much Yours Cost?" or, "Are You Willing to Pay For Yours?" or, "You Can't Buy It With Hoarded Sugar."

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

The Prize And The Risk

Joseph Alsop is flying to Korea. His reports on the war there will soon appear in this space.

SINCE the Korean attack, the Soviet rulers have suddenly found themselves in an astonishingly favorable military position. But they know that this favorable position will not last indefinitely. The Soviet reaction to these twin facts will largely determine the course of future events.

Now that the United States, having no honorable or rational alternative, is fighting in Korea, the Soviet rulers have been confronted with a new, and almost certainty unexpected, situation. The inadequate existing American conventional forces have been wholly committed in Korea. And throughout the rest of the non-Soviet world there is a yawning military vacuum.

The case of Japan provides perhaps the most striking illustration of the nature of this vacuum. The greatest concentration of American military power outside the United States has been in Japan. Yet the simple fact is that, since Korea, the rulers in the Kremlin can quite rationally hope to gain control of Japan without committing any Russian military forces at all.

ON THE one hand, since Korea, the only military strength on the Japanese islands consists of a single American division; American air units wholly committed in Korea, and a decentralized and therefore virtually impotent Japanese police force. On the other hand, the Kremlin controls the Japanese Communist Party, which has been ordered to prepare for "direct action," and which runs the vital transport and telecommunications unions; 300,000 Japanese prisoners in Siberia, most of whom have received paramilitary training, with at least a division and probably more organized and equipped for combat; and the indoctrinated Japanese prisoners already returned to Japan.

Thus it would be remarkably easy for the Kremlin to arrange a "people's uprising" in Japan, against the "white chauvinists and American imperialists." While the remaining American occupation forces and the local police had their hands more than full dealing with sabotage, a "people's army" of Japanese prisoners could be landed in the northern island of Hokkaido from the Russian-held part of Sakhalin. And it would be virtually impossible to disengage the American forces in Korea in time to deal with this new threat, particularly if the Chinese Communists simultaneously tied down the Seventh Fleet with an attack on Formosa.

THIS IS a nightmare. But it is a nightmare which is taken with grim seriousness by those in close touch with the situation, especially since there have been intelligence reports that the Soviets were establishing a "Japanese people's government" in North Korea, and the fact that the Kremlin has this sort of capability even in American-held Japan merely serves to underline the tempting military opportunities which exist right around the borders of the Soviet sphere.

Moreover, the Soviet rulers must certainly be considering carefully one compelling reason for taking further advantage of these opportunities in the near future. This is that the extraordinary favorable Soviet military situation will not last very long. The United States and its Western allies have now most publicly announced their intention of replacing existing weaknesses with future strength.

Thus perhaps in two years, perhaps in three, the whole basis of the Soviet world strategy will be undermined. Soviet strategy has been based on a series of demonstrations of Soviet strength and Western weakness, designed to ensure a progressive crumbling of the Western will to resist. When the West is strong, this will no longer be possible.

Moreover, once the West is strong, the Soviet rulers will in turn be faced with the danger of losing control of their vast, unwieldy empire, and ultimately of the Soviet state itself. Thus the whole logic of their situation would seem to compel the Soviet rulers to strike again, and again, to seize vital positions while the opportunity to do so still exists.

THERE is just one reason why the men in the Kremlin may hesitate. Again Japan provides a convenient illustration. However disguised as a "peoples' revolt," a Soviet-sponsored attack on Japan would almost certainly mean a general war, because the United States is formally committed in Japan. A general war would mean the use of the American atomic stockpile against the Soviet Union. Thus the prize, although Japan is the greatest prize in the Orient, may not seem worth the risk.

Yet the risk must certainly seem less grave to the Soviet rulers in those other areas—Burma, for example, or Iran, or Yugoslavia, or Finland—where the United States is not formally committed. In such areas the prize may seem well worth the risk. This is why serious consideration is being given in certain quarters to a formal warning that the United States will consider any aggression by the Soviet Union or its satellites as an act of war. There are obvious and grave disadvantages to such a course. But there are able men who are coming to believe that only thus can peace be preserved.

Demand For Controls

By Marquis Childs

Why Congress Heeds Baruch

NOT VIRTUE alone but political necessity seems likely to persuade Congress to add price and rationing controls to the limited powers over the civilian economy requested by President Truman. Congress is being flooded with angry letters on the subject of soaring prices.

Childs

Almost more than the military setbacks, the fact of spiraling prices has apparently stirred widespread indignation. Hamburger at 85 cents a pound and coffee at 90 cents are understandable to everyone, including millions who six weeks ago had never heard of Korea.

The next stage will be new wage demands. No matter what their own convictions, union leaders will have to go along with those demands if the cost of living has increased substantially.

All this explains why Democratic Senators ordinarily with the Administration are bent on the added controls advocated by Bernard M. Baruch. Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Senator Lister Hill of Alabama are both for the Baruch proposals. Humphrey has received thousands of letters protesting the price increases that press down hardest on teachers, civil servants and people living on pensions and small fixed incomes.

Humphrey says that in the mass of mail and telephone calls there has not been one protest against the possible imposition of price and wage controls. Even businessmen are urging that action be taken as quickly as possible.

Many of the letter writers refer to the difficulties they underwent in the first months of World War II before effective price and rationing controls were imposed. Some come from persons trying to complete homes in the face of price boosts in material and equipment.

THE LIKELIHOOD is for standby powers which would give the President the power to impose price and wage controls when he felt they were necessary. The pressure from Capitol Hill would be all for immediate use of the powers to roll back prices to the level of June 25 or earlier. On that date, when the Korean attack began, there had already been some inflationary upward push, due in part at least to a war scare psychology.

Some in the Administration are troubled by a major doubt over use of price and rationing powers—can they be enforced in the present phase which is somewhere between cold and hot wars? Thousands of willing volunteers are essential to make a rationing system work. The doubters fear that the same people who are now engaged in hoarding and price gouging would create a black market that would defeat the controls.

Senators concede the difficulties in enforcement. But they quickly add that a really stiff tax program would sop up most of the superfluous purchasing power and make enforcement comparatively easy.

The reaction of the public, or at any rate a large and articulate section of it, in favor of rationing and price control is one more illustration of how the Korean war has upset the political applecart. Political guessing about the November elections was altered completely on June 25.

MOST politicians who are candid confess today that they are still in the dark. The Republicans intend to go all the way in exploiting the tragic inadequacy of American forces in Korea. They believe the party in power will inevitably take the rap for defeat and retreat.

If Congress gives the President power to control prices and wages and, if thereby the economy is stabilized, it may do much to ease the grumbling at home. At the very least it would encourage the belief that all were being treated alike.

Should this come about, Baruch could properly take the credit. Without his bold call for sufficient powers, backed by his prestige in Congress, such a move would scarcely be even a remote possibility.

In urging the steps he considers essential, Baruch was certainly not thinking of the political future of the Democratic Party. President Truman broke with him in the campaign of 1948 when Baruch declined to become chairman of a fund-raising committee. Baruch has not visited the White House since then, although he was a frequent visitor prior to that date.

Baruch is convinced that failure to put in adequate controls at once will open the way to an inflationary spiral. Office holders seeking reelection are fearful that people will blame the "ins" for the squeeze of high prices, and will therefore vote for the "outs." So between these two pressures Congress may take the plunge.

Union Members Set by BLS at 14 to 16 Millions

By The Associated Press

The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), issuing a new directory of labor unions yesterday, estimated union membership at between 14 and 16 million.

That doesn't answer the question whether unions are gaining or losing in membership. The last directory, two years ago, estimated the total at approximately 15,600,000.

The government doesn't know exactly how many people belong to unions. BLS officials tried to get the Census Bureau to obtain the true picture but Census said it had enough questions to ask already.

One uncertainty is the CIO. It used to claim 6 milion members, and this claim was reported in the 1948 directory. The CIO has recently expelled six left-wing unions of unknown total membership, and now it issues no membership claim at all. This year it declined to tell the BLS how many members it has.

The Gallup Poll

Public, by 5–1 Vote, Sanctions A-Bomb Use if WW III Comes

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

(Following is one of a series of reports to be made during coming weeks by the Gallup Poll on how the American people are reacting to the war in Korea and its underlying implications.

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 1.—American public opinion at this stage overwhelmingly sanctions use of the atom bomb by the United States if we get into another world war, according to the vote in a national survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

The controversial issue of whether to unleash this mammoth weapon of destruction against enemy cities is answered in the affirmative by the overwhelming proportion of almost 5-to-1 in the survey. Here is the actual vote:

"What is your own opinion about our using the atom bomb if the United States gets into another world war—do you think we should use it, or not?"

Yes	61%
Qualified yes	16
No	16
No opinion	7

The principal answers of persons who gave some qualification to their approval were as follows:

"If others use it first."
"Only as a last resort."
"Hold off as long as possible."

The vote compares with an 85 percent majority who, in 1945, shortly after the first atom bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, said they approved using the bomb against Japanese cities on the grounds that it would shorten the war and thus save lives in the long run.

The Hiroshima bomb was dropped just five years ago this week, August 6, 1945.

Fear Russian Bomb

The great majority of Americans believe that Russia would not hesitate to use atom bombs against us.

Seven out of every 10 voters in today's survey think Russia does possess atomic weapons and virtually all of these believe she would use them against American cities in a war. Here is the vote:

"Do you think Russia has any atom bombs?"

Yes	73%
No	11
Don't know	16
	100%

Those persons in the survey who said they thought Russia has the atom bomb were asked:

"Do you think Russia would use the atom bomb on American cities, or not?"

Yes, she would	66%
No, she would not	4
No opinion	3
	73%

Tracing American View

Approval of the development of atomic weapons has been a keynote of American opinion ever since the first use of the bomb five years ago.

When church leaders and others were calling upon the American Government to stop producing any more atom bombs and to destroy those already made, the public stood firmly in favor of continuing to make them, judging by Institute surveys.

When scientists last spring announced that it might be possible to make an even more destructive bomb—the hydrogen bomb—and raised the question whether such a weapon should be produced, the public voted overwhelmingly in favor (nearly 5-to-1) of going ahead with the hydrogen bomb project.

In today's survey it is noteworthy that persons with a college education are somewhat less in favor of our using the atom bomb in case of war than are persons of high school or grade school education only. However, all the groups show a heavy vote in favor.

gather supplies and equipment for trainees. But it would depend on regional national defense offices for such things as medical supplies in bulk. The national organization is to have stocks of bandages, for example in great supply dumps in strategic spots over the Nation, ready for instant movement into any damaged area. Thus each city will not have to hoard duplicate supplies.

The training program will be in line with the national program, now being drafted by the National Security Resources Board's civilian mobilization office, headed by Paul J. Larsen. Each State is expected by next spring to have a law similar to the one approved for the District yesterday by the House and sent to President Truman. Only about 10 States now have such laws. A gathering of State government officials in September will be given the latest NSRB plans, including the District law. Washington is a sort of pilot model for the Nation.

In an emergency here, the civilian defense director would give commands and orders to every operating city official, including the police and fire chiefs.

Mutual Aid Agreements

Because of the city's close relationship with nearby Maryland and Virginia suburbs, the bill passed yesterday calls for mutual aid agreements with those States or their cities and counties. These agreements could cover exchange of food, clothing, medicine and other supplies; emergency housing; engineering service; police services; medical and nursing services; fire-fighting, rescue, transportation and construction services and equipments and so on.

There are immense problems awaiting the new director. Some area fire fighting equipment can't be hooked in to District fire plugs because of differences in hose sizes; there is a shortage of ambulances in the area; too many radio and other communications facilities are dependent on single sources of electric power; doctors are too concentrated in downtown Washington.

The bill approved yesterday was the version passed last week by the Senate. Chairman McMillan (D., S. C.) of the House District Committee got the House to agree without debate to several Senate amendments. They include a requirement that civil defense personnel must be cleared by the FBI for loyalty and must be subject to civil service.

GOP Backdown Clears Way For Permissive-Control Move

in the legislation. And the regulations "must be written in a form which allows wide discretion and flexibility as to the method and place and timing of application."

Meantime, in the House, the Republican Policy Committee agreed to grant the authority on a standby basis. GOP leadership apparently abandoned an earlier plan to support a bill that would have provided an automatic and immediate price and wage freeze.

Later in the day, the author of that bill, Representative Kunkel (R., Pa.), told the House he had modified it so that the automatic and compulsory provisions were removed, and discretion left with the President on when to put it, or parts of it, into operation.

Feature Objectionable

Even so, the Kunkel bill contains many features objectionable to the Administration. Furthermore, it fails to include all the powers the President asked on previous occasions, notably authority to curb real estate credit and to control commodity exchange trading.

Accordingly, when Kunkel moves today to substitute his measure for the Administration control bill, Democratic leaders plan in turn to offer a permissive wage, price and rationing control bill as an addition. Whatever measure emerges should be voted on before the day is out.

On the Senate side, Maybank's committee spent a day in closed session and approved, title by title, the original "Defense Production" bill submitted by the executive branch. Several modifications were made, but all of a technical nature.

Today, still in executive session, the committee will go on to consider the matter of the price, pay and rationing regulations.

Senator Capehart (R., Ind.) will offer an amendment calling for a complete and immediate price and wage freeze for six months at levels as of June 30. This is expected to be voted down handily.

Thereupon, either Maybank or Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.) will propose permissive controls, leaving to the Administration the right to fix prices and wages, in toto or selectively, and to ration such goods as he chooses to consumers. The timing and the method of administration, whether by existing agencies or a new organization, are left to Mr. Truman's discretion.

Approval Is Expected

This amendment is expected to be approved.

Thus it appeared last night that the Administration will soon get all the powers is asked for and—principally through Republican agitation—additional, infinitely more drastic control authority, that it did not ask for at this time.

Ironically, that additional authority is just what the President asked for in every one of his economic messages since the war except the one this year—standby price, wage and rationing power—and just what the Republicans considered anathema.

In his letter to Maybank yesterday, Mr. Truman said he had considered asking for them again last month, when he sent his post-Korea economic message to Congress. But he decided against such a request, he said, because he felt Congressional consideration of these broader grants might delay enactment of the immediately needed authority spelled out in the defense-production bill.

If Congress wants to go ahead and give him the added authority, Mr. Truman said, that was agreeable to him, provided this entailed no delay, and did not diminish the controls requested in the first instance.

The defense-production bill gives the President the power to allocate scarce materials and items to defense needs, to set up priorities for their acquisition, and to requisition materials and facilities needed and not otherwise obtainable.

It also permits the Administration to guarantee loans, or lend directly, to industries engaged in expanding defense production operations. Finally, it lets the President set regulations governing the extension of credit for installment buying, home and other building, and real estate purchase.

Guam Citizenship Bill Signed

President Truman yesterday signed legislation granting American citizenship and limited self-government to the people of Guam. He issued an executive order transferring administrative responsibility for the island from the Navy to the Interior Department.

The strategic island, westernmost possession of the United States, has been governed by the Navy since it passed to United States control at the end of the Spanish-American War in 1898.

In outlining his much-debated "civil rights program" three years ago, Mr. Truman called for establishment of civil government on Guam as a "long-overdue" reform.

He signed the organic act, which provides for an elected legislature on Guam, at a White House ceremony attended by congressional leaders, Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman, Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews and Carlos Taitano, Guam's legislative representative to Congress.

Under terms of the act, bills passed by the Guamanian legislature may be vetoed by the civilian governor appointed by the President. Carlton F. Skinner, appointed governor last year, already is in Guam preparing for the transfer from Navy jurisdiction.

Guam has a population of 58,754, of whom about 27,000 are natives.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Cotton futures were weak for the second consecutive session today. Closing prices were down $1.75 to $2.60 a bale and at the lowest levels for the session.

Heavy selling came into the ring at the start of dealings and carried through until the final bell. Dealers reported that there was a large amount of hedges placed by cotton merchants.

The selling accompanied news that the Government this week sold some 300,000 bales of cotton from its 1948-49 pooled stock. Last week on Tuesday, the Government sold an estimated 223,000 bales.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP).—Grain futures mostly were higher today in light trading, but soybeans and ard moved downward rather sharply.

Most traders apparently were waiting on the sidelines pending the United Nations meeting later in the day and clarification of Russia's stand on the Korean war.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅝ higher, corn ½ to ¾ higher, oats ⅜ higher to ⅛ lower, rye ¼ higher to ¾ lower, soybeans 2⅜ to 4½ off, and lard down 32 to 37 cents a hundred pounds.

Wheat Acreage Is Boosted for 4 Major States

The Agriculture Department yesterday announced 1951 wheat planting allotments providing for increased acreage in the great breadbasket States of Kansas, North Dakota, Texas and Oklahoma.

The national planting goal was set two weeks ago at 72,784,810 acres, slightly more than 1950. The department hopes for a crop of 1,150,000,000 bushels of wheat next year as a guarantee of plentiful supplies in view of the war.

The State allotments announced today give Kansas 14,077,057 acres, as compared with 13,839,120 this year.

Texas was allotted 6,263,158, pared with 6,068,356 this year.

Oklahoma was allotted 6,347,358, compared with 6,081,134 this year.

World Bank Shows Gain In Profits

The World Bank announced yesterday its net income or profits increased to $13,698,398 in the fiscal year ended June 30, from $10,610,247 the year before.

Income of the 48-nation institution has exceeded expenses by $27,339,492 since operations were begun three years ago, the Bank said.

In addition, a $13,737,205 special reserve has been built up as a cushion against possible future losses.

The Bank increased its loan commitments from $650,100,000 to $816,445,000 during the fiscal year. Actual loan disbursements totaled $614,162,160 at the end of the period.

Gross income for the year was $25,464,065, not counting $5,663,064 set aside in the special reserve. The gross compared with $21,578,423 in the preceding year.

Expenses totaled $11,765,667, including $4,370,011 in administrative expenses and $7,395,656 for bond interest and other expenses. In the preceding year, expenses totaled $10,968,166.

Total subscribed capital amounted to $8,348,500,000 on June 30, but the Bank said this would be reduced 125 million dollars when it buys back the shares of Poland, which dropped out of membership.

Cooley Sees Missouri Basin House Action

Representative Cooley (D., N. C.) said yesterday the House may act this year on the Administration proposal for a 30-year 8½-billion-dollar agricultural program for the Missouri River Basin.

Cooley, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, told a reporter House action depends upon whether Congress remains in session, or takes a lengthy recess over the fall elections.

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan appeared before the committee earlier in the day to ask congressional authorization of the huge program, which he first proposed last year.

Brannan said this would be tied in with the 5½-billion-dollar Pick-Sloan plan for flood control, irrigation, navigation, power development and other water uses already under way in the Missouri Basin.

The cost of the 8½-billion-dollar agricultural program, Brannan said, would be borne in this manner: $3,063,167,000 as the Federal share, $4,995,623,000 by the landowners and operators, and $428,267,000 by State and local governments.

The Secretary asked for an initial authorization of one hundred million dollars to get the program under way. He said a similar amount would be needed each year for 30 years.

New Mediation Effort Set In New York Guild Strike

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—A new effort to mediate the seven-week-long strike against the New York World-Telegram and Sun was announced late today.

A Federal mediator announced that another mediation session would be held Thursday—the first in nearly a week.

The paper earlier today had shut its doors and announced the plant would stay closed until the strike is settled.

The strike of some 400 editorial and commercial employes, members of the CIO American Newspaper Guild, stopped publication of the newspaper from the start.

Mechanical union members have refused to cross Guild picket lines.

Executives and some other employes had been reporting for duty at the newspaper offices before today.

The union's principal demands are for arbitration of firings, including economy dismissals, and a 9-out-of-10 Guild shop.

Grain Elevator Strike Ties Up Waterfront

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 1 (U.P.).—A walkout by 500 grain elevator workers idled 4500 other workers today and tied up the Buffalo waterfront.

The 500 grain elevator employes walked out yesterday and approximately 4500 workers in related milling industries refused to cross their picket lines today.

Fifteen huge grain elevators, having a total capacity of 50 million bushels, are directly affected.

The elevatormen, members of Local 1286, grain elevator employes, AFL International Longshoremen's Association, staged their walkout yesterday after management rejected demands for a 15-cent hourly wage increase. No new negotiations are scheduled.

Weirton Obeys Order On Independent Union

Pittsburgh, Aug. 1 (AP).—Weirton Steel Co. today bowed to a court order and said it will withdraw recognition of the big Weirton Independent Union.

Weirton, one of the top independent steel companies of the country, was found guilty last week of contempt of court for failure to dissolve the company-sponsored Weirton Independent Union, Inc.

Weirton, President T. E. Millsop said the company will maintain wage rates and all employe benefits now in force through a contract with the union.

Woman Employe Kills Prowler At Fort Meade

Fort Meade, Md., Aug. 1 (AP).—A woman civilian employe living on the post took a gun after a prowler early today and killed a 30-year-old recruit.

Military authorities withheld the name of the victim pending notification of his kin. They indicated no charges would be placed against the woman.

The post's public information officer said a neighbor warned the woman about 4 a. m. that a prowler was outside her house. She fired three shots out a window.

The man was picked up by a military ambulance and died at the station hospital about 10 minutes after arrival there.

Crisp Musical Ribs Some D. C. Foibles

By Sonia Stein

"HOW ON EARTH" may be housed in a tent, but it's no tent show in the usual sense. The lively musical, produced by Canvas Theater, Inc., got off to a several-times-postponed start Monday night in a large and relatively airy tent just across the District Line on Georgia ave.

It is fresh and crisp as to costume, clean as to limb and dirty as to line—a highly professional enterprise, that way. It is also, unfortunately, a bit saggy in the skit here and there. Primary difficulty is that satire appeals to a sharp mind, and a sharp mind may find this satire not sharp enough.

The author, Todd Stanton (who also wrote music and lyrics and directed the project), wisely keeps his material centered around jokes peculiar to Washington and rarely, bless his restrained typewriter, feels it necessary to explain them.

He does an excellent job on Capital Transit foibles. His car cards include you-know-who's layaway plan and his characters include the young lady who wouldn't travel any other way but Capital Transit—not as long as her picture is hanging on every bus and trolley.

Then there's another skit involving Cupid's Partner, a woman thinly disguised as Cora Hayne. Regular readers of our Washington social notes will have no trouble unscrambling the name Beryl Chesta, although this Beryl and our Pearl don't have anything alike. (In fact, I wonder if Canvas Theater, Inc., may not have overstepped itself a bit here.)

'HOW ON EARTH,' a Canvas Theater, Inc., musical, produced by Hal Gould. Written and directed by Todd Stanton. Music by Stanton, played by Robert Gordon and Richard Thomas at twin pianos. At the Theater Tent on Georgia ave., Silver Spring.
CAST — Marilyn Wallace, Corinne Cohen, Kenneth Donner, Natalie Bailey, Barbara Brodt, Richard Miller, Beth Walton, Jeanne Viner, Todd Stanton, Pat McGowan, Hal Gould, Rozelle Bolton, Jimmy Smith, Gill Murray, Linda Harper and Bill Olsen.

The basic plot involves three creatures from another planet, Eno, Owt and Eerht (try them backwards), who come to D. C. on a three-day tour, landing their rocket ship in Rock Creek Park somewhat beyond the point originally planned, since it now has an amphitheater on it. It seems that thinking on THAT project was so confused that the poor outer planet people couldn't pick up a single clear thought impression.

RICHARD L. COE is on vacation. His column will be resumed on August 23.

The characters in the skits include a pair of former Gayety girls who are woefully unhappy working in a drug store, making ice cream items like the "sicleesweet throwup," but who wind up, fortunately, putting bumps into the "Sexycentennial" minuets.

A Very Good Actor

Stanton's embryo talents have already brought him a curious route—from St. Louis Civic Theater to Pasadena Playhouse to Columbia Pictures in Hollywood to Broadway and to the Labor Department. However, he is now quite a big frog in his little puddle, being performer—immensely good, too—as well as author of all the sounds, musical and otherwise.

The rest of the cast is mostly local and some of the members are alumnae of "The Frantic Few," a nightclub group which Stanton and Producer Hal Gould once assembled at the Mardi Gras. The current production, which will run two weeks or longer as the audience demands, is in better taste than the Mardi Gras turn.

The talent lined up is all enthusiastic, leggy and reasonably clever. Marilyn Wallace, sister of the late Vanities star, Beryl Wallace, makes an imposing Eno. A Nancy Walker type comedienne, she's dowager shaped where necessary but trim around the ankle as musical comedy women must be. Gould, just back from an extensive "no soap" stay in Hollywood, is a toothy and handsome mortal who sings enough to serve a useful as well as decorative purpose on stage as well as in the producer's office.

Kenneth Donner, a dancer of the Ray Bolger type, plays Eerht in high style—born of experience in a number of movies, including "Meet Me in St. Louis" and "The Yearling." The others are all in there swinging away. Linda Harper, a pretty girl with a sweet and gentle voice, is a bit lost in all the frantic (that much is left of the night club routine) proceedings, but she comes into her own with Stanton's lively "Spring Is Always Where You Are."

It's Smartly Styled

Biggest star of all is Milton Ritzenberg, business manager, who doesn't appear on stage but who managed to ante up enough cash so that the show could have good sets (by Abe Rogatnick) and smart dressing.

Performances are nightly at 8:40. Saturdays at 2:40 as well. Tickets available at Ward Radio Record Department in Silver Spring, Schwartz Pharmacy, 1700 Connecticut ave. nw., and at the Tent itself after 7:30. Phones in the same order are SH. 6700, DE. 3161 and SL. 8500.

Next show on the bill will also be musical, but not original. The company hopes to run through October, flaps down. Summer nights, flaps are up for air.

YO-HO-HO AND HERE'S AN UNTIDY VILLAIN—Robert Newton plays Long John Silver, the cutthroat pirate of Robert Louis Stevenson's children's classic, "Treasure Island," which Walt Disney has produced in Technicolor with human actors. The picture, an extra long one, opens today at Keith's at the early bird hour of 9:30 a. m.

A Story of Southwest Builds Suspense From a Quiet Start

"THE LAWLESS," which opens today at the Dupont Theater, starts out so slightly, it seems about to slip between the boards before anything can develop. But something does develop—a series of "unfortunate" incidents in which a frightened Mexican boy accidentally hits a policeman during a brawl, and steals a car to escape. In the course of the hounding—played up for all its sensationalism by a newspaper in a neighboring town—the boy is accused of attacking a young girl, of assaulting an officer and—in short—has the book thrown at him.

The basic cause of the incidents is the friction between the young people of Mexican descent and the white-skinned population in a small town in the Southwest. The young bloods on both sides take easy offense, so there's usually some fisticuffs between them.

Lalo Rios, in his first screen appearance, plays the frightened boy with sensitivity and a realistic amount of good, honest sweat.

Embittered Editor

The fugitive's flight and the conditions leading up to it are unfolded to the audience as they are unfolded to a young newspaper editor who has given up the war correspondent business to get back to the mocking birds in a small town. As the town roughs up the boy, it takes to roughing up the editor's shop, leaving him momentarily embittered and ready to desert back to Bleeck's bar in the shadow of the Herald Tribune. But a girl reporter of Mexican descent (and Irish good looks, if I may so observe) who helped him see the injustice being practiced on the boy, also helps him see the virtues of sticking around.

The chief hitch in this picture is Gail Russell, the girl with the Irish good looks. To begin with, she evidently eats razor blades and has damaged her voice to the point where she can scarcely speak above a whisper—a form of dramatic intensity I find interesting only in moderation or in Margaret Sullavan. Her role, unfortunately, is that of a girl with a chip on her shoulder and a morose expression, obviously ready to plead the cause of democracy if she gets shortchanged at the corner grocery store.

Since MacDonald Carey is making decent headway through the picture as a man who has at last decided to praise Mother's Day and let somebody else take up the cudgels where he dropped them on controversial matters, Miss Russell's sullen and intense preoccupation with the large things in life is painfully out of place. Eventually, Carey comes around to her way of thinking, if not her behavior, and they doubtless go through life winning causes together. This is not to say that causes do not need to be fought for, but it is to say that young ladies who breathe hard over them are more useful than charming.

Citizens Are Extras

The picture is admirably directed by Joseph Losey, who uses the people of Marysville, Calif., as extras in the presentation which, Miss Russell's performance excepted, is as real as the ground underfoot.

The television industry takes a terrible beating from Screenwriter Geoffrey Homes, who presents a TV station's newsman in a grossly unflatering light. Homes' newspaper people are at least split—a Sob Sister from a neighboring town, the sensible Mr. Carey and Miss Russell in calico armor.

"The Lawless" has more suspense in it than you'd suspect from its quiet opening, and it packs a reminder that every community has a scapegoat minority. It's just the color and the accent that differ with the point on the map.—S. S.

Milk Rule Compromise Set

forbidden. It is made unfeasible, however, by the system used for rating dairy farms.

Under the permanent regulations dairy farms shipping to the District are inspected by the Health Department and scored on the basis of a possible 100 points.

They must score 70 to be eligible to ship here. If they use steam to sterilize, they are given 15 points. No points are awarded for chemical sterilization. (It will be Seckinger's job now to decide how many should be given it.) A farmer using chemicals could conceivably score better than 70 points. But since dairies pay premium prices on the basis of points scored, it wouldn't be good business for such farms to ship to the District, health officials said.

The Commissioners deferred action until Thursday on several other proposed milk regulations, Stofberg said. These had to do with milking parlors, bacteria count and medical examination for farm workers. There was little discussion of them at the three-day hearings held last month.

Court Action Promised

Chief supporters of chemical sterilization have been two independent dairies—Embassy and Wakefield. Robert E. Lynch, attorney for Embassy, last night promised court action "if there is any great difference between the ratings given for chemicals and steam."

The Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association which had been the strongest opponent of chemical sterilization indorsed the commissioners' decision. The association's office manager, W. B. Hooper, called the action "very wise . . . it shows they're aware of the danger of lowering the quality of milk."

Medical opinion in the District sided with the independent dairies. Stofberg said that a meeting called by Seckinger last week of milk industry representatives and medical men use of chemicals was approved by a six to one vote. Only dissenter was the producers' association, Stofberg said. Those voting for it, in addition to the independent dairies, Stofberg said, were Seckinger, spokesmen for the District's white and Negro medical societies, the United States Public Health Service and the medical director of the American Red Cross.

Chemical sterilization became an issue last spring when it appeared the Commissioners were about to ban milk from farms not inspected by the District Health Department. Imported milk had been permitted to enter the District since 1942 when the local supply proved inadequate.

Last winter the producers' association, which controls about 85 percent of the District's supply, told the Commissioners that local supplies were adequate and asked them to rescind the wartime order.

Independents Protest

The independent dairies, which depended on the outside sources for much of their supply, protested. A ban on outside milk would force them to buy from the association at higher prices, they said. At the same time they gave strong support to Seckinger's proposal to permit chemical sterilization.

If the cheaper chemical process were permitted, they argued, many farmers now shipping elsewhere would send their milk to the District. When the Commissioners gave temporary approval to chemicals, the independents proved their point by rounding up 300 farmers who immediately applied for District permits. Health officials said 167 of their farms have been inspected and approved.

League Leaders Lose 14-Game Winner

Curt Simmons, Phils' Best, Called to Active Duty

INDIANTOWN GAP, Pa., Aug. 1 (AP).— Southpaw Pitcher Curt Simmons of the Philadelphia Phillies today became the first Major League baseball player called to active duty with the Armed Forces as a result of the Korean war.

His loss will be a terrific jolt to the club's pennant hopes.

By coincidence, another Phillies pitcher, Hugh Mulcahy, was the first Major Leaguer drafted into the Armed Forces for World War II. Mulcahy served more than four years in the Army, and never was able to compile a winning record after he came back.

Simmons has been a member of the National Guard since shortly after his eighteenth birthday when he received a $65,000 bonus for signing a Phillies contract. Since the Korean crisis began his status has been a big question mark to Phillies fans who have visions of their first pennant in 35 years.

Simmons, a private with the headquarters battalion, Twenty-eighth division artillery, Pennsylvania National Guard, has been here since Saturday participating in the division's annual two-week summer encampment.

He had just completed arrangements to fly to Philadelphia to pitch tonight against the Cincinnati Reds when his division was called to active duty, to report later this month.

CURT SIMMONS
. . . First to Go in '50

Simmons, 21, has won 14 games and lost only five to rank at the top among National League pitchers. He has been a principal factor in keeping the Phils at the top of the league standings.

Governor James H. Duff said the division will report for active duty within 30 days. It will train at Camp Atterbury, near Edinburg, Indiana.

Simmons had left the encampment by car when the order federalizing the division was made public. He drove to Harrisburg, 20 miles away, and flew the 90 miles to Philadelphia.

Because of the Federal order, Governor Duff announced, the Division will cut short the scheduled two-week training period, and will break camp Sunday. Simmons—like other members—then will have some time at home to adjust his personal affairs and, presumably, pitch a few more games for the Phillies. He possibly could pitch six or seven more games this month, and might reach the 20-game winner circle.

However, he will be lost to the club for the September stretch drive when, as it now appears, the Phils, Dodgers, Cards and Braves will be battling for the pennant.

This morning Phillies officials had declined to confirm or deny reports that Simmons would pitch the second game of the scheduled twinight double-header. However, it was announced here that Simmons and any other soldiers in the encampment without specific duty assignments are free each evening from retreat, at 4 p. m. (EST) to roll call (4:45 a. m.).

Maj. Gen. Daniel B. Strickler, commander of the division, said the Phillies specifically requested that Simmons be granted a pass to leave the military reservation in order that he might to go Philadelphia to pitch.

The Twenty-eighth Division was notified it would train at Camp Atterbury, Ind., which seemed to limit the possibilities of Simmons' appearing with the Phils after his division is federalized.

Except for the possibility of a weekend pass which might permit him to fly to Philadelphia and return, he would be within range of the club only when it plays at Cincinnati, St. Louis or Chicago, and would have to obtain at least an overnight pass to reach these cities.

There was no official comment available, but presumably Simmons while on active duty would be able to spend any leave as he chooses, and so might be able to return to the club when circumstances permit.

Meanwhile, in Cincinnati,

HUGH MULCAHY
. . . First to Go in '41

Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler announced the National Defense list rules, as adopted by organized baseball during World War II, have been re-activated as of today for Major League baseball.

The original National defense list regulations, Chandler explained, were adopted so that baseball players called into military service would retain their status and "not lose any time in baseball" during the time they were in the armed forces.

Chandler explained that the order today affected only the major leagues but that it also would apply to the minors as soon as they vote approval.

Two of the major provisions of the World War II national defense list rules provided:

That any player accepted in any branch of the armed service "shall automatically be placed on the national defense list and shall not count in the player limits of his club until removed from such national defense services list;"

That a player on the national defense list "must be reinstated before he can be unconditionally released."

Smith Goes Fishing On Treasure Island

Finds Out About Indians, Skunks

By Red Smith

STURGEON BAY, WISC., Aug. 1 (NYHT).—Duncan Thorpe, a somewhat reformed newspaperman who now serves the Door County Chamber of Commerce as personal publicity man for every fish that lunches along this peninsula's shores—he thus has more clients than all other public relations counselors put together—came around with a proposal.

"Why don't you leave off killing these small mouth bass," he said, "and go pick on something your own size?"

Red Smith

His idea was to take on the large mouth and the northern pike and other critters which tenant Lake Muckasie, on Chambers Island. Chambers is a bright green-and-yellow swatch of sand and woods in the middle of Green Bay, about four miles long and nine miles by balky outboard from the mainland village of Fish Creek.

On the island there is a lake and in the lake there are two small islands and when it rains, naturally, there are little lakes on these island and tiny islands in them, and so on and on.

Buried treasure, which is still there brought Chambers Island its earliest distinction. A century or two ago, two mutineers snatched the payroll for Fort Howard, at the mouth of the Fox River in the tip of the bay, and fled by boat. When they were collared, and probably hanged, in Chicago they said they had buried the swag on an island in Green Bay with a shoreline of tall sand banks. There's only one sand island in this whole area.

AFTERWARDS CHAMBERS supported a year-around colony of commercial fishermen until the lake trout and whitefish quiet these waters. Sam Insull, the Midwestern utilities tycoon, built an airfield and golf course on the island and was developing it as a summer resort when the depression came and he had to lam for Greece with the law at his heels.

Nature has scrubbed out all trace of his handiwork. There are now four cottages on the island, only one occupied this summer. There is a small Coast Guard station, there is a lighthouse, and what few campers and yachtsman drop in are outnumbered by deer 200 to 1. Wherever you talk, you tread on deer tracks.

Mr. Thorpe furnished provisions, guide service, large pack containing two Eiderdown sleeping bags, a boat, and an outboard. Motor and boat had sat out in the rain all summer. At 11 a. m., the expedition was ready to start. By noon, the boat was too, having been bailed. By 1 p. m., the motor responded, having been cranked scarcely more than 500 times.

THE BAY SPARKLED like the eyes of a hungry blonde. The bluffs of the mainland towered cool and green. The strawberry islands were emeralds nestling in rumpled blue satin. The golden banks of Chambers shimmered on the horizon. It was beauty to be sipped and savored slowly. When the outboard quits every half mile and the passenger cranks, you travel slowly, you savor everything.

At length the boat limped into a cove, was made fast to a ruined dock, and the duffle was stored in an abandoned boat house occupied by barn swallows whose young yeeped bitterly at the intruders from their nests of mud and grass up in the rafters. The lake wasn't a quarter-mile distant. Fishing started immediately.

Mr. Thorpe took the oars and a trolling lure was put out. Lake Muckasie is richly undergrown with weeds something came up out of the vegatation, splashed once as it hit the lure, dived and departed, leaving the hook loaded with greenery. Mr. Thorpe rowed close to one of the islands and anchored. Fishing started in earnest, the host using a casting rod, the supercargo working with flies.

Mr. Thorpe brought in a northern pike, just about the legal size of 19 inches. The critter fought with frantic speed when hooked, then cold and came in like a dead stick. He was sent home with a wounded mouth.

THE SUPERCARGO, preparing to cast upwind, let his fly sink while he reeled up slack line. When he tried to lift the fly there was a legal large mouth bass attached to it. The bass had co-

Nats Lose To Tribe, 8-2; 11 for Wynn

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Cleveland, Aug. 1.—Cleveland moved to within a game of second place in the American League pennant scramble by disposing of the Nats, 8-2, tonight before 16,864 customers.

Early Wynn put the Indian sign on his former Nat teammates, restricting them to 10 hits and slamming his second home run of the season in recording his eleventh victory.

Wynn's catcher, Jim Hegan was his biggest helpmate with a double, triple and his thirteenth home run, driving in four runs.

Vernon Homers

Mickey Vernon tried bravely to keep the Nats in the game by connecting for his fourth homer, a double and two singles, but his two runs batted in weren't enough.

Wynn shut out the Nats with two hits in the last four innings.

Vernon got Washington off to a 1-0 lead in the second with his home run over the right-center-field fence. But Wynn quickly got that one back by smashing his homer over the dead center field fence, 410-feet away, off Sid Hudson, Washington's starting pitcher, who was gunning for his eleventh win, but got his eighth loss instead.

In the fourth, the Indians made it 3-1 on Joe Gordon's single, Bob Kennedy's double and Hegan's triple. Vernon knocked in the second Nats' run in the fifth, with his two-bagger scoring Yost, who had singled.

Tribe Gets 3 More Runs

Cleveland stretched its 3-2 lead to 6-2 in the fifth after Hudson had retired the first two batters. Al Rosen singled, and Sid walked Luke Easter, Gordon and Kennedy in a row, forcing over a run. Hegan then socked his two-run double.

When Hudon was pulled for a pinch-hitter in the sixth, Al Sima, just back from an appendix examination in Washington, came in. The Tribe massaged him for a run in the sixth on Lou Boudreau's single, Yost's error and Easter's hit.

Off Elmer Singleton, who appeared for the Nats in the eighth, Hegan hit his homer, Cleveland's 115th of the year, equalling the club's entire 1949 production. Wynn struck out seven Nats, and left 13 stranded on the bases.

Bosox Club Browns Again

St. Louis, Aug. 1 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox continued their domination over the St. Louis Browns tonight as they scored an easy 7 to 3 victory. It was their 14th win in 15 games with the St. Louisans this season.

Mel Parnell, although plagued with wildness, coasted to his eighth victory. Extra base blows by Walt Dropo and Bobby Doerr accounted for four Redhose runs.

Palica Victor, 3-1, After 21-12 Triumph

Brooklyn, Aug. 1 (AP). — Erv Palica pitched Brooklyn to a 3-1 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the regularly scheduled game tonight after the Brooks had whipped the Pirates, 21-12, in the continued game of June 24.

A home run by Pete Castiglione prevented the young righthander from pitching a shutout. The victories moved Brooklyn into third place over Boston, which lost to St. Louis tonight.

The victory moved the Dodgers into third place, past Boston's Braves, who lost to St. Louis.

Preacher Roe received credit for the first game, which was a continuation of the suspended game of June 24. It gave Roe a record of 14-6.

Palica spun a five-hitter and struck out eight as he bested Cliff Chambers in a pitching duel. Carl Furillo and Roy Campanella provided the hits that enabled Brooklyn to win. Furillo scored Duke Snider and Jackie Robinson with a first-inning double. Campanella hit his twenty-fifth homer with none aboard in the eighth.

In the game which was started on June 24 the Dodgers led, 19-

Boyer Halts Braves On 6-Hitter, 6-1

Boston, Aug. 1 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals regained the National League's runner-up berth tonight when their rookie right-hander, Cloyd Boyer, turned back the Boston Braves, 6-1, with a six-hit pitching performance. The last four Cardinal runs, however, were unearned because of Tribal infield miscues.

The Cards clinched matters against starter Bob Chipman by combing his left-handed slants for two runs on three singles in the fifth inning.

Tommy Glaviano connected safely for the third time and Chuck Diering singled Rice home with the fourth St. Louis marker.

Both Glaviano and Diering tallied when Roy Hartsfield juggled Stan Musial's grounder.

Chisox Coast In as Pierce Holds A's to Five Hits, 8 to 1

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP).—Lefty Billy Pierce limited the Philadelphia Athletics to five hits and pitched the Chicago White Sox to an 8-1 victory before 8079 persons tonight to gain his eighth triumph.

Chico Carrasquel, rookie White Sox shortstop, extended his consecutive hitting streak to 20 straight games by collecting two of Chicago's nine safeties off Ed Burtschy and Bobby Shantz. Shantz allowed but two hits during the final five innings.

Switch-hitting Dave Philley started the White Sox offensive with his No. 12 home run into the right field seats, batting left handed. It came in the first inning against the right handed Burtschy, the A's starter who was kayoed in the third.

A walk and three straight singles produced a pair of Chicago runs in the second, and Burtchsy left during the third when the White Sox shelled him for three hits in making the score 6-0.

Phils Split; Reds Chase Simmons

Philadelphia, Aug. 1 (AP).—Army-bound Curt Simmons had a special pass from the National Guard, a special airplane ride to Philadelphia but only a defeat for his efforts tonight as the Cincinnati Reds drove him from the box and defeated the Phillies 4 to 1 in the second game of a doubleheader tonight.

His teammates pounded three Cincinnati pitchers for a 6-4 decision in the opener.

The defeat was Simmons' sixth of the year as against 14 victories. But the Phillies held to their three-game first place margin as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Boston Braves.

While Ewell Blackwell pitched a four-hitter, Simmons, in defeat was the whole story of the twin bill played before a standing room only crowd of 34,728.

The blazing fast baller just was not himself. On his feet from reveille at 5:15 a. m. until he arrived shortly before game time, Simmons fell before the Reds' bat, and a very humid night in the fourth inning.

Stan Lopata's first home run of the season was the Phillies only run off Blackwell.

In the first, Rookie Bob Miller won his tenth game in 12 starts although he needed help from Fireman Jim Konstanty in the ninth.

Del Ennis hit his 23d homer to help Miller.

The Reds teed off on Miller in the first inning for three runs on four hits and an error by Third Baseman Willie Jones. Johnny Wy-

Wertz Hits Two Homers, Trout Wins

Detroit, Aug. 1 (AP).—The Veteran Paul (Dizzy) Trout, with a big assist from Vic Wertz's booming bat, turned back the New York Yankees, 7 to 3, on a six-hitter tonight as the Detroit Tigers boosted their American League lead to a full game over the New Yorkers.

Trout was a last-minute pitching selection when young Art Houtteman, who was supposed to start, came up with a sore muscle in his side an hour before game time.

The 35-year-old veteran responded with a nifty pitching effort as he notched his seventh win as against two losses before 54,087 jubilant fans.

Wertz's continued torrid hitting streak was the sparkplug of the Tiger attack as he slammed out a pair of homers to run his total to 22, seven of them in the last five games. That tied a record set by Babe Ruth in 1921 and equalled Jim Bottomley of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1929.

His first four-bagger came in the third inning after Jerry Priddy had singled and it sent the Tigers into a 2-0 lead.

New York picked up a single run in the fifth as Yogi Berra tripled and came home on an infield out. They moved out in front 3-2 when big Johnny Mize hit his eleventh homer, a two-run wallop.

But then Wertz took charge of

Frank Watt Better After Heart Attack

Pitcher Frank Watt, 47, of the Metropolitan Police baseball team is in "good" condition and has been removed from an oxygen tent following a heart attack, Dr. James A. O'Keefe, police surgeon, said yesterday.

Watt, a private attached to the Fifth Precinct, collapsed Monday night after hurling eight innings of a 13-5 victory over the McKee Pontiac team.

Watt complained of feeling tired and was relieved at his own request. He watched the rest of the game resting on the grass. As he was leaving, he collapsed and was taken to the hospital by his son, Frank, jr., 16, and Pvt. James Salt, jr., of the Third Precinct.

Teammates speculated that the attack spells the end of the pitching career of Watt, who has won nine games and has only a single loss this year. Watt lives at 5016 Newport ave., Glen Cove, Md.

2 Dell Boys Defeated at Kalamazoo

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 1.—Tim Coss and Ted Rogers of Washington, D. C., won opening matches here today in their quest for the National Junior Tennis crown.

Rogers, the eastern interscholastic titleholder who attends the Landon School in Washington, drew a bye in the first round and then defeated Herb Browne of Columbia, S. C., 6—4, 7—5. Ted is seeded No. 10.

Coss, the District of Columbia junior champion, trimmed John Sahratian of Detroit, 6—0, 6—3, in a first round match.

things again as he opened the Tigers' five-run sixth inning by banging Byrne's first pitch for his second homer of the night to tie it at 3-all.

Byrne was nipped for a pair of singles and three walks before he was yanked with the bases loaded, two out and Detroit out in front, 7 to 3. George Kell greeted reliefer Ed Ford with a two-run single that boosted the Tiger margin to 7-3.

That was all ol' Diz needed as he gave up only one single in the last three innings. That was a liner off Berra's bat in the ninth but Trout forced pinchhitter Tommy Henrich to hit into a game-ending double play.

Gal 'Big Leaguers' Play Friday

A bigger and lighter ball, shorter bases, and a slight variation of the uniforms will be the only things out of the ordinary when the Chicago Colleens meet the Springfield Sallies in an All-American Girls Baseball League game Friday night at Griffith Stadium.

The gals will wear shorts and will play on a diamond with the bases only 72 feet apart and a pitcher's mound only 55 feet from the plate.

Striped Bass in Upper Bay

Hardhead Fishing? Best Bet Is in Lower Patuxent River

By Ralph Murdock

SO FAR THE STRIPED bass have furnished the bulk of the fishing in the upper Chesapeake Bay. The croakers, which formerly represented the majority of the catches in this area, are conspicuous by their absence—except when taken by the haul seiners.

Murdock

If you must go for hardheads, our suggestion is the lower Patuxent River, between Broome's Island and Point Patience. In our book, they have never left the Patuxent.

In order to discover more about the habits of the striped bass and assist greatly in the scientific research program of the species, R. J. Shaeffer and the Salt Water Sportsman Magazine have put on a tagging contest. Tags and instructions for placing them on fish are supplied at no cost by the above.

Among the clubs, the Stanford, Fish and Game Association of Stanford, Conn., holds top position in this conversation program. Edward Morrell, of Riverside, Conn., is the individual high man in the tagging contest.

MORRELL HAS TAGGED and released nearly 200 stripers so far this season. He has already recaptured some of his tagged fish. Full details of the contest may be obtained by writing to Salt Water Sportsman—136 Federal st., Boston 10, Mass.

THE FIFTEENTH ANNUAL Chesapeake Bay Fishing Fair will be held at Crisfield, Md., on August 18-20. Thomas H. Brindell succeeds Edgar Bowen of Solomon's Island, as President of the organization. Brindell and his aids have already started the ball rolling and intend to make the fair a memorable one.

One of the highlights of the fair will be the third annual running of the Hard Crab Derby on Saturday afternoon, August 19, when crabs from many other sections of the State will compete with local entries.

The crabs are placed in the middle of a ring and the one crossing the line first is the winner. Several heats are run. Governor Lane of Maryland and Governor Carvel, of Delaware, are among those expected to enter crabs.

A TOTAL OF 150 prizes and trophies will be awarded. Awards for the biggest fish of 10 varieties will be given. Also prizes for lady and children anglers, the oldest, youngest, prettiest, etc.

operated by hooking himself and now he co-operated by coming in without a kick or struggle.

Mr. Thorpe caught several northerns and released them with an expression of repugnance. Up here, northern pike which run smaller than cows are treated with inexpressible disdain. The Wisconsin attitude toward these varmints is expressed by a friend who was fishing in the north woods.

He came back to camp one evening with several wall-eye pike and one large northern. He offered the northern to his Indian guide who declined without thanks. Having no facilities for refrigeration, the angler cleaned his fish and hung them from a tree limb where he thought they'd be safe overnight.

He miscalculated. In the morning, there was unmistakable evidence that a skunk had visited the premises. The wall-eyes were entirely consumed; the northern was untouched. "Which provd to me," the man has said, that neither a skunk nor an Indian will eat northern pike."

Ike Williams Reports Here Friday for Bout With Salas

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz

Cash Leave Payments To Service Entrants Approved by Senate

Federal employes who enter military service will be paid in cash for their accumulated annual leave under an amendment to the general budget bill adopted yesterday by the Senate.

Senator Gurney (R., S. D.), who offered the amendment, told his colleagues:

"I know that if a person enters the armed services he has many extra financial obligations. He will not have time in which to take annual leave. I know such a person would like to leave a little money at home, and I believe that the Government wants to pay him in cash for the leave he cannot take under such circumstances."

The Senate also approved a committee amendment that requires Federal workers to take annual leave earned this year prior to June 30, 1951. A similar amendment approved by the House would force employes to take this year's leave by December 31, or else lose it.

The Gurney amendment will have the approval of the Administration. It would simplify record-keeping if Federal agencies could pay off annual leave to men and women who join the armed forces.

On the other hand, the Administration is determined to kill the Douglas-Williams-Kem rider that would wipe out leave benefits for all Government people who have less than a full calendar year of continuous service. Under it, an employe hired as of last January 2 wouldn't be allowed to earn leave of any kind until January, 1952, nearly a two-year period. Defense officials say the rider, if approved, would hamper recruiting for war work.

The same rider would whittle down annual and sick leave for per-diem and classified employes to 20 days' annual and 12 days' sick leave, a provision also opposed by the Administration. A similar amendment by Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) was defeated earlier this year in the Senate by a substantial majority. However, his leave-cutting drive has picked up congressional support since that time.

The Administration takes the position that Congress shouldn't change the leave system until after it makes a thorough study of the entire question. At the direction of Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, such an inquiry is being conducted jointly by the Budget Bureau and the Civil Service Commission. The results and conclusions will not be ready for several weeks.

P. & M. A.: Merrill Collett has been appointed personnel director of Agriculture's big Production and Marketing Administration. A Navy veteran, he conducted personnel studies for the Public Administration Service and he transferred here from Bonneville Power, where he was its personnel chief.

TRANSFERS: Representative Whitten (D., Miss.), a member of the House Appropriations Committee, yesterday proposed in a House speech that the Government set up a system to transfer employes from nonessential to vital war jobs.

He said he favored such a system over the plan of the committee to restudy and cut back appropriations of the nondefense agencies. The committee is on record for a general cutback plan and its subcommittees are ready to begin work on it.

It's a good bet, however, that Civil Service eventually will come up with a proposal to channel employes into war jobs. It has been delaying action until after the budget is approved and until it can be determined how many surplus nondefense employes need to be transferred.

TREASURY: William Parsons, the able administrative assistant to the Treasury Secretary, is slated to be appointed to the newly created Little Cabinet post of Administrative Assistant Secretary at $14,000 salary.

ORDER: That proposed order to cover an estimated 50,000 war service and temporary employes with at least two years of continuous Federal service into permanent Civil Service jobs is well on its way. It has been approved by both the Civil Service Commission and the Justice Department. The President is likely to sign it in the next several days.

Grand Jury Sits Late on 2 Hush-Hush U. S. Probes

Subpenas Indicate Suspicion Police May Have Tapped Hughes' Telephone

The District grand jury sat until 6:20 p. m. yesterday as the Justice Department presented two secret cases, including a wire-tapping investigation in Washington.

Testifying for more than an hour was Detective Sergt. James G. Bryant, now on the sex squad, and once an investigator for Police Lieut. Joseph Shimon, when Shimon was head of the squad in the United States Attorney's office.

Shimon was the subject of a secret police report probed later by the Justice Department. The report, according to published statements, was about wiretapping activities during the Senate War Investigating Committee hearings concerning multimillionaire Howard Hughes in 1947. According to the stories, one of Shimon's aides tapped Hughes' telephone at a hotel here.

The Justice Department has kept mum officialy about the grand jury investigation. They won't even admit the case is under consideration, but subpenas in the case say it concerns wiretapping and criminal conspiracy charges.

Also, with the exception of one man who would not identify himself, all of the witnesses before the grand jury while the wire-tapping case is going on have been Shimon's former aides.

Part of the grand jury sessions yesterday concerned a second case presented by the Justice Department. Details of this case also were kept secret.

D. C. Gets Loan Of $26,000 for Hospital Plans

The Housing and Home Finance Agency approved a $26,000 loan to the District yesterday for advance planning of a $7,191,000, 400-bed addition at Glenn Dale Tuberculosis Sanitorium.

This was one of 10 projects for which the District Commissioners last April decided to ask a total of $246,000 in planning funds. The act under which they sought the loan stated that construction on the projects should be started in three years or a good reason given.

District Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young said yesterday he thought the District would proceed with the Glenn Dale planning now despite uncertain building conditions. Even if construction had to be postponed, the District would have made a start on a much-needed project, he said.

In addition to the added beds, plans call for more staff housing and office space, a recreation building and other facilities at Glenn Dale.

E. A. Press, District sanitary engineering official who prepared the requests, said all but one have been forwarded to HHFA. Another item which the commissioners originally agreed to seek—$80,000 for added sewage treatment facilities—has been deleted because money was made available in the District's 1951 budget, Press said. This reduced the total sought to $166,000.

Hospital Affected

Main Burst Cuts Water In Arlington

A 24-inch Arlington water main broke shortly after noon yesterday, leaving a large number of homes in the northwest section short of water for almost five hours.

Children waded knee-deep in the flood caused by the break, at 9th and N. Lexington sts.

W. I. Jeffries, chief of the Arlington Water Department, said a 16-foot section of the main apparently was cracked about noon by a private contractor's crew excavating for sewer construction with a power shovel. He said service was normal by 5 p. m.

No flood damage was reported to Arlington police. Arlington Hospital was without water for three hours, but authorities said an emergency supply is always kept on hand.

Navy Veteran Found Dead Beside Rifle

Frank Castle, 39-year-old Navy veteran, was found dead yesterday in his room at 1081 Wisconsin ave. nw., a gunshot wound in his head.

A .22-caliber rifle lay on the bed beside the body, police said. Castle apparently had been dead since Monday night. In the room with the dead man was his young puppy dog.

Police learned Castle had quit his job as a driver for the Acacia Moving and Transfer Co., 3045 K st. nw., Friday, and the following day had returned to the transfer company and picked up wages due him, as well as a .22-caliber rifle belonging to another employe.

Castle's employer said he had contracted malaria in the South Pacific during World War II while serving as a Navy medical corpsman attached to the First Marine Division.

Airport Bill Reaches House Floor Quickly

Unanimous Approval Given Measure by Commerce Committee

Legislation authorizing a second civilian airport in the Washington area was sent to the House floor yesterday with the unanimous backing of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

The widely indorsed bill won committee approval in exactly the same form as it passed the Senate several months ago.

Representative Lindley Beckworth D., Texas), who steered the bill through the House committee, said he would seek final House approval as soon as possible.

He said he was not sure whether the measure would have to pass through the Rules Committee before it can reach a vote on the floor.

The way was further cleared for windup action on the proposed 14-million-dollar project when Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) said he "will not attempt to stop it."

While the bill carries no specific site, most speculation has centered on locating the terminal at Annandale in Fairfax County, Va., near Shirley Highway.

Virginia residents are "concerned about having an airport plopped down" in their midst, said Smith. He indicated he may offer a floor amendment which would require prior consultation with county officials if a site is picked in Arlington or Fairfax counties.

Smith has already appealed to the House Interstate Committee to accept a similar amendment, Beckworth disclosed.

Police 5-Day Week Bill Sent to White House

Washington policemen were assured of a shorter work week yesterday when the House unanimously approved and sent to the White House legislation placing them on a five-day week.

The short week will not go into effect until Congress approves a special salary appropriations request. President Truman has asked for $646,000 to hire 300 more policemen needed to make the shorter work week possible.

The fund request is before the House Appropriations Committee.

The bill, which covers Metropolitan, White House and United States Park police, stipulates the short week shall not begin until funds are approved.

Truman Names Emory Smith 13th Municipal Court Judge

President Truman yesterday nominated Emory Byington Smith to be the 13th Municipal Court judge.

Behind this action lies a story of 18 years of disappointment and waiting for the 63-year-old minister, professor and lawyer. The nomination found Smith eager to embark on a fourth career—and reach a longtime goal.

Sitting in the front room of his modest home, 1707 2d st. nw., where he makes his office, Smith told how he stumped the country for Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932. After the Roosevelt victory, he said James A. Farley promised he would receive a Municipal Court judgeship. Farley was then the Democratic national chairman.

Instead, his "good friend" and fellow Negro, Armond Scott, was appointed, and "he has made a very fine judge," Smith declared.

But last March, Representative William L. Dawson (D., Ill.) began backing Smith for the new bench position. The matter has been pending since then, possibly because of Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) coming out for appointment of a Justice Department lawyer to the post.

The nominee is a man of dignity and gentleness. He came to Washington in 1910 after graduation from Yale University Divinity School. He was pastor of Lincoln Congregational Temple, 11th and R sts. nw., for eight years.

Career No. 2 began in 1923, when Smith was named alumni and field secretary at Howard University and later publicity director.

Harris & Ewing

EMORY B. SMITH
. . . nominated by President

He is a 1919 alumnus of Howard Law School.

This led to career No. 3. In 1920, Smith passed the District Bar and since then has been in active practice—criminal, civil and probate law—besides teaching at Terrell Law School for 10 years.

An only child, former Army Lieut. Emory H. Smith, has "become my legs" in recent months. The younger Smith, 29, has attended Yale Law School and University of Chicago and now is studying law at Terrell at night, clerking for his father in the day.

Construction Worker Killed By Cave-in

James C. Davis, 21-year-old construction worker, from Harpers Ferry, W. Va., was killed about 9:30 a. m. yesterday when a 17-foot ditch caved in on top of him on a construction job near Tyson's Corner, on Leesburg Pike.

The office of Arlington Coroner Dr. W. C. Welburn issued a certificate of accidental death due to suffocation.

Davis, who was married and the father of two children, was working on the "Pinkmit Green" subdivision in Fairfax. He was leveling out the inside of a 17-foot ditch, so braces could be put in, when the 2-foot-wide ditch caved in on top of him, police said.

Fairfax County Policeman Truman King said the man was buried beneath five feet of earth. The McLean Rescue Squad worked 45 minutes to uncover the victim. They applied artificial respiration in vain all the way to Arlington Hospital, where Davis was pronounced dead.

Falls Church To Consider Dunn Ouster

Majority of Council Reported in Favor Of Resignation of Acting City Manager

The Falls Church City Council will consider asking for the resignation of Roy F. Dunn, Acting City Manager, at a special meeting tonight, it was learned last night.

Indications are that a majority of the council's nine members favor the move.

Tonight's special meeting will be open to the public, according to council members.

The special meeting was called at an executive session which followed Monday night's regular council meeting. Five of the nine council members attended the closed meeting.

Several of those present, who asked that their names be withheld, admitted that a request for Dunn's resignation was discussed.

Dunn, who could not be reached for comment, has lost the majority support of the city council in recent months. Last week, his one staunch supporter in the council, Samuel McCrary, introduced a motion calling for a show of confidence in Dunn's performance as acting city manager. He could not get a second for his motion.

Candidates Sought

At the same time, the council voted, 8 to 1, to appoint a committee to recruit and examine candidates for the post of permanent city manager.

Dunn was named the first town manager in the history of Falls Church in August, 1947. He formerly had been town manager of Wytheville, Va. The following year he became a city manager when Falls Church was made a second class city.

He served as city manager until the status of the position was changed by a new charter, which became effective several months ago, and granted greater powers to the city manager. Acting under the charter, the council named Dunn to serve as acting city manager.

Two Area Men Die in Truck, Auto Crashes

A 24-year-old Arlington truck driver and a 27-year-old District man were killed yesterday as a result of separate traffic accidents involving trucks and autos.

Mr. Thomas

One victim, Frank P. Thomas, 2054 12th st., S., Arlington, died in Alexandria Hospital 35 minutes after his truck collided with a passenger car at Payne and Oronoco sts., Alexandria.

He suffered a broken back, shock, and internal injuries. Police said Thomas, an employe of the Southern Dry Cleaners of Alexandria, either jumped or was thrown from his truck as it collided with a car driven by Dinwiddie Dodd, 56, of 70 John Roberts Homes Alexandria. The truck rolled over Thomas.

Dodd, an elevator operator at Alexandria Hospital, was unhurt. He was held in $1000 bond on a technical charge of manslaughter.

John O. McLeod, 27, of 206 Fifth st. se., was killed last night when the auto in which he rode skidded on U. S. Route 1 near Laurel, Md. and slammed into a heavy tractor-truck.

Driver of the car, R. C. Chandler, 37, of 420 B st. se., was taken to Freedmens Hospital where he was in undetermined condition with a possible fractured skull.

The truck driver, Claude H. James, 33, of Burlington, N. C. and a second passenger in the auto, Willard N. Johnson, 22, of 422 B st. se., were treated for minor injuries at Warren's Hospital in Laurel and released.

James faces a technical charge of manslaughter. He was released in $500 bond.

3. Never risk infection. No matter how small a wound may be, it's a gateway for a parade of thousands of germs.

Be certain not to touch the wound with anything that you are not sure is sterile. Apply a dressing of sterile gauze directly over the wound, and cover that with a bandage or tape.

SET FOR SCHOOL—Tommy Morrison, 5, who left Children's Hospital last March after a year of treatment in which he underwent at least 60 operations for burns over 60 percent of his body, is now undergoing occupational therapy at George Washington University Hospital—exercising his arm, after an operation for ankylosis. Right now he's sightseeing around town before going back home to Statesville, N. C., where he will start school this fall. Incidentally, his favorite reading matter is, "Five Little Fireman," which he displays as he demonstrates how the strictures in the arm have been relieved

Police to Rescue

Lincoln Park Kids Mob 'Penny Man'

You should have so much trouble giving your money away!

Sam (The Penny Man) Horowitz tried it yesterday morning at Lincoln Park se., and it took the Fifth Precinct gendarmes to get him out of danger.

"What kind of kids you got in this city?" he asked. "Gorillas?"

Horowitz makes a hobby out of giving away pennies, bubble gum, and souvenirs to children all over the country, while delivering short lectures on the evils of discrimination.

Monday he contacted the newspapers and the Superintendent of the National Capital Parks to get publicity and permission for his "party." Then he went on television and issued blanket invitations.

Yesterday morning at 10:30 a hungry mob of 300 kids—"18, 19 years old, already," Sam complained later—were waiting for the Penny Man.

They complained that Sam was a trifle long on bubble gum and a trifle short on pennies. There were cries of "Sam, the Stale Bubble Gum Man." Anyway, in a matter of minutes they started after The Penny Man, and Sam was in trouble.

Damage was limited to Sam's shirt and his pride.

Prince Georges Land Rezoned Near Golf Club

Rezoning of a 118-acre tract adjacent to the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club for industrial use was approved yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners.

A 300-foot buffer strip was left in residential classification as a buffer between the industrial area and the country club, however, on recommendation of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The application was filed by Stewart Brothers, Inc., through Attorney T. Howard Duckett. Duckett said plans call for use of 50 acres as a warehouse and assembly plant by a national food products chain company.

Final action on a request for commercial listing of 15 acres on Marlboro pike near the old Maryland Club Gardens, was postponed to next Tuesday.

Although the majority of the commissioners favored the application, the dissenting vote of Commissioner John H. Beall forced postponement of final decision.

The commissioners directed County Attorney Jerold V. Powers, Police Superintendent Ralph W. Brown and Comptroller Carl Mace to prepare recommendations for enlarging the county police force for submission "as quickly as possible."

Boys Find $247; Rewarded

THEY SPLIT A BUCK—Washington Post Carriers Ronald Steele (left), 11, of 119 Anne st. and Boyce Williams, 13, of 1200 Prospect st., both of Takoma Park, split a dollar, their reward after they had returned $247 to Gordon Levin, 8115 Carroll ave., Takoma Park. They found a wallet outside that address on the street yesterday. Mr. Levin's identification plus the money was in the wallet

Cabbie Collects a $100 'Fare' For Restoring Lawyer's $6000

The honesty of Edward F. Clark, a cab driver, parlayed a three-block ride into a $100 fare yesterday.

Clark

And Clark's conscience—with an assist by a policeman—saved $6000 for Attorney Fred W. Morrison of 4965 Glenbrook rd. nw.

The three principals unfolded the circumstances of the bonus ride at the Third Precinct.

Morrison, it seems, had left the packaged dough in the back seat of Clark's cab early yesterday. This fact wasn't discovered by the driver until he had picked up another fare and was headed in another direction. So, explaining the situation, he dropped the bundle off with Pvt. Edward S. Mason who was directing traffic at 23d and E sts. nw.

Morrison, meanwhile, realized what had happened and started checking with the cab company and the police. He learned the $6000 was awaiting him at the Third Precinct Station.

The attorney later asked the driver "to name his own figure" as a reward. Clark balked. "I only did what I was supposed to do," he said. However, the cabby finally accepted $100 in cash, a promise of free legal aid and an offer of some "freebies" to the Nats.

Power Rate Hike Would Force Fares Up, CTC Says

Transit Company Petition Opposing Request by Pepco Filed With PUC

Capital Transit Co. stated yesterday that if the rate increase requested by Potomac Electric Power Co. is granted, bus and streetcar fares must be increased again.

The company made this statement in a petition filed with the District Public Utilities Commission asking permission to intervene in the Pepco rate case. It was believed to be the first time one Washington utility has opposed the rate request of another.

Pepco has asked permission to increase rates charged CTC for street car power by 70.7 percent. This would require an additional payment by the transit company of $661,000 a year. This in turn is about one-third the amount that the PUC estimated it had granted CTC in a fare increase last month.

The taking of such a large slice from what it believes will be unreasonably low revenues anyway would force the company to ask for another fare increase, the CTC petition said.

The petition also asked that hearings on Pepco's request be deferred two months while CTC makes a study of the "reasonableness" of the rates it now pays Pepco.

PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan said CTC would be permitted to intervene, to introduce evidence, and cross-examine witnesses. Date for the hearing has not been decided, he said.

Quonset Huts Ease Fairfax Class Crowding

The Fairfax County School Board moved yesterday to provide 26 more temporary classrooms in its stopgap program to alleviate overcrowding pending completion of a 10½ million dollar school construction program.

The board authorized distribution of 11 Government surplus Quonset huts, each equivalent to two classrooms, and approved a contract for rental of four more rooms for school purposes in the new Herndon Volunteer Firehouse.

Distribution of the Quonset huts was approved after the board was informed the structures will be made available late this week from surplus properties formerly used to house Navy personnel at Annapolis. They will cost the county 5 percent of their "fair market value" or $12.50 apiece.

Under the emergency school housing program, two of the quonsets will be used at the Mount Vernon High School and one each at the following: Falls Church High School, Woodlawn, Lee-Jackson, Fairfax Elementary, Franklin-Sherman, Franconia, Groveton, Dunn-Loring and Chesterbrook.

The four rooms in the Herndon Firehouse will be usde to house an overflow from the Herndon Elementary School about two blocks away.

School officials said the four rooms will provide facilities for about 140 pupils.

Blaze Wrecks Langley House

Flames shooting 100 feet and visible for miles attracted crowds of northwest residents as fire wrecked a deserted house on the old Langley estate at 5905 Blair rd. nw. about 12:30 a.m. today. The house was vacated a month ago.

Located in a densely wooded section, the 15-room structure, which was built in 1875, is owned by Mrs. Annie E. Langley, 88, widow of Charles Langley, one-time builder. Mrs. Langley, who lives with her son-in-law, Roger V. Garrett, at 5925 Blair rd. nw., slept through this morning's blaze.

The Georgetown Progressive Citizens Association has recommended the purchase, which was discussed some years ago.

The tracts are bounded by Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and Independence aves., sw., and the Potomac River, Constitution ave., 19th and F sts., nw.

Inspector Miller's Retirement From Police Force Near

The retirement of Police Inspector Arthur E. Miller for reasons of health became a virtual certainty yesterday.

Miller, who was made an assistant police superintendent just four months ago, appeared yesterday before the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons, which recommended he go before the Police Retiring Board August 10. Such a recommendation is almost always the forerunner of retirement.

Miller, police traffic inspector for 10 years, has been in charge of the reactivated Police Academy and the traffic and rookie school since April.

Police sources speculated that the vacant post of inspector created by Miller's retirement would go to either Capt. Robert V. Murray, assistant chief of detectives, or Capt. Beverly C. Beach, 7th Precinct.

$190,000 Fund Contributed For Symphony

The National Symphony Orchestra's 1950 Sustaining Fund goal of $190,000 has been reached, campaign chairman Samuel Spencer announced yesterday.

More than 14,000 persons contributed to the fund, he said. The $190,000 is used to meet the financial requirements not covered by paid admissions.

The money will provide for a full season of 26 concerts, Spencer said, with seven special children's concerts to be presented during the season. Spencer said that the orchestra still hopes to add three children's concerts.

Court Voids Restaurant Racial Case

Judge Frank H. Myers yesterday quashed a new Municipal Court information accusing the John R. Thompson Restaurant Co. of refusing to serve Negroes.

In refusing to hear the case, Judge Myers said he recently had decided in a similar case that the 1872-1873 laws under which it was brought were invalid.

The decision, according to Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King, apparently opens the way for a test-case appeal which will decide the matter. King said he would take the case to the Municipal Court of Appeals soon.

According to the charges, the restaurant at 725 14th st. nw., last Thursday refused to serve Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, the Rev. Arthur E. Elmes, and Miss Jean J. Williams. Mrs. Terrell and Mr. Elmes are Negroes.

Last week, 15 other persons were tried and convicted of disorderly conduct charges when they sought service for their interracial group at a Sholl's Cafeteria.

In throwing out the new Thompson case, Judge Myers acted on his own volition and before trial.

"I will not require the defendant corporation to be arraigned," he said. "This information is defective because the District is again attempting to bring the defendant to court on a charge similar to that which I ruled on July 11. I held at the time that the antisegregation laws of 1872 and 1873 were repealed by implication by the Organic Act of 1873. I therefor quash this information on those grounds."

A spectator in court was Attorney Ringgold Hart, who represented Thompson's in the prior case.

All Wedding Dates Movable In Service Set These Days

By Marie McNair

WAR TIME weddings are in vogue again.

Take Marian Allen, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Leven C. Allen, whose engagement to Ensign William Boyd Browne, USN, was announced a week or two ago. First plans were for a wedding next spring. Then it was to be in October. Now in view of the uncertainties of the times, the date has been set for August 28.

The ceremony will take place in St. Thomas Church and a reception will follow at the Officers Club at Fort McNair. Marian's friends are scattered all over for the summer. At the moment she's trying to round them up to serve as wedding attendants.

Ensign Browne, son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward T. Browne of Chapel Hill, N. C., is stationed at Oceana, Va., at the Navy Auxiliary Air Station.

Moving Time for Foleys

AT LONG ISLAND'S exclusive Piping Rock Club, Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Edward H. Foley, jr., thought they had escaped the Washington heat.

MRS. FOLEY

Instead, returning to town on Monday, they found themselves in the thick of it. And to add to their present discomfort, they're packing up to move. Jefferson Patterson, who owns the house on Thompson Circle which Mr. and Mrs. Foley have had under lease, doesn't want to sell. He hopes to make it his permanent home when he retires from Foreign Service.

So the Foleys bought the house at 2340 Wyoming ave. from Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone who lived there many years with the late Chief Justice. Mrs. Stone has taken an apartment.

On Long Island, Mrs. Foley had a reunion with her three daughters—Mrs. Edward S. Travers, jr., who lives there; Miss Julia Bowdoin who went from Washington with her mother, and Mrs. Josiah Spaulding, also of Washington, who with Mr. Spaulding could manage only a weekend.

Farncombs Cocktail Hosts

REAR ADMIRAL AND MRS. H. B. FARNCOMB entertained yesterday at a cocktail party honoring Brigadier Henry Rourke, representative of Australia's Department of Defense and member of the party accompanying Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies. Rear Admiral and Mrs. Felix J. Johnson were guests as well as Rear Admiral and Mrs. C. F. Espe, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. C. P. Cabell, and Sir Alwyn and Lady Crow. Also, Air Commodore and Mrs. J. L. Findlay of the New Zealand Embassy, Brigadier H. E. Taber, military attache at the Canadian Embassy, Col. J. C. Windsor Lewis, military attache at the British Embassy, and many more.

The Prime Minister and members of his party are leaving tomorrow for New York and Canada.

FIVE small friends celebrated Nikia Clark's birthday with her yesterday at a swimming party in the Wardman Park pool. For lunch there was fried chicken, ice cream, and a birthday cake. Nikia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blake Clark. Celebrating the occasion with her were Sandy Stackelberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Constantine de Stackelberg; Diana Ewing, the William Ewings' daughter; Peter Bernhardt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Bernhardt; Teddy Culp, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Culp and Marijean Marcouyeux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Guy Marcouyeux.

U. S. Fights for World Peace, Webb Tells Girls Nation

THE United States foreign policy is directed toward world peace, Undersecretary of State James B. Webb said yesterday. He addressed the 98 delegates, two from each State and Panama, of the Girls Nation attending the 6-day School for Citizenship here under the auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary.

It is too early to tell if the Korean crisis will improve chances for world peace, Webb said, but "your government continues to fight for peace and it can be won."

He went on to describe how the United States has been "trying to create a climate favorable to world peace."

He cited assistance given Turkey, Greece, and the North Atlantic Pact, and pointed out that this country is standing behind the leadership of the United Nations in helping to defend South Korea.

"Seldom has a Nation gone so far to defend its principles," he stated.

Earlier in the day the Girls Nation delegates met with Senator Margaret Chase Smith at the Capitol. She asked them to return to their home communities "as vigorous vigilantes against hoarding and panic buying."

"You can crusade for self-control in the Nation's great hour of need," she stated. "You can be model examples of what we all should do and be able to suppress natural, understandable selfish desires and views when they are in conflict with the best interests of our country."

Last evening the girls returned to Mount Vernon Seminary for the traditional stunt night party. Today they're scheduled to meet President Truman at the White House at 10:30 a. m.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Mother of Girl, Nearly Nine, Who Still Clings To Belief in Santa Claus, Feels Time Has Come To Correct the Illusion; How Do It Tactfully?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My daughter Cassie is eight years old, nearly nine, and she still believes wholeheartedly in Santa Claus. I fostered the myth when she was tiny, of course, and it continues each Christmas to hold magic for her. None of her playmates has been able to disillusion her thus far, although they've tried; and I haven't had the courage to tell the plain truth. But perhaps I should. Maybe it's time. My indecision on that point is the problem.

Last Christmas Cassie was doubtful. Her friends teased her a bit about her faith in Santa, and she came to me tearfully two days before Christmas, demanding the truth. I felt awful. "I'll have to be honest," I thought. But she was so distressed, and so much wanted Santa to be real, that I didn't have the heart to say he doesn't exist. I couldn't find words to state the case. Possibly I always played him up to much.

She was put to bed with the issue evaded, and I stayed up half the night trying to evolve a good explanation of the Christmas spirit, sans Santa. It wasn't necessary, for Cassie wakened next day with her joyous faith in him still intact. This leaves me quite mixed up and I want to plan ahead this year. If she must know the truth—and I rather think it's time she did—I want to put it across before Christmas is on us.

Cassie is quite intelligent, mentally advanced, her teachers say, and yet she continues to be so naive about many things. She trusts everybody and is completely honest about herself; and I am seriously concerned to handle this subject wisely. She is friendly, popular, full of fun and high spirits—which I mention not to brag, but to establish that she is a normal well-balanced child, without behavior quirks. Please advise me. A. C.

Misunderstands Daughter's Woe

DEAR A. C.: Perpetuating the Santa Claus story has become a face-saving proposition with you in relation to Cassie. That is why you have difficulty meeting her demands for truth about the folk fantasy. You are vaguely afraid that honest admission of the gentle hoax might shatter her shining faith in yourself, as the supposed font of indisputable wisdom and truth in her scheme of things.

In short, if Santa isn't real, then you've been a liar since Cassie can remember—that is the reaction you fear she might have, that might make her skeptical of all your major utterances in future. And this throttling anxiety is linked to your feeling of having overplayed the story from year to year, as you probably did, before her friends' wise-acre barbs sent her to you for a reckoning last season.

No doubt you misjudged the significance of Cassie's woe in taking it to mean she "so much wanted Santa to be real." What she wanted most emphatically was to be right, or sure of her ground, in arguing Santa's existence to the scoffers. Her prestige was at stake, she felt. She was in tears of anger, humiliation and uncertainty, due to being teased as a boob by playmates who've outgrown Santa Claus.

Then was your golden opportunity to give her a factual answer, so comfortably phrased that she would have experienced a sense of fun and a surge of importance, in entering into "the know" at last.

Mother's Being Too Protective

FOR example, I recall one instance in which a youngster wakened his mother at 3 a. m. on Christmas morn to earnestly ask, "Mother, tell me the truth: IS there a Santa Claus?" To which the mother warmly replied, "Well, to tell you the truth, I am MRS. Santa Claus—," a whimsical statement of make-believe that completely informed, satisfied and delighted the child. He caught the whole true picture in a flash and seemed fully content with it.

You may be sure that Cassie no longer believes wholeheartedly. After a night's sleep her spirits rallied from the children's teasing, and she buried her uncertainties to ease your evident anxiety about them. Thus it appears her faith was restored—but don't be deceived. Unconsciously she was renouncing it during the tearful question period, and groping for a new authoritative recipe for Christmas magic.

Don't strain to make life all bliss for Cassie. You cannot succeed, and such an endeavor is weakening to her. Having faith in Santa is part of normal early childhood, and losing it after school age is equally commonplace; so why concern yourself to spare your child this harmless ingredient of average human experience? Inasmuch as Cassie is now past the age when fanciful "spirit of Christmas" yarns are in order, my advice is to relax and speak factually about Santa—after consulting an encyclopedia—the next time she shows interest in the topic.

THURSDAY DINNER

Broiled Deviled Chicken — Potato Balls
Green Peas and Mushrooms — Cauliflower
Bread and Butter
Fresh Pineapple and Cantaloupe — Beverage

FRESH PINEAPPLE AND CANTALOUPE

Ingredients: 1 medium-sized pineapple, 1 medium-sized cantaloupe, 4 to 6 tablespoons syrup from preserved ginger, 1 tablespoon finely diced ginger preserved in syrup.

Method: Without removing green leaves, cut pineapple in half lengthwise right through plume. With small sharp knife cut around inside of each pineapple half, close to rind, as deep as possible without cutting through shell; cut out core in long strip. Now cut out rest of pineapple meat, dice, and put in bowl; scrape out remainder of pineapple with spoon and add it and any juice to the bowl. Cut cantaloupe in half, remove seeds, and using a potato ball scoop or a half-teaspoon size measuring spoon, scoop out balls. Put cantaloupe balls aside in separate bowl. Cut remaining cantaloupe meat away, dice, and add to pineapple. Mix in ginger syrup and ginger; pile back into pineapple shells and top with cantaloupe balls, nestling them close together over cut fruit. Makes 4 servings.

Note: To make extra ginger syrup, if necessary, prepare a simple syrup by dissolving ½ cup sugar in ½ cup water over low heat, bring to a boil and simmer for 5 minutes; pour over preserved ginger and allow to stand in refrigerator overnight.

Should Child Thank Parents for Life?

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

IT IS certainly a philosophical question whether a child is eternally indebted to a parent for the gift of life. Whichever way a parent feels about this, it is certain her feelings will be mirrored in her treatment of the children.

Mrs. D. F. H. believes a parent does rightly to remind children of the things she and the father are doing for them, and the cost.

"The reason we have so many ungrateful, dissatisfied adults in the world is that they have never been taught that father and mother worked hard to provide them with the necessities and comforts of life. These things come too easily and they feel the world owes them a living.

"I tell my children the cost of things, especially when they want to spend money foolishly. My oldest boy helps his father during vacations and sees how hard he works.

Which, undoubtedly, they will feel when they are grownups and are doing for their own families. I believe that when you married and established a home and brought children into the world, you did it with the full recognition that it would take money and effort to rear them to adulthood. Do you feel that you keep a nice home and prepare appetizing meals only because you have children? Does the father work only because he has a family?

Wouldn't both of you do exactly the same without children and why make the children feel guilty and demand perpetual thanks?

But, if you constantly tell your children how much work and expense they are to you what is to prevent them from asking, not with appreciation but with resentment, "Why did you have us?"

That, too, is a very good question.

Maps Come in Handy Even for Folks Who Stick Close to Home

DEAR ANN:

We are looking for a large map suitable for hanging in a living room. Some pictures I have seen show an entire wall covered by a map—in this case, probably painted or pasted on. What we would have to get, however, is a map which could be framed (not under glass) and hung. I think it would also have to be treated (like prints) to protect it from dirt and curling. Have you any idea where we could purchase such a map?

J. C., Alexandria, Va.

Some local bookstores (listed under Booksellers in the yellow pages of the phone book) sell maps which may be suitable for the decorating purpose your describe. You might call several, tell them how large a map you want and of what part of the world, and see if they have any possibilities before visiting the store.

The Department of the Interior also sells maps (of the United States and its possessions) on the first floor of the new Interior Building, 19th and F sts. nw. After mounting and framing with picture molding, the map could be sprayed or brushed with shellac to protect it.

DEAR ANNE:

I am anxious to obtain a good recipe for sweet-sour pork. Could you or your readers help me out?

V. S. S., Falls Church, Va.

Do you mean the Chinese dish? Here is a recipe for one of that type, combining vinegar for the "sour" with sugar and pineapple for the "sweet."

SWEET AND PUNGENT PORK

3 large green peppers — ¾ cup oil or fat
1½ teaspoons salt — 1 small clove garlic
1 egg — 2 tablespoons flour
Dash of pepper — 1 pound lean pork
1 cup chicken bouillon — 4 slices canned pineapple
2½ tablespoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons soy sauce
½ cup vinegar — ½ cup sugar

Cut peppers in six pieces each and cook in boiling water until tender—about 8 minutes. Put fat, 1 teaspoon salt and finely diced garlic in heavy frying pan to heat. Beat egg, flour, ½ teaspoon salt and pepper together to make batter. Cut pork in ½-inch cubes. Pour batter over pork and mix lightly until every piece is coated. Separate pieces with fork and drop one at a time into frying pan. Brown over moderately hot flame on one side, about five minutes, then turn and brown on other.

When browned, pour out all but 1 tablespoon of oil. Add 1/3 cup chicken bouillon, pineapple (each slice cut in six pieces) and pepper. Cover and cook over low flame about 10 minutes.

Blend together cornstarch, soy sauce, vinegar, sugar and rest of bouillon. Add to pork mixture. Stir constantly until juice thickens and mixture is very hot—about 5 minutes. Serve immediately with hot, boiled rice. This recipe makes four servings.

DEAR ANNE:

Regarding the recent question in your column about how to get tea stains out of a glass pitcher: A strong solution of chlorine household bleach and water left in the utensil about 20 minutes will remove all trace of tea stain. This also applies to stained decanters, vases, etc.

A. M. M., Arlington, Va.

DEAR ANNE:

Sometime in May, you said that an effervescent tablet to sterilize baby bottles would be in local drug stores in three weeks. I have been unable to locate a store which carries them and wish you could tell me of one before we leave on vacation.

D. J. D., Arlington, Va.

These tablets are on the market here now, being distributed to retail stores by a local drug wholesaler (Trinidad 2432.) If he hasn't them in stock, your own druggist may be able to obtain them for you by calling this number.

DEAR ANNE:

I have a 9 by 12-foot beige Chinese rug upon which my young daughter spilled some bright red nail polish. A few days later, my son spilled some hot candle wax on the same rug.

Could you tell me what methods might be used in removing these spots? I have done nothing so far, as the rug is valuable and I did not want to increase the damage.

Mrs. John B. Bales,
Camp Lejeune, N. C.

The polish remover (lacquer thinner) which takes enamel polish off your nails will dilute the enamel on your carpeting. Apply it directly to the stain with eye dropper. Leave a few minutes, then mop up with clean white unstarched cloth. Work from the outer edge in towards the center, trying not to smear the polish. Continue soaking and mopping up until it is all removed.

With the wax, first scrape off as much as possible with dull knife or spatula. Place a clean white blotter over the stained area, and move a hot iron over the blotter with a regular ironing motion. Follow by applying a noninflammable dry cleaning fluid and sponging with clean cloth.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

SERVED in royal style, the popular combination of potato salad and cold cuts will grace your fanciest buffet!

Mold the salad in a large ring mold, and serve it on lettuce with a bowl of luscious mayonnaise in the center and your favorite cold meats ranged around it. Make it in advance and have it all ready for an easy meal with no last minute rush. Here's what you'll need:

BUFFET SALAD PLATTER

3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
French dressing
4 cups cubed cooked potatoes
2 tablespoons chopped olives
2 cups sliced celery
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1 cup cooked pease
1 cup shredded raw carrots
1½ cups mayonnaise or salad dressing
Salt and pepper
Lettuce
Assorted sliced cold meats
Mayonnaise or salad dressing

Arrange five slices of hard-cooked eggs at regular intervals in the bottom of a 9-inch ring mold which has been brushed with French dressing. Combine remaining sliced eggs with potatoes, celery, olives, pimiento, green pepper, peas, and carrots. Add mayonnaise or salad dressing and mix lightly, adding salt and pepper to taste. Pack this potato salad firmly into the ring mold. Chill several hours, then unmold on lettuce arranged on chop plate. Surround with assorted cold meats. Place a small bowl of mayonnaise or salad dressing in center of ring.

Cooking Cues . . .

Nothing's better than a Chef's Salad for a warm weather luncheon. All you do to make it is to add thin slivers of chicken, tongue or luncheon meat, and Swiss cheese to a bowl of salad greens. Use lettuce, endive, escarole, chicory and watercress for the greens if they are available.

Put a small scoop of chocolate ice cream into each glass of sweetened iced coffee for a delicious taste treat.

Beef, pork and lamb liver are just as nutritious as calves' liver and much less expensive. When there are children in the family it is wise to use liver at least once a week.

The reason custard cups are put in a pan of hot water during baking is to keep the temperature around them even.

Here's a way to make watermelon pickles as told by Alice Peterson in the August issue of McCall's.

5 lb. watermelon rind
8 teaspoons alum
1 qt. cider vinegar
1 tablespoon whole cloves
2 cinnamon sticks
4 lb. (8 cups) sugar

Select firm watermelon rinds with large proportion of white rind. Cut off outer green skin and all pink from rind. The alum, which is what gives these fabulous pickles their lasting crispness, comes from your drugstore.

Cut peeled rind into small triangular pieces. Weigh (5 lb. rind makes about 3½ quarts.) Put rind in large kettle. Cover with water; boil until rind is easily pierced with a fork.

Add measured alum to rind. Remove from heat. Let stand overnight. In the morning rinse under running water; drain. Return rind to kettle. Add vinegar, cloves, cinnamon sticks.

Pour sugar over rind. Bring to boil, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved. Remove from heat. Let stand overnight. Bring to boil each day for five consecutive days.

Pack cooked rind and a piece of cinnamon into hot, sterilized jars after fifth cooking. Fill jars with hot syrup; seal. Store 3 weeks before tasting. Makes 6 pints.

MISS ERNESTINE HALE BELLAMY (right) shows a scrapbook of newspaper clippings to Dr. Agnes E. Wells, National Chairman of the National Woman's Party. The stories were from cities all over the nation when Miss Bellamy and Mrs. Amelia Walker toured 11,000 miles to find out what women thought about the proposed Equal Rights Amendment

U. S. Women Ask Action On Equal Rights, Says 23-Year-Old Crusader

WHAT'S holding up the proposed Equal Rights amendment in Washington?

That's what women all over the country wanted to know, according to Ernestine Hale Bellamy, who, accompanied by Mrs. Amelia Himes Walker, traveled 11,000 miles to "feel the pulse of the Nation."

The two members of the National Women's Party have just returned from a three-month trip to see how women felt about the amendment which reads:

"Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex."

Back in the days when Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Stanton were touring for the suffrage campaign, they spent one night spearing bed bugs with hat pins. It wasn't quite that bad with the present day duo. But they did stay awake one night listening to the cockroaches trying to get into the paper-covered food packages in the kitchen of their overnight cottage.

Live Issue Everywhere

THERE is no doubt about it, the Equal Rights Amendment is a "live issue" with women all over the country, they said. Everywhere they went women would ask them what was the delay in Washington. Why hasn't the amendment been passed? Why is the United States sending out boys to fight for democracy when we haven't tended to our own house first?

When the women asked what they could do, they were told to send telegrams to the White House to let President Truman know they were vitally interested.

Compare Status In Many States

ERNESTINE and Mrs. Walker had abundant opportunity to compare women's status in the States they visited. As they drove along the South, to the West Coast and then returned through the North, they made notes.

They found discrimination in Texas. If a woman wanted to enter the business world, she would have to advertise four weeks in advance that she wanted to do so, appear in court and swear under oath that her reasons were legitimate, and also have the consent of her husband.

But there is the rosy side, too, Ernestine said. In the State of Washington all discrimination against married women was repealed in 1881. Wisconsin had an equality provision in its Constitution in 1921. Wyoming had given equality to women when it became a State, but, Ernestine added wryly, that was so it could have the necessary citizens to become a State.

When they went through Wyoming, Mrs. Walker and Ernestine stopped to see Ernestine's great-aunt, Mrs. Mary G. Bellamy, who was the first woman in America to serve in a State Legislature.

From the time they left Florida on April 27 until they returned to Washington on Sunday, the duo had appeared on the radio 17 times and spoken publicly 68 times.

First Trip To the West

SURE, Ernestine readily admitted, she was very nervous at the thought of speaking at the meetings at first. But she soon got over the major part of her nervousness and took comfort in the thought that she made better speeches when she was jittery. Then, too, she considered her topic a subject which was of importance to over half of the population in the United States. She was working for a principle and she enjoyed it.

"But," she said with a grin, "Have you ever lived on a banquet diet for three months?" It's a mystery to her how she survived after eating all those rich foods.

Since this was the first time that Ernestine had ever been West, she enjoyed the trip tremendously.

Ernestine praised nylon to the sky, saying she didn't know how people traveled before nylon came along. A group of cottons that shed wrinkles joined her wardrobe in Santa Fe and they, coupled with sharkskin suits that repelled wrinkles, made her traveling easier.

Every morning the duo would buy a bottle of milk for Ernestine and a bottle of buttermilk for Mrs. Walker for refreshment while driving. No stopping for them since their days were filled to the brim with a definite itinerary to follow.

During the trip, Ernestine had a chart showing all the discriminations against women by the States. When she heads for her vacation today in Boston, she is going to make another chart.

This chart will show all the equality provisions in States now in effect. Then when someone says to her, "What would happen if—" and then state a hypothetical case of a situation arising from women being given equality under the law, she can say "Here is the way it worked out in this State."

As Mrs. Walker once said, the Equal Rights Amendment won't make men and women equal, it won't even make women equal, but it will make the applications of the laws equal.

LIKE PEOPLE?
So do we and besides we also like nice things. Such as fine sterling silver. We form silver clubs among groups of businesswomen, graduating girls and recent brides. Perhaps we'll never attain the riches of "Daddy Warbucks" but we sure enjoy our work. This program does not entail door-to-door canvassing, delivery or collection. It does entail the use of your own car locally, meeting and making new friends, and our best hours are from 5-9:30 p. m. If you've never had sales experience that's perfectly all right. We're prepared to give you interesting sales aptitude tests to see if you possess the traits necessary to become successful in this life-time career. All test and training entirely at our expense. After a friendly interview we'll give you an honest "yes" or "no" answer. To arrange for a personal interview, call SLigo 6516 between 9 and 11 a. m. Ask for MRS. TAVENNER.

WE HAVE opening for the following: typists, secys.; dry cleaning counter help., exp.; comptometer opr., sales ladies and cafeteria worker.

How To Get a Husband

Beware Two Icebergs—His Family and You

By Cora Carlyle

ROMANCE is an event which flourishes every day of the year. In spite of its being the commonest of occurrences, each romance is highly individual and can be likened to a voyage on unknown seas. From the moment the ship of romance puts to sea, the course is unchartered and every storm signal calls for skillful adroitness if your ship of love is to sail successfully to its ultimate destination—marriage. You must be prepared to sight and cope with two unavoidable hazards—your family and his. No matter how good their intentions, families are so emotionally involved with their children, they invariably have to be controlled.

The aim with your own family should be to use them, wherever you can, to help you land your boat at the final port. Like an iceberg, . . . the attractive traits will be exposed one-third and the other two-thirds will be kept well under cover. With his family, you will aim to charm them so completely that their natural hostility toward you will become dissipated. A wise girl always remembers that family holds the same danger as an iceberg does for a ship in the North Atlantic. So learn early in the game to steer your boat clear of this particular glacial threat.

Just as a frame increases the effectiveness of a picture, a family provides the background for a girl. Your family can enhance your beauty and charm. When a man meets your family, the fact registers in his mind that you belong somewhere—a fact that somehow evokes a greater regard and respect for you. Let us have a frank moment. Suppose you think your family isn't too desirable or impressive from your swain's point of view. Invite him anyway. It is more important that he feel responsible not only to you but also to a group of people.

If you are the girl who is ashamed of her home or parents, it is possible to change this negative attitude to a positive one. First of all, you can improve the appearance of your home. By using the interior decoration suggestions that abound today in magazines and newspapers, you can make your home more attractive and pleasing.

A few well-made suggestions to your parents are not amiss as to how they can help you put up a better front.

He's Less Sensitive

BEFORE you take down Brother's diplomas or change Father's tie, it's wise to remember that your beau is not nearly as sensitive to your surroundings as you are. Most men would never notice the crack in the wall or the loosened springs under the sofa. When a man comes to call on you, he looks most of all for a congenial atmosphere. Your own poise will do more to put him at his ease and make him feel comfortable than the physical surroundings.

Yes, we believe every type of man is interested in your background.

For instance, the athletic type would probably click with a golf-playing brother or an angling father.

The out-of-town fellow who's compelled to eat most meals in the restaurant will be delighted to partake of a home cooked meal.

If it's the snob you're asking over, invite also the most prominent member of your family to add the necessary tone.

Unlike most types, the man-about-town has probably emancipated himself a long time ago from his own family and will avoid yours like the plague. Don't give in to him entirely on this score. Make it your business that he meet your family even if it is for a short visit.

Use Your Discretion

THE EXTENT to which a girl uses her family has to depend entirely on her own discretion.

We repeat at this point and we say it in its simplest terms—to fulfill your ambition to get a husband, nothing must stand in your way. If you are convinced the family group is a detriment to your success, please don't hesitate to keep them in the background. You needn't feel guilty.

After marriage, you can be as dutiful a daughter as you wish. You can see your parents during the day—alone—and without your husband.

Without seeming ruthless, we are trying to keep you on that straight path to marriage. If it is your family which is the stumbling block, your adjustment must be geared to what is best for your plan and not what will keep Papa in better spirits.

At the beginning we said that the family is important and their background for you is most essential. If your darling and the family are harmoniously attuned, you are off to a good start. If the reverse is true, you know the adjustments to make. There is no doubt that the family role is a great one before marriage and even a greater one after when you will be more willing to take your place in the homogenous group we call the family. Baby fingers are the final agent towards making the group an even more cohesive unit . . . but we are a little premature.

His Family a Problem

BUT before that little bundle from Heaven arrives you will have met that other iceberg—his family. Its importance to you depends on the type of man and the degree of emancipation he's achieved from its members. Men, in general, are less attached to their families and at a much earlier age than girls free themselves from the familial influence.

The myth that mothers loathe to give up their sons to another woman deserves exploding.

The man's family generally enters the picture at a much later stage of the romance than a girl's. Custom has attached a special significance to the meeting of the girl and his family but the extent of that significance depends on the kind of man. We introduce Mama (of Mama and Mama's boy, Inc.) first as the exception to our belief that mothers are on the girl's side. Mama's boy is the type who will bring a gal to meet his mother after the first date. It is no indication of the seriousness of intentions because he's been doing it since his first party at 10 when he thought Susie was awful cute.

Mr. Rotarian acts quite differently from Mama's boy. When he invites you to meet the mater, it is with purpose and forethought. His invitation is a sure indication that he considers you desirable and eligible for that most important place in his future life. Mr. Pleased-to-Meet You, in his detailed campaign for acquiring the right wife, would only arrange this meeting in its proper order on his agenda.

Avoid Confidences

WHEN the Man-With-The Sisters brings you home, it's all right to be one of the girls but don't become involved in too many confidences.

Every type of man, with the possible exception of the Wolf or Mama's boy, whatever the make-up of her personality, whatever his taste in ties or pictures, when he brings you to meet the family, is thinking in terms of marriage.

When your romance reaches the very serious stage of bringing both your families together, every ounce of tact, ingenuity and toughness of skin will be needed. But for once, you will not be alone in a situation as your future husband will be your fellow conspirator in pulling this event off. Since you are both aware of the foibles and idiosyncrasies of your respective families, get-together for a few consultations as to the place and time of this meeting with the object of arranging it in the least painful way. Console yourself with the thought that any difficulties that arise will knit you and him closer together. They certainly will arouse chivalrous and protective feelings in him and he'll see himself a knight of old rescuing the fair damsel from the ogres and devils. It will not be too bad to suffer these first meetings as you keep in mind that the happy day is not far off.

Covering Korean War

Radio Reporter Is a Pack Horse

By John Crosby

OBSOLESCENCE between wars has struck the radio correspondent as well as the tank arsenal. In World War II, CBS reports, its correspondents went into battle equipped only with a typewriter and the knowledge and agility to locate a transmitter to get the stuff back.

Crosby

In the Korean conflict, the CBS correspondents are laden down like pack animals. In addition to a typewriter, the standard equipment for correspondents includes a Minitapo recorder, to take down interviews and battle sound, a small playback machine to check whether his recorder has taken down anything worth listening to, and a 16 millimeter movie camera to film the war for television newcasts. And, of course, paper, typewriter ribbons, tape and film to put into all that equipment.

The correspondent has to be a sound engineer, a motion picture photographer, and an experienced reporter; he must also possess a good speaking voice and understand the vocal tricks of newscasting, be able to write his own stuff for broadcasts, and have a thorough knowledge of Far Eastern countries and their relationships with each other, with the United States and with this country's allies.

He should also have a working knowledge of battle strategy, an intimate acquaintanceship with a few generals and admirals, familiarity with the terrain and the nearest broadcast equipment facilities, and the ability to duck fast when the shooting starts.

The pay is good, though.

Baboon With Ulcers

I'VE GOT a couple of items here on animals. Down in Baltimore, a baboon named Coquette died unexpectedly the morning before she was to have made her television debut on WAAM-TV. This is the second simian tragedy within a month or so. A spider monkey expired after rehearsing with Bert Parks, the "Stop the Music" man, conceivably of despair at the small strides evolution has taken thus far.

The Baltimore case was rather different. The baboon, according to Arthur Watson, the zoo director, was killed by an acute gastric disorder. Up in Radio City country, Mr. Watson, we generally refer to it as an ulcer. Ulcers usually strike nothing less than vice presidents. In fact, office boys in the broadcasting dodge who contract ulcers are fired for over-weening presumption.

Very unusual for either a baboon or a vice president to die of ulcers, though. According to our experience, the best treatment—in case any other baboons are stricken—is to promote the victime to president. That cures his ulcers and gives him hypertension, in which case he switches from a milk diet to a salt-free diet. Hypertension kills him even more quickly, but he's happier and, above all, richer. All straight on that now, Baltimore?

A Fan for Gambling

MY OTHER animal story, which comes straight from "The Brattleboro (Vt.), Daily Reformer," concerns a cat which has contracted a strange passion for John Gambling, the early morning music, weather and time maestro on WOR, New York.

"As the gray dawn approaches," reports "The Reformer," the cat meows, at first graciously and politely, then plaintively and finally peevishly if the radio is not turned on. If the owner persists in sleeping late, the cat gets up on the table, clawing the dials and our scout says he has seen the marks. When the longed-for voice and the sound of the music fill the room, the cat purrs and assumes an air of great comfort and joy, and a beatific look covers her face."

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Helpless Infant Has Close Call

Corinne Lewis of 3856 Florence dr., Alexandria, Va., tells me she has a friend named Peter Smith, and that Pete has a buddy named Abbott.

Abbott's wife gave birth to a son, and they were all set to name the boy after Pete until they realized that they just couldn't call the poor thing Peter Abbott.

OVERHEARD

Blanche Berlin of 812 Randolph st. nw. overheard a fellow on a bus tell this story to his companion:

"My wife bought a new hat the other day, and paid a young fortune for it. She was so proud of it that when company came to call that evening, she trotted out the hat and let everybody admire it.

"Later we were leafing through a family picture album with our guests and came across a snapshot of my missus taken years ago.

"Everybody howled with laughter—even my wife. The picture showed her wearing an exact replica of her brand new hat."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

As a visitor from Massachusetts (and a doctor who would prefer to receive no personal publicity) I should like to pose two questions:

1. Why does it take so long to get a taxi at your Union Station when there are scores of empty cabs waiting and cruising outside?

2. Does the liquor lobby hire people to put putrid pills in your water supply, to discourage the drinking thereof, or does your water just naturally taste that way?

Will you please take these matters up with the mayor and let me have the answers?

Name Withheld.

Dear Doc:

As you may have discovered in your practice, it is often easier to ask questions than to get satisfactory answers.

The hack concession at Union Station is sold at a pretty stiff figure, and the company that buys it has to operate on a businesslike basis to make a profit. Some folks prefer to walk out front and hail a cruising cab.

The water tastes okay to me, either straight or flavored with coffee, tea, lemon and sugar, or even a dash of rye whisky.

Frankly, doc, I think you must have gotten up out of the wrong side of bed yesterday. But that's just a curbstone diagnosis, you understand.

And I can't ask our mayor for help, because we don't have one. All we have is District Commissioner Russ Young, who is getting to be something of an expert on milk and will no doubt be dismayed to discover that there are also two schools of thought with regard to water.

Bill.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three 5-week-old kittens, almost pure white." (Woodley 6114.)

"Three assorted 6-week-old kittens; nice pets." (Wisconsin 1059.)

WARNING

I plan to be out of town after August 10, so I won't be around the office to open my mail.

If you have any Give-Aways to list, please get them in at once, so that I'll receive them before August 10.

I'll leave a couple of columns with the boss when I shove off, and send him some more stuff from wherever I light. But the puppies and kittens will have to get along without me until some time in September.

IT'S THE MAN WHO PAYS

Cartoonist Herblock stopped at our luncheon table just in time to hear my companion complain about his wife's extravagance. Herb recalled the classic story about Humorist Harry Hershfield.

When Harry spoke sternly to his wife about her huge expenditures for clothes, she replied: "But dear, I've got to dress well because of your prominence. Wherever I go, people point to me and say: 'That's Mrs. Harry Hershfield.'"

"I know," groaned Harry, fingering his threadbare suit, "but I'm Hershfield, and look at me."

My dad also had a favorite squelch when the talk turned to clothes. We kids would load up on new duds and then try to goad pop into spending some money on himself. His invariable reply was:

"I can't afford it. My father isn't as free with his money as yours is."

PET PEEVE

"If you must run ads offering steak at $1.05 per pound," growls Herb Harris of 1121 N. Kensington st., Arlington, Va., "don't illustrate them with the picture of a beaming housewife.

"More appropriate would be a picture of a man with his head bowed, and his hat held reverently over his heart."

Super-Tank Soon Ready For Korea

By Drew Pearson

A new super-tank will soon be ready for Korean action, that is the fastest, deadliest, and best-armored in the world.

COLLINS

Military leaders say it represents as great an advance in ground attack as the jet plane in the air. They also predict it will be vastly superior to the massive Russian tanks being used by the North Koreans.

This information was given to a closed-door meeting of the House Armed Services Committee by Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff.

General Collins testified that the tank, already in production, will outspeed and outmaneuver any enemy tank it comes up against. Furthermore, Collins said, it will not only be equipped with weapons capable of "destroying any other tank," including the Russian Goliath, but it will have better armor to resist enemy fire.

"In all departments, it is by far the best tank ever produced," said Collins.

Somewhat smaller than the Russian opposite number, it also is less expensive to build, the Chief of Staff added.

Chief defects of the Russian tank are its size and lack of maneuverability, which make for an easier target.

"Our bazookas have established that fact," Collins said.

The strange story of a $1000 bill received by a Washington police lieutenant after he tapped the telephone wires of aviation executive Howard Hughes has been reported to the Justice Department.

The wire-tapping job was entirely outside the regular work of the Washington police and was done on behalf of a Senate investigating committee headed by Senator Brewster of Maine. Other officials of that committee state that they never knew of the wire-tapping, and evidence points to the likelihood that it was paid for by Brewster or his friends.

The $1000 bill mentioned in police reports was handed to Lieut. Joseph Shimon shortly after he finished tapping Howard Hughes' wires. Shimon was in the offices of the U. S. Attorney, where he had a desk at that time, when a man came in and handed him a $1000 bill. Shimon, according to another policeman who was present, said nothing, put the bill down on his desk for a moment, then put it in his pocket.

Shimon is the same police lieutenant who tapped the wires in the divorce case involving the Argentine Ambassador, and also the wires of the late Senator Josiah Bailey of North Carolina.

GOP Moves on Controls

Member of the palace guard chiefly responsible for holding President Truman back on all-out war controls is affable, take-it-easy, nice-as-an-old-shoe Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder. He is also the man who is likely to let the Republicans steal the show when it comes to protecting the public on price-gouging.

Astute Senator Joe O'Mahoney, Wyoming Democrat, put his finger on this when he called Secretary Snyder on the phone recently.

"I'm having a meeting of brain-trusters from here and there to talk over an excess-profits tax."

"I'd be glad to invite you to sit in with us, John, but I'm not," the Wyoming Senator continued. "For, somehow or other, I don't think you'd be much help on an excess-profits tax."

What O'Mahoney knew was that Secretary Snyder has been pulling against any stiff excess-profits tax, despite the fact that this proved the most efficient means of both holding down prices and financing the last war. It is also one of the main planks in the control platform of wise old Bernard Baruch whose advice has helped guide the Nation through two wars.

$1-a-Year Men

A hot and significant argument is going on inside the Administration on the important question of $1-a-year men. President Truman doesn't want them, but some of his advisers are pressuring to bring an army of $1-a-year men back to Washington.

One-dollar men are business executives who work for the Government yet continue to keep their private business positions. They accept $1 a year from the Government as a token payment, but continue to draw regular salaries from their own companies.

Some of these men performed skilled and patriotic jobs for their country during World War II. But many, suffering from divided allegiance, seemed to be thinking more of their own companies than their Government. And some deliberately came to Washington with the idea of feathering their own business nests.

President Truman, when head of the Truman Investigating Committee, saw a great deal of this nest-feathering by $1-a-year men and doesn't want it repeated. However, the Business Advisory Council, a group of businessmen advising the Commerce Department, urges otherwise, and Secretary of Commerce Sawyer has backed them up.
